Reagan to urge Asia missile cut

President will not compromise on ABM Treaty, Star Wars

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan intends to stand firm on his "Star Wars" plan and press for an 80 percent slash in Soviet nuclear missiles in Asia at his meeting with Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Iceland, an administration official said Wednesday.

If the Soviet leader agrees to make concessions on the missiles, Reagan and Gorbachev probably will emerge from their session in Reykjavik this weekend with a framework for a treaty to sharply reduce U.S.

and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe, the official said.

Also, Reagan and Gorbachev are likely to set a date for a full-scale summit meeting in Washington in December, said the official, who demanded anonymity.

But Reagan does not intend to negotiate with Gorbachev about the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, known popularly as Star Wars, the official said.

The State Department advised the president to seek a compromise with Gorbachev on their views of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, the official said, but Reagan rejected the advice.

Last month Reagan authorized U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman to seek an interim agreement for deep reductions instead of eliminating the missiles entirely, as the president initially proposed.

The Soviets have 270 SS-20 missiles, with 810 warheads, aimed at Western Europe and another 171 of the mobile nuclear weapons on their Asian territory, targeted on China, Japan and other Asian countries.

Meanwhile, the United States deployed 108 Pershing II missiles in West Germany and 32 cruise missiles in Italy and Belgium. All are aimed at the Soviet Union.

Reagan will discuss with Gorbachev a potential agreement limiting each side to 200 warheads, with the Soviets held to 100 missiles in Europe and 100 in Asia, the official said.

Drug bill passed by House; filibuster possible in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise anti-narcotics bill, which included a death penalty for drug-related murders, was approved Wednesday by the House, despite a threatened Senate filibuster that could kill the election-year legislation.

The amended version of the drug bill, first approved by the House Sept. 11, was passed on a 391-23 vote.

Rep. George W. Gekas, R-Pa., the original sponsor of the death-penalty provision, said the death penalty was necessary as a tool against those who kill at random to make sure their drug syndicate remains intact. The bill would provide the death penalty for committing murder to further a continuing narcotics enterprise.

Before the debate, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, who included the provision in the revised legislation approved Tuesday by the Rules Committee, acknowledged the filibuster threat by moderate Senate Republicans and liberal Democrats.

The Senate, which passed its version of the anti-drug bill last week, deleted the death penalty provision as well as several other controversial items, including a relaxation of the rule that would bar the use of illegally obtained evidence in court.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill

Jr., D-Mass., an opponent of the death penalty, said the drug bill could not pass without the provision.

The compromise drug bill would authorize $1.8 billion in the current fiscal year for drug enforcement, education and prevention.

It deletes other controversial items in the original House bill, including the exception to the exclusionary rule of evidence for warrantless searches by police who act in good faith.

It also drops a House-passed provision that would require the use of the military to patrol the U.S. border against drug smuggling.

