Hightower says Texas should find safer ways o dispose of waste

USTIN (AP) — Texas should e out landfills in hazardous disposal and look for safer and efficient alternatives, the Department of Agriculture mended Thursday.

sions for Litmus

ricultural Commissioner Jim ower spoke at a news conferaddressing the problem of haz-

ous waste disposal. Proven, cost efficient alternatives and disposal exist today," High-r said, "and a concerted effort ndustry and the state can move vay from outmoded, dangerous, nsive land disposal methods.' Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, his Senate Committee on Natuesources would meet in Lake son Nov. 19 to begin making nmendations for the 1987 Leg-early, the state has a duty to sure these dangerous materie disposed of in a safe, environally-responsible manner," the ittee chairman told the news ghtower and Santiesteban that Texas has the dubious reas the No. 1 producer of hazus wastes in the nation. ntiesteban said, "Texas pro-

38 million tons of hazardous every year, which is 5,000 s for every man, woman and said that up to now about 99 percent of all hazardous waste in Texas has been disposed of "on-site.

The term on-site includes waste materials that are buried in landfills, placed in surface impoundments or injected into deep wells.

The report noted that contamination from waste disposal had been found in several locations.

"Groundwater contamination is now being found at dozens of currently operating, regulated waste disposal facilities in Texas," the report said.

The TDA report said the alternatives include waste volume reduction measures, recycling and treatment and destruction measures.

Hightower said the Legislature already has made a move toward improved disposal of wastes by the passage in 1985 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act.

"But while it's encouraging that both federal and state policies are to move away from land disposal toward alternatives, in Texas we still have no program to implement this urgently needed transition," High-tower said.

"Our job is to convince those persons manufacturing, shipping and disposing of the hazardous waste materials (that) it's in their best interests to work with government in leading the way to these alternatives," Hightower said.
