Aggies grab 2nd in tourney

The Texas A&M volleyball team took second place at the Colorado State Invitational Tournament this weekend to improve to 14-4.

Volleyball

The Aggies lost to host and eventual winner Colorado State in the opening round, but bounced back with wins over No. 18 Louisiana State University and Montana.

A&M middle blocker Margaret Spence and outside hitter Stacey Gildner were named to the all-tournament team.

Colorado State, ranked 14th in the nation, beat A&M 15-9, 15-5, 8-15, 15-11. But A&M Coach Al Givens said he wasn't too disappointed by the loss.

"We're definitely capable of beating Colorado State," Givens said. "Other than our first two games that we were extremely flat and not tenacious, I felt we were successful."

"We were able to rebound and played extremely well."

The Aggies beat LSU 15-6, 15-13,

8-15, 15-11 and Montana 15-11, 13, 15-8.

Although Spence and Gildner earned the honors, Givens said he was especially pleased with the play of Dena Zalesky, who came off the bench in the Montana match and had three kills and six digs.

A&M's Kelli Kellen also played solid volleyball as she hit .400 against LSU and .428 against Montana.

"That's been the strength of our team this year," Givens said. "To serve players are coming in and making contributions."

A&M's Labuschagne falls in tennis finals

By Loyd Brumfield

Assistant Sports Editor

Texas A&M's Kim Labuschagne advanced to the finals of the Westwood Invitational Tennis Tournament in Austin over the weekend before losing to top-seeded Elvyn Barrable of Trinity 2-6, 3-6.

In doubles, the second-seeded team of Labuschagne and A&M's Karen Marshall made it to the finals before losing to Beverly Bowes and Ann Grousbeck, the No. 1 doubles team from the University of Texas.

A&M Coach Bobby Kleinecke praised Labuschagne's play, but said he had mixed feelings about the overall performances of his players.

"I think it's obvious that Kim had a fantastic tournament," he said. "She's having the best year of her career so far and she's shown that her hard work has paid off. As far as the rest of the team goes, the people who lost their matches know what they need to work on."

In the first round of the singles tournament, third-seeded Labuschagne beat Lori Cronk of Rice 6-0, 6-3. She defeated Lynda Tate of SMU 6-0, 6-1, in second-round play.

Labuschagne got by Trinity's Dabney Langhorne in the quarterfinals 6-1, 7-6, and defeated Rene Simpson of TCU in the semifinals 6-2, 6-3.

Labuschagne and Marshall breezed through the doubles tournament by beating SMU's Lisa Pamintuan and Tammy Christensen 6-3, 6-0. In the quarterfinals, Labuschagne and Marshall battled Simpson and Teresa Dobson of TCU for a 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 win.

In the semifinal round, Labuschagne and Marshall won another tough battle, this time beating Trinity's Jane Holden and Ann Hulbert 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

In the consolation finals, A&M's Laura Liong lost to Kilmany Waterman of Trinity 1-6, 2-6.

"Overall we had an average tournament," Kleinecke said. "The team as a whole is playing fairly well, but there still is an awful lot of things we need to work on."

A&M now takes a two-week break before its next tournament, the Louisiana State University Invitational in Baton Rouge.

Ag women's golf team tied for 4th

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The Texas A&M women's golf team is tied for fourth place after one round of play at the Women's Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at the Colonial Country Club.

South Carolina leads the tourney with a combined stroke total of 302. Duke is second with 304, followed by Alabama with 308.

The Aggies are tied with Louisiana State at 313 strokes.

In individual play, Adriana Penuela and Mariana Oyanguera are the top Aggies with a score of 76.

Fiona Connor shot a 78, while Hollie Frizzell turned in an 83. Caroline Basarab, seeing her first collegiate action for A&M, shot an 85.

A&M runners fare well in cross-country invitational

GEORGETOWN — The Texas A&M men's cross-country team placed sixth in a 20-team field at the Texas Invitational Cross Country Meet on Friday.

Host Texas won both the men's and women's divisions at Southwestern University's five-mile course.

The A&M women took seventh place in the 12-team division.

In the men's division, A&M scored 256 points compared to UT's 32. In the women's bracket, the Aggies had 210 points to UT's 26.

Aggies, the Red Raiders managed to score late in the fourth quarter to downgrade the outcome from humiliating to just embarrassing.

"We wanted the shutout," defensive end Rod Saddler said. "But we have some guys on the second and third team that can play. They deserved to play."

The only negative aspect of the game was the A&M penalties. The Aggies had 17 flags thrown at them for 152 yards in losses, a new team record.

"Those penalties are correctable penalties," A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill said.

What's also correctable is the few dropped passes and tipped balls that have cost A&M in its first four outings.

The Aggies are prime for a mistake-free game.

It may happen this Saturday against Houston in the Astrodome, a place the Aggies haven't won in since 1952.

But it would be even better for A&M the following week against Baylor — because revenge can be sweet.