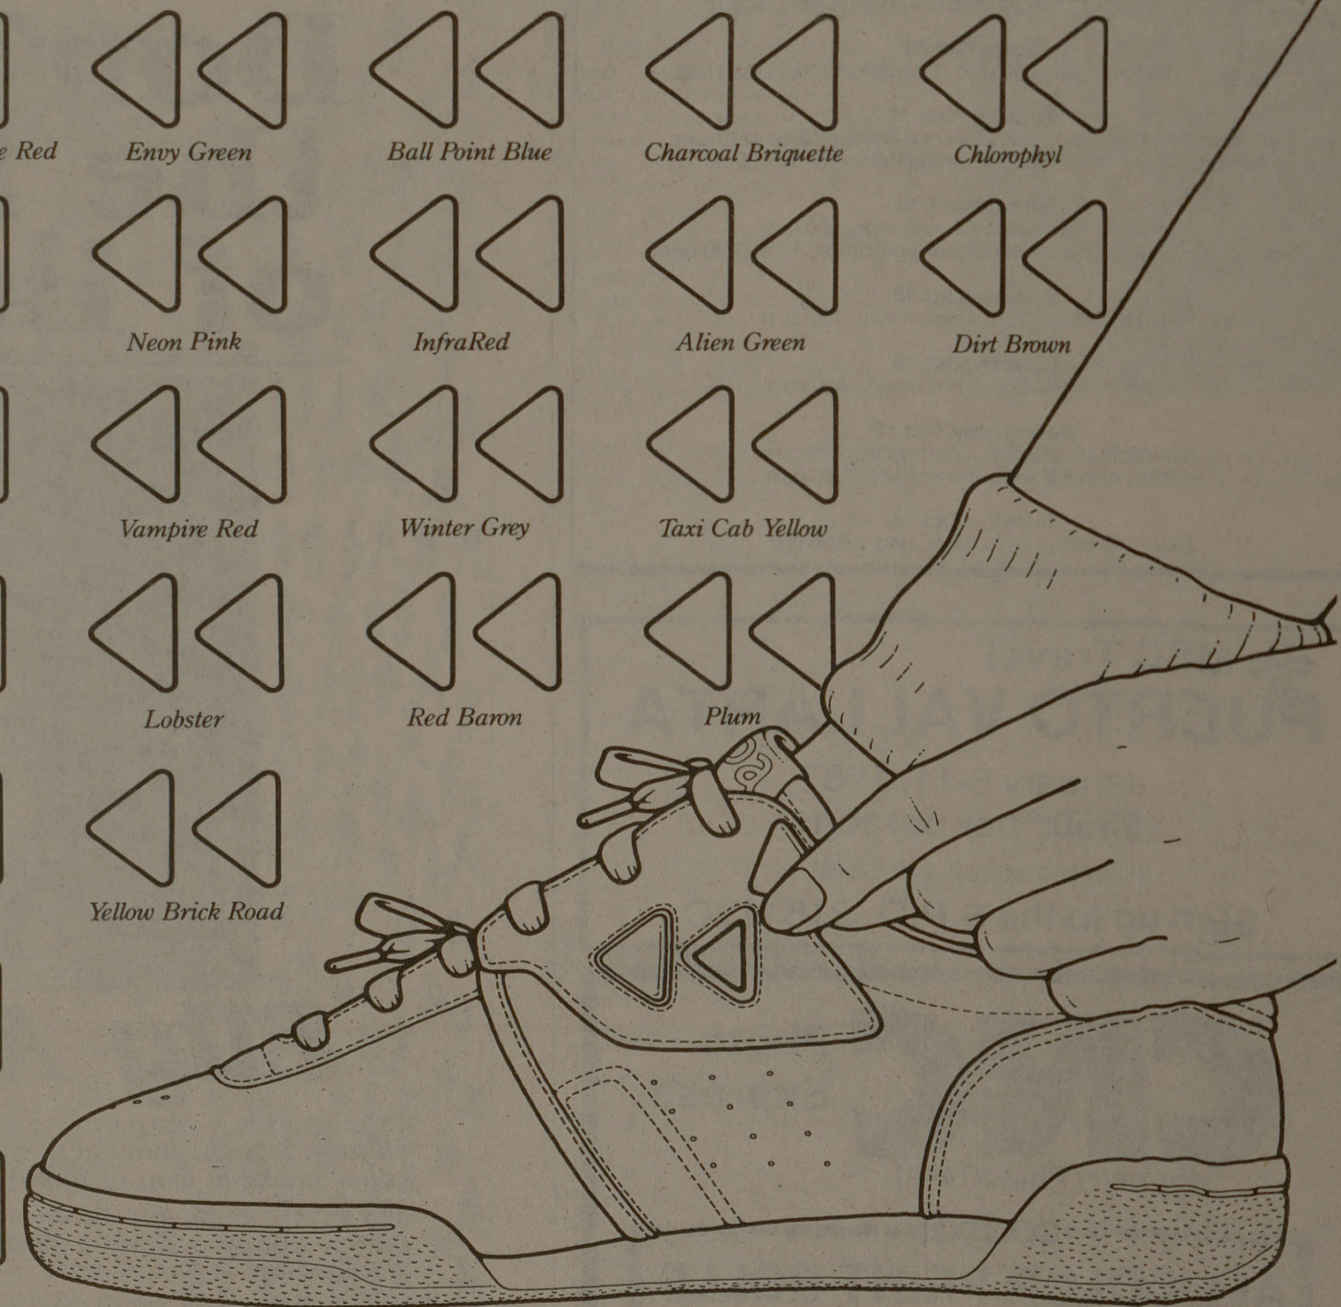

State Dept. spokesman resigns job

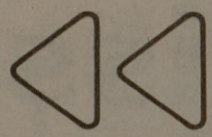

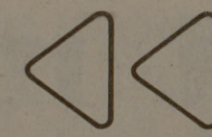

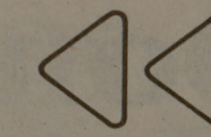

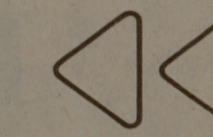

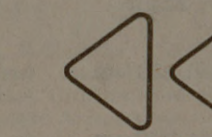

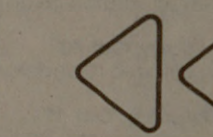

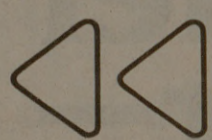

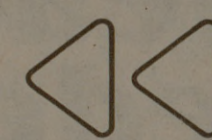

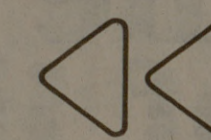

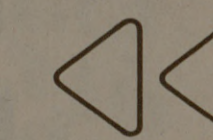

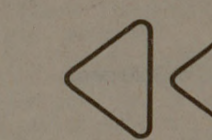

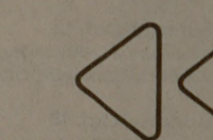

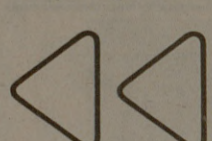

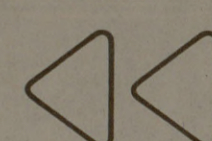

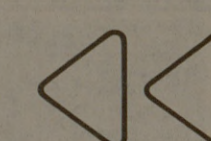

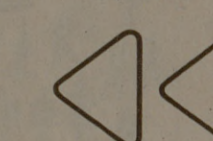

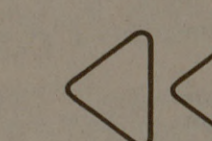

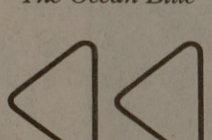

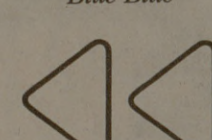

