France says it made no deals with terrorists, denies reports

PARIS (AP) — The French government Thursday branded as fiction reports it struck a truce with Middle Eastern bombers who terrorized Paris, and it denied that France planned to exchange arms for Syrian help in the anti-terrorist fight.

Denis Baudouin, spokesman for Premier Jacques Chirac, acknowledged that Syria has been cooperating with France in an effort to put an end to the terror campaign, which killed 10 people and hurt 162 in the French capital last month.

But Baudouin stressed that there has been no contact or negotiations with the terrorists.

A group calling itself the Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle East Political Prisoners claimed responsibility for the five bombings between Sept. 8 and Sept. 17. It demanded the release of Georges Ibrahim Abdallah and two other Middle Eastern men imprisoned in terrorism cases.

The newspaper Le Monde reported Wednesday that Syria helped obtain a truce in the bombings and that the brothers of Abdallah, presumed leader of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Factions, agreed to suspend their attacks until February 1987, after being threatened by Syrian security services.

Abdallah is serving a four-year term for possessing arms and false papers. He is expected to go on trial in February for complicity in the 1982 murders of an American military attache and an Israeli diplomat in Paris.

Asked about the Le Monde report, Baudouin said: "That's fiction and it has never been a question of (making) a truce that would have been paid for in one way or another, either by freeing Mr. Abdallah . . . or, secondly, in the financial sphere and in the sphere of armaments. We categorically deny it."

Syria's vice president, Abdel Halim Khaddam, confirmed on French television Wednesday night that Syrian secret services have been cooperating with the French to prevent further bombings in Paris. He did not say how.

Police have said Abdallah's four brothers and five other people, all living in a Syrian-controlled area of northern Lebanon, are the prime suspects in the bombings.

Le Monde said that the Syrian secret services

"threatened reprisals if the attacks resumed, and that the French government sent a message to the Abdallahs via Syria and Algeria saying while the bombings were making it impossible to release Abdallah, the trial "could turn to his advantage."

French newspaper reports have suggested the prosecution does not have a strong case against Abdallah and that the government is proceeding with the trial only because of American pressure.

A statement signed by the Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle East Political Prisoners said Thursday it will not abide by the alleged truce, saying, "The Abdallahs do not represent the committee. . . . Any agreement with them is not binding on the committee."

France has come under criticism both at home and abroad for its dealings with Syria despite accusations here that the Syrians may have been involved in helping the bombers. Officials said they have no proof of Syrian involvement and will not make accusations without it.

Vatican tells bishops to stamp out pro-homosexual views in Church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican instructed bishops Thursday to stamp out pro-homosexual views within the Roman Catholic church and oppose any attempt to condone homosexuality through legislation or other means.

In a letter to the bishops approved by Pope John Paul II, the Vatican accused pro-homosexual groups of "deceitful propaganda" and trying to gain a foothold in the church, which has 810 million followers.

"Increasing numbers of people, even within the church, are bringing enormous pressure to bear on the church to accept the homosexual condition as though it were not disordered and to condone homosexual activity," it said.

The Vatican told the bishops and priests not to support organizations that "seek to undermine the teaching of the church (on homosexuality), which are ambiguous about it, or which neglect it entirely."

The 15-page letter was dated Oct. 1 and made public Thursday. It was drawn up by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the watchdog of doctrinal deviation headed by West German-born Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger.

An Italian homosexual rights group named Fuori (Outside) issued a statement calling the church document "a futile attempt to force discrimination by those who, perhaps because of love based on true faith, have discovered tolerance."

Prelates in some countries, including the United States, have struggled with government authorities over homosexual rights. Church leaders in New York City unsuccessfully contested an action designed to protect homosexuals from job discrimination.

The Vatican has taken disciplinary action against some churchmen for advocating liberal views on homosexuality.

It said in the instructions that the church position cannot be revised by pressure from civil legislation.

In an apparent reference to the dangers of AIDS, the letter said: "Even when the practice of homosexuality may seriously threaten the lives and well-being of a large number of people, its advocates remain undeterred and refuse to consider the magnitude of the risks involved."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is spread primarily by sexual contact and the sharing of needles by drug abusers. In the United States, a majority of its victims are homosexuals.

