RHA leader: Policy takes out trouble

By David Betz
Reporter

The controversial policy changes for RHalloween this year are intended to keep the fun but eliminate the problems, the president of the Residence Hall Association said Wednesday.

David McDowell, in a speech at Sully's Symposium, said the benefits of changing trick-or-treat rules outweigh the costs. About 50 people gathered in front of the Lawrence Sullivan Ross statue to hear McDowell speak.

He mentioned past problems with dorm trick-or-treating, citing an altercation last year that resulted in the arrests of two Texas A&M students on charges of assault and battery.

He also said excessive drinking and property damage are problems that need to be corrected.

"If we stuck with the same format we would be acting irresponsibly," McDowell said.

He said RHA didn't change the Halloween policy just to anger students.

RHA President David McDowell spoke Wednesday to about 50 people at Sully's Symposium.

However, members of the audience were just as concerned with other housing issues.

McDowell discussed RHA's preliminary plans for coed housing at A&M. He said there will be no coed roommates and that only juniors and seniors will be allowed to live in coed dorms.

It will be a while before final decisions will be made, McDowell said, and he didn't know which dorms would become coed.

"We haven't picked out a hall," he said. "Of course, everyone wants a modular dorm."

Questions concerning the plan proposed last year to extend visitation hours also were brought up. McDowell said the proposal was

White: Clements trying to use personal wealth to buy election

EDNA (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements hopes to use his enormous personal wealth to buy the election, Gov. Mark White charged Wednesday.

"The people are going to recognize that the governorship's not for sale," White said. "Just because you have great personal wealth doesn't qualify you for being governor."

White's comments came after both candidates on Tuesday filed financial reports with the secretary of state.

But Clements, campaigning in Houston, said, "You know, Democrats always say those sort of things... He's talking to the campaign fairy, I guess."

Clements' report showed that he has raised a total of about $9.75 million and spent $9.6 million in the campaign to date. White's total is about $11 million raised and $9.4 million spent.

In the past 30 days, Clements raised $3.55 million — with about $2.6 million of that coming in loans he personally guaranteed. Founder of one of the world's largest oil-drilling companies, Clements is a multi-millionaire.

Standing in front of the Jackson County Courthouse, White said Clements demonstrated in the 1982 election that he was willing to lean on his own wealth in a campaign.

"It's the same thing that happened last time," White said. "He made an effort last time to outspend (our) campaign to a point it was an obvious effort to buy an election. He's pouring his enormous personal wealth into this campaign."

White defended his higher contribution total by saying he had faced a tougher primary than Clements. While Clements easily rolled over two GOP opponents, White was caught in a six-way Democratic primary.

White also defended the loans his campaign obtained, saying he needed the money to help counter Clements' television advertising blitz.

Clements, White spend $19 million

AUSTIN (AP) — Within a week of campaigning for them, the Democratic and Republican candidates for governor have reported spending a combined $19 million trying to win voters.

To date, Clements reported raising about $9.7 million and spending $9.6 million in his campaign.

White has spent about $11 million since beginning his campaign reported on $1 million of the total. White had raised by Oct. 29 about $9.4 million.