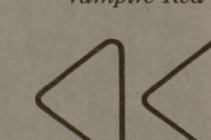

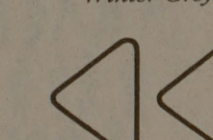

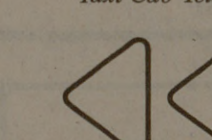

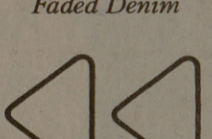

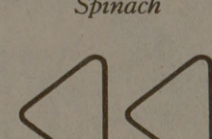

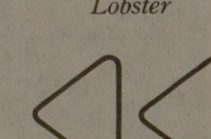

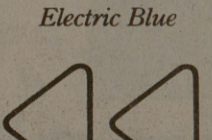

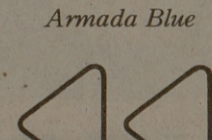

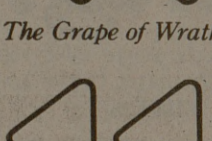

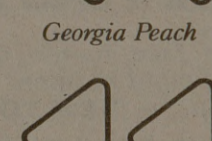

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former newsman Bernard Kalb resigned Wednesday as chief spokesman for the State Department over a reported effort by the Reagan administration to lead the news media on Libya.

"Faith in the word of America is the pulsebeat of democracy," Kalb told a farewell news conference. He will be succeeded by deputy, Charles E. Redman.

Asked about Kalb's resignation, President Reagan said Wednesday, "No one on our staff has been lying to anyone."
