Reagan administration, Soviets predict summit breakthrough viet Union joined the Reagan administration Wednesday in predicting a breakthrough on curbing nuclear weapons at the meeting in Iceland between President Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Presidential chief of Staff Donald T. Regan said the two days of sum-mitry Oct. 11-12 "could lead to a better understanding and, perhaps, some give here and there in order to reach an agreement so we get some arms reductions.

For the Soviet Union, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gera-simov said he expected in Reykjavik 'some kind of breakthrough" in the form of instructions to lower-level weapons specialists to solidify an
