Clements 'in the dark' about bug

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday he knows nothing about a bugging incident in the office of one of his campaign officials and doesn't want to talk about it.

Clements also declined to comment about a Fort Worth private detective's refusal to take a lie detector test. The detective, Gary Morphew, discovered the electronic bug in the office of Clements' campaign strategist Karl Rove.

Morphew said Monday he refused to take the test for personal reasons but wouldn't elaborate, the Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday.

"I have only one thing to say about this," Clements said. "I know nothing about it. I knew nothing about it. I know nothing about the sweep or the search or even that it was suspected. And I still don't know anything about it."

"It's under investigation, and I have no comment."

George Bayoud, Clements' campaign manager, said, "We asked him (Morphew) to take the test. He told me that he was going to take it last Thursday."

Reggie Bashur, spokesman for the Clements campaign office, said Monday the FBI asked Bayoud to ask Morphew to take the test and the detective agreed.

Morphew reported finding a small, black listening device Oct. 5 behind a framed needlepoint in the Austin office of Rove, a top political consultant for Clements.

FBI probes fraud deal, paper says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is investigating what role Texas Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews and other officials may have played in allegedly fraudulent land deals near Houston, a Washington newspaper said Tuesday.

The real estate ventures in question included shopping plazas, offices, condominiums and storage buildings offered as tax-shelter investments between 1983 and 1985, the Washington Times reported in its Tuesday editions.

The FBI's investigation centers on whether project developers put up the investment fees for Hobby, Andrews, state Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and other officials to become limited partners in exchange for using their influence, unidentified sources told the Times.

The FBI was also trying to determine whether the developers inflated property appraisals to boost bank loans and if they received kickbacks from construction companies, the newspaper said.

Some builders, lenders and investors had filed lawsuits to collect money on the projects.