The church is "really concerned about the many who are not represented by the pro-homosexual movement and about those who may have been tempted to believe its deceitful propaganda," the letter said.

Although the church condemns violent malice in speech or in action against homosexuals, the Vatican said, bishops must state clearly that homosexuality is immoral and resist pressure from the pro-homosexual movement within the church to change its teaching.

Bishops should not permit the use of church buildings by such groups, including facilities of Catholic schools and colleges, the letter said.

"To some, such permission to use church property may seem only just and charitable, but in reality it is . . . misleading and often scandalous," Ratzinger's agency told the prelates.

The document urged homosexual Christians to lead a chaste life and declared: "It is only in the marital relationship that the use of the sexual faculty can be morally good. A person engaging in homosexual behavior therefore acts immorally."

Waldheim denies fighting in Nazi operation

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Kurt Waldheim on Thursday said he did not fight Yugoslav partisans during a Nazi operation and denied he was approached after the war to work for Soviet intelligence, according to his spokesman.

Gerold Christian, the spokesman, made the comments after new allegations appeared in the U.S. media about Waldheim's activity in World War II.

The Washington Post reported Thursday that Waldheim acknowledged after months of denial that he had played a role in the brutal Nazi "pacification" operation that cost thousands of lives in Yugoslavia.

It said that in a 13-page memo sent to the Post in April, the former U.N. secretary-general had denied he was involved in the 1942 operation to remove all 80,000 residents, including 3,500 armed partisans, from Kozara, a mountainous region in Yugoslavia.

The newspaper Thursday quoted Christian as saying "additional research" revealed the president's earlier statement was incorrect.

But in a telephone conversation with the Associated Press on Thursday, Christian said the earlier statements by Waldheim that he was not involved in the Kozara operation "were not incorrect."

Christian said, "The war record was, however, supplemented after files and documents were found" and the information was made available to U.S. authorities in August.

Christian, who said Waldheim was in the Kozara area for a short period, quoted the president as saying he was not directly involved in fighting and did not witness mass killings.

Waldheim "never was present during combat action," Christian said. "He was unfit for the front and never had a rifle to shoot with. . . ."

The spokesman said Waldheim "never got into physical contact with partisans, because he performed a subordinated activity" as a supply officer.

A secretary in Waldheim's office later telephoned the AP with an English-language statement, saying, "With regard to the Kozara (area), Dr. Waldheim's service was limited to the normal duties of a junior supply officer and did not involve any combat activity."

Waldheim's recent campaign for the presidency was marred by allegations that he was involved in wartime atrocities against partisans and Jews in Yugoslavia and Greece.

Waldheim denied the charges and maintained he was the victim of a campaign to deny him the presidency.

The Post cited German reports showing that Lt. Kurt Waldheim was one of 29 members of General

Nazi commander in Austria, Friedrich von Staab.

The newspaper said von Staab showed Staab recommended Waldheim and 33 others for the Yugoslav government's King Medal for "heroic bravery" during the fight against the insurgents in the spring and summer of 1945.

Christian also said Waldheim also received an oak leaf award "under enemy fire" for his description of the war.

Staab's order was to remove the entire population of the area with a "reliable" population list. Yugoslav figures say 10,000 partisans and 13,000 civilians were killed or died during the war.

Christian also said Waldheim "categorically denied" he was contacted to work for the Yugoslavs or the Nazis.

Stock market posts gain in heavy trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The market chalked up a solid heavy trading Thursday, spurred by hopes for lower rates and some favorable economic news.

The Dow Jones average industrials climbed 21 1/2 points to 1,878.37, stretching to the week's start to 46.11 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 1.1 billion shares, the seventh total ever, against 1.64 billion in the previous session. Record for a single session of 1.1 billion shares was set here.

Analysts said one cause of the advance was provisions that Japan might raise its discount rate.

The Japanese stock market posted a record-breaking advance and interest rates fell to credit markets.

Should Japanese rates they would logically have a downward influence on this country as well.
