Baylor, A&M frats to join in fund-raiser

This Saturday the Kappa-Sigma fraternity will be riding their bikes from Waco to College Station carrying the game ball for the football game in order to raise money for the American Heart Association.

The project is called "Biking for Beats." Last year's bike ride raised about $300 in College Station and $500 in Waco.

This is a joint venture involving both the Baylor and A&M chapters of the fraternity.

The A&M fraternity members will be leaving on Friday for Waco.

During the whole ride, one Baylor member and one A&M member will ride next to each other.

Ag organizations to sponsor seminar

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold a seminar this Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in the Memorial Student Center.

Members of the Texas Farm Bureau are invited to attend.

Tim Shaunty, assistant director to the Agricultural Experiment Station, said about 20 seminars will be held in October for different groups. Shaunty said each seminar is geared to a different group. The two-hour seminar has two parts. The directors of the two stations each give presentations during the first hour. Shaunty said the directors also will give a general overview of the Experiment Station's plans for the future and on current research.

The second hour of the seminar will include a tour of the Meat Sciences Technology Center, which is west of the Kleberg Center.

MSC Council to plan for fall retreat

Final plans for the Memorial Student Center Council's fall retreat, the major brainstorming session for its five-year master plan, will be discussed at its regular meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in 216-T MSC.

The retreat will be Sunday on the third floor of Rudder Tower from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The council's building operations committee will present a plan for new policies regarding the use of display cases and banners at the MSC. The council will consider requiring deposits from organizations using these facilities, and forfeiting deposits to groups that don't remove displays by deadlines.

The MSC Amateur Radio Committee will give a presentation on its recent efforts to help students relay messages to friends and relatives in El Salvador following Friday's earthquake.

'86 Aggieland sports new look with theme, 'The New Generation'

By Melissa Meeks
Reporter

"The New Generation" is here at Texas A&M, and everyone can find out all about it in the largest yearbook in the nation — the '86 Aggieland.

Liz Kahane, editor of the '86 Aggieland, said the yearbook is different this year because the staff used a theme throughout the entire book. Most college yearbooks do work with a theme, she said, but the new Aggieland is carrying a continuing theme in the book for the first time.

Molly Pepper, editor for the '87 Aggieland, said that last year's staff made some changes in the Aggieland.

"There were a lot of changes in attitudes last year and there was a general feeling of conservatism fighting change," she said.

"That's why we chose the theme 'The New Generation,'" Pepper said. "We're different. We're moving on and we're breaking away from the old beliefs."

Pepper said a lot of "sacred cows" were slaughtered last year at A&M. The University officially recognized the Greeks, allowed women in the band and recognized the Gay Student Services Organization.

Kahane said that University recognition of the Greeks allowed the yearbook to cover Greek events more thoroughly than in previous years.

Pepper said that although the main difference in the '86 Aggieland is the theme, other things also were done differently.

Kahane and Pepper both said they had received complaints about the lack of traditions in the '85 yearbook.

Pepper said, "We got a lot of complaints because we didn't have a burning bonfire and so this year (in the '86 yearbook) there is a burning bonfire and . . . more on traditions."

She said the staff for the '85 Aggieland was more concerned with current events than with things that always have been here, so the '86 Aggieland re-focused on traditions.

Kahane said, "The main reason I felt traditions should be in the book is because a lot of students don't get a yearbook until they are a senior."

She said since some students only have this one book, it should be filled with everything.

Traditions are an important part of A&M and many of the activities, such as bonfire and elephant walk, are big events during the year and needed to be in the yearbook, Kahane said.

Students can pick up their Aggielands at the English Annex.
