Restaurant Report

By Mike Sullivan
Staff Writer

The restaurants listed below were inspected last Thursday through Tuesday by the Brazos County Health Department. The information is based on food service establishment reports.

SCORED 95 OR ABOVE:
• Casa Ole in the Post Oak Mall was inspected by Mike Lester. Score — 96. Two points were subtracted on the report because there was some food on the floor in a storeroom, and some food was left uncovered in a walk-in cooler. Two more one-point violations were cited in the report because a drip pan in a reach-in cooler was stopped up, and there were no thermometers in some reach-in coolers.

SCORED BETWEEN 90 AND 95:
• Emilio's Pizza at 317 Patricia in College Station was inspected by David Pickett. Score — 92. Four points were subtracted on the report because the front door was propped open and there were flies in the building. Two more points were deducted on the report because the bottom of a reach-in cooler needed cleaning. Two one-point violations were cited in the report because some kitchen shelves needed cleaning, and some ceiling repairs needed to be made in the kitchen.

David Jefferson, a registered sanitarian at the department, says restaurants with scores of 95 or above generally have excellent operations and facilities. Jefferson says restaurants with scores in the 70s or low 80s usually have serious violations on the health report.

Scores can be misleading, Jefferson says, because restaurants can achieve the same score by having several major violations or an abundance of minor violations. He says the major violations might close the restaurant down while some minor violations can be corrected during the inspection.

Jefferson says the department might close a restaurant if: the score is below 60, the personnel has infectious diseases, the restaurant lacks adequate refrigeration, a sewage backup exists in the building, the restaurant has a complete lack of sanitization for the food equipment.

Point deductions, or violations, on the report range from one point (minor violation) to five points (major violation). The department inspects each restaurant about every six months.

Sometimes a follow-up inspection must be made, usually within 10 days. Jefferson says a restaurant might require a follow-up inspection if it has a four- or five-point violation that cannot be corrected while the inspector is still there, or there are numerous small violations.

Inspectors at the department are registered sanitarians.

• Peking Express at 606 Tarrow in College Station was inspected by Mike Lester. Score — 91. Four points were subtracted from the report because a rear door was left open and there was no screen door. Two two-point deductions were made in the report because some food was being stored on a floor, and some paper towels were needed at a hand sink. One more point was subtracted on the report because there was a hole in a wall.

SCORED BETWEEN 85 AND 90:

• Dairy Queen at 205 N. Texas Ave. in Bryan was inspected by David Plett. Score — 85. Five points were deducted on the report because some chicken-fried steak gravy and some chili were being stored in a food warmer at a potentially hazardous temperature. A four-point violation was cited in the report because hand sinks in two restrooms did not have mixing valves for hot and cold water.

Two points were subtracted from the report because some cones were being stored on a floor. Another two points were taken on the report because there was no soap or paper towels at a restroom hand sink. Two more points were deducted on the report because some cups were being stored on a floor and some shelves needed cleaning.
