Bentsen hoping for Democratic gains in Senate

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, appearing at a fund-raiser Monday with four Democratic senators, said he was optimistic the party would make strong gains in November's election.

"We have an excellent chance of taking over the Senate," Bentsen said, adding that races in the South looked especially good for Democrats.

Bentsen and Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn. were in Dallas to attend a luncheon from which proceeds were to go to Democratic senatorial candidates seeking to unseat Republican incumbents.

Bentsen, ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, would take over as chairman if his party produces a net gain of four seats in the Senate. The Republicans now hold a 53-47 edge.

At a news conference before the luncheon, Bentsen said his top priority as chairman would be to promote trade legislation. He said the administration's failure to develop a trade policy has hurt the South.

"This administration has stiffed the Congress," he said. "They have refused to place trade legislation before this president. I promise you as chairman I would place that legislation before the president."

Johnston said as chairman of the energy committee he would force the administration to help Southern states struggling in the oil slump. And he criticized the administration for not adopting an oil import fee.

"This president has steadfastly opposed any relief for the oil industry," he said. "It is clear we are not going to have a domestic oil industry when OPEC flexes its muscles again."

Should Democrats gain the majority in the Senate, Sasser said, Sunbelt senators would gain the chairmanship of the Senate's money committee's and bring influence to the South.

"You could say goodbye to runaway spending, you could say goodbye to runaway deficits and say hello again to frugal fiscal policies," Sasser said.

Chiles said it was critical that Southern senators be involved in policy making and that as committee chairmen Southern senators would be assured a leading position in almost every Senate vote.

Mitchell, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, said Democrats were running even or ahead in six of the 15 Senate races in which there are Republican incumbents.

Minister defends right to run school for boys

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A fugitive fundamentalist minister from Texas is the latest in a long line of church leaders harassed by government authorities, an Indianapolis minister said Monday.

The Rev. Greg Dixon of the Indianapolis Baptist Temple said he hopes the Rev. W.N. Otwell and others attending a national conference this week will present "a united voice against the continued encroachment against the church and its ministry" by government agencies.

Otwell, 49, faces fines and an arrest warrant in Texas in a dispute over a court order to close his unlicensed boys home operated by Otwell's Community Baptist Church in Forest Hill, a suburb of Fort Worth.

Otwell failed to appear in court Oct. 6 at a contempt of court hearing in Austin. When Otwell failed to appear, State District Judge Paul R.

Davis issued an arrest warrant for Otwell for contempt of court.

Otwell has said he has little fear of being arrested out of state because he believes the warrant for his arrest is valid only in Texas.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has ordered the sale of parts of Otwell's church for collection of fines.

Otwell and other workers at the boys home owe fines totalling $400,000, according to Otwell's son, Rocky Otwell, 27, who is associate pastor of the church.

Otwell, speaking before a gathering at the Indianapolis Baptist Temple Sunday, defended his right to run the boys home as he sees fit.

"The only crime that I've committed against the state of Texas is the fact that I've sinned against an agency," Otwell said.

Texans reach out to help Salvadoran quake victims

Texas merchants, mindful of the relief needs after last year's devastating Mexico City earthquake, moved quickly to begin collecting supplies and donations to aid the victims of Friday's tremor in El Salvador.

"We helped the people of the Mexico earthquake and we want to help the Salvadorans as well," said Eddie Garcia, the owner of a Fort Worth record store.

Many of the people making donations were Salvadorans, Garcia told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

He collected several hundred dollars from customers in just a few hours on Saturday. Clothing, food and other items also were piling up in his shop, which stayed open on Sunday.

Several other locations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area also were accepting contributions of money and goods for eventual distribution by the Red Cross.

Spanish-language radio station KESS-FM was interrupting regular programming with news updates about the Salvadoran quake and pleas for donations.

The International Red Cross estimates at least 350 people were killed, 6,800 injured and another 20,000 left homeless by the quake.

David Hemmings play a self-indulgent photographer in the free swinging London of the mid-1960's. A series of his photographs made him think that he has witnessed a murder. Blow-up is a provocative film about the dilemma of a man trapped in a life-style of inaction and non-commitment.
