Senator: U.S. bypassed bounds for Contra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — As long as the administration openly encourages gun running in Central America, more Americans will become involved and the distinction will be blurred between who's official and who isn't, the vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Sunday.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said most members of Congress feel the U.S. government has overstepped the bounds by giving a "wink and a shrug" to private groups supporting Contra rebels seeking to overthrow the government of Nicaragua.

"The question that hasn't been answered fully to all the congressional inquiries is whether they stepped over the line from political encouragement to illegal cooperation," Leahy said in a telephone interview from his home in Vermont.

Congress barred military aid from the United States to the Contras in 1984 but later authorized non-military aid.

The question of whether the U.S. government has gone beyond that has come under intense scrutiny since Eugene Hasenfus, an ex-Marine who once flew for Air America, a CIA-operated airline in Vietnam, was captured in Nicaragua after his arms-laden plane was brought down by a Nicaraguan missile.

Hasenfus told a news conference in Managua Thursday that Max Gomez and another Cuban-American "work for the CIA (and) did most of the coordination" for the gun-running flights he took part in.

Leahy said as long as people openly encourage Americans going to Nicaragua, more and more Americans will become involved; there will be some captured, some killed and some put on trial.

Shultz calls Iceland summit 'disappointing'

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday the two-day Iceland summit ended with U.S. officials "deeply disappointed" because "extremely important potential agreements" on arms issues did not materialize, despite intensive talks between President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev.

He said the hangup was Soviet insistence that Reagan curtail search on the Strategic Defense Initiative. Reagan and Gorbachev did not agree on the date of a low-up summit, Shultz said.

He said the leaders nearly agreed on ways "to deal effectively with intermediate range nuclear missiles," and had made progress toward an agreement on limiting underground nuclear tests, but that the potential agreement failed to materialize because the parts were interrelated.

On the prospects for an agreement on arms treaties in Geneva, in view of the failure in Reykjavik, Shultz said, "I hope it doesn't reduce the chances for agreement, but I can't say for sure."

Shultz began his post-summit news conference by saying "after two full intensive days, which the president's performance was magnificent, the leaders reached 'extremely important potential agreements."

American downed in Nicaragua to be tried soon; charges unclear

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega says that an American captured after a rebel supply plane was shot down will be tried soon, but it still was not clear Sunday what charges would be filed against him.

The president said documents found in the C-123's wreckage proved the U.S. role. "There are no doubts about the involvement of the United States in all these actions," Ortega said.

President Reagan and other officials have denied any U.S. government involvement in the flight.

But Ortega said U.S. officials "stimulate terrorist actions such as this, but when people die they do not take responsibility for the action. ... They just call them heroes."

Other Sandinist officials have said Hasenfus could face up to 30 years in prison. The People's Courts were formed after the leftist Sandinist National Liberation Front came to power in July 1979, ending 42 years of government by the rightist, pro-American Somoza dynasty.

The president made his first comments on the Oct. 5 downing of a C-123 transport over southern Nicaragua in a nationally broadcast town meeting Saturday.

Ortega angrily denounced what he called the "direct participation" of the U.S. government in aiding guerrillas fighting the Nicaraguan government.

Ortega later told reporters that Eugene Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., will be tried soon in the People's Courts.

The president said documents found in the C-123's wreckage proved the U.S. role. "There are no doubts about the involvement of the United States in all these actions," Ortega said.

Investigators try to unravel LaRouche network

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators, with more than two truckloads of seized records to sort through, are focusing on obstruction of justice charges as they try to unravel political extremist Lyndon LaRouche's network of organizations.

After nearly two years of investigating what U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson called "an organizational policy of fraud and bilking," the government last week raided LaRouche's Virginia headquarters and indicted several of his inner circle members, his fund-raisers and assorted corporations and committees.

The government provided a broad look at its case last week in persuading a federal magistrate to hold without bond two top LaRouche lieutenants facing obstruction charges.

That evidence touched LaRouche himself, who has not been charged but who prosecutors contend "dominates and controls" an organization charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice.

It also shed light on what is one of the most bizarre political organizations ever — whose members, according to the FBI, make late-night harassing telephone calls to opponents and thought they could get CIA help to "spike" a federal fraud investigation of them.

LaRouche is a frequent fringe candidate for president who espouses a complex view of the world that defies ideological lumping the Queen of England, Soviet and prominent Americans as co-conspirators in drug dealing.

Ten of his followers and five of his organizations were indicted in Boston on charges of fraud, in a scheme in which $1 million was bilked in unauthorized credit card charges and conspiracy to obstruct justice for alleged efforts to thwart the fraud probe.

The Boston grand jury investigation began the last weeks of LaRouche's 1984 presidential campaign.

A&M Wrestling Club

Texas A&M University may be SWC Champs in many varsity sports, but they can also boast of being the State Wrestling Champions 2 years in a row. According to Club President, Robert Simpton, the club plans to win again this year.

Wrestling may sound like a strenuous activity, and it is, but club members also have a good time. Not all members of the club start out as highly skilled as one may think. The membership includes former high school state champions as well as first time wrestlers. The club is geared towards self improvement and discipline. Because there is no coach and peer pressure is not really a factor, the club members must discipline themselves to practice and work out on their own. Club members assist each other at work outs, but the assistance and discipline go beyond the practices.

Being a member of the wrestling club requires great personal commitment and discipline. The commitment and discipline in turn reflect in their personal life. The discipline helps them to manage their lives in a much better way.

The Wrestling Club competes against other clubs in the state. After taking the '84 and '85 State Championships, they are confident they can take the title this year. The club practices on Monday and Wednesday from 7-9pm and on Tuesday and Thursday from 5-7pm in Room 260 G. Rollie White. For more information; contact Robert Simpton at 846-2852 or Jim Boggs 260-6779.
