

At Ease

CONTENTS

If you live at the local dance clubs, if you imagine yourself as a young Fred Astaire or Ginger Rogers, or if you've just got a good case of happy feet, you might be a candidate for the Dance Arts Society. The group offers classes in modern dance, jazz, ballet and a variety of other forms of dancing for fun and profit. (Or at least, for exercise.)

If you have that Gotta Dance feeling, there's only one thing to do. Dig out the dance shoes of your choice and dig into this issue of At Ease.

At Ease Staff

Editors Bill Hughes
Marybeth Rohsner
Staff writers Tony Cornett
Karen Kroesche
Nancy Neukirchner
Reviews Karl Pallmeyer
Photographer Bill Hughes

Features

Doin' the Dishes _____ 6

The Dishes. Talented? Yes. Diverse? You bet. Strange? Definitely. Just check out their "Hot Diggety Dog" album cover.

This feature explores the music and background of this Houston-based band that includes College Station in its lineup of regular gigs.

Gotta Dance _____ 8

The Dance Arts Society is growing as Aggies become more interested in the fine arts. Some members join to get in shape, and others see it as an outlet for personal expression. This week, At Ease takes a look at the organization, its activities and its members.

Departments

Previews _____ 3

Preview of Halloween activities; Texas Prison Rodeo

Reviews _____ 4

Movie Review: "Deadly Friend"

Album Reviews: Elvis Costello's "Blood and Chocolate"
Talking Heads' "True Stories"

Movie Scene: What's showing around town