Lady Ags nip Georgia State to take seventh in tourney

Freshman guard Lisa Herner canned two free throws with 10 seconds remaining to lead the Texas A&M Lady Aggie basketball team to its first victory of the season with a 69-68 win Sunday over Georgia State.

Lisa Herner

It was the third and final game for the Lady Aggies in the Southern Invitational Tournament in Atlanta as they picked up seventh place with the win. The Lady Aggies dropped decisions to South Alabama in Friday's opening round and to Grambling in double overtime Saturday.

Sophomore guard Donna Roper led the Lady Aggies with 18 points Sunday. She also had a team-high seven rebounds and five assists in the contest. Center Lisa Jordan added 15 points and forward Paula Crutcher put in 11 for the Lady Aggies.

A&M also received help off the bench from Nette Garrett, who had five steals in the game.

"It's nice to get that first win," A&M Coach Lynn Hickey said. She added that the weekend was tough on the players off the court because their luggage was lost and they had to change motels to find nicer accommodations in a better section of town.

"Our problem has been we haven't been playing with confidence," Hickey said. "We pulled together today and pulled off a tight one."

Hickey also said she was disappointed with the officiating for the tournament. "We've been ripped off in all three games," she said.

In A&M's two previous games:

The Lady Aggies were outshot and outrebounded by the Lady Jaguars as they dropped their season opener in Friday's first round of the tournament.

A&M shot just 37 percent from the floor (23 of 62 shots) and South Alabama used a 50-35 rebounding advantage to tame the Lady Aggies. For A&M, forwards Evelyn Sanders and Crutcher each scored 16 points, while Roper pitched in 10. South Alabama, led by guard Debra Adams' 16 points, had four players in double figures.

Grambling 92, A&M 90 (2OT)

Despite holding a 41-28 lead at one time, the Lady Aggies couldn't hold off All-America candidate Paula Crutcher and Grambling as the double overtime Saturday.

Currie scored 21 of her 31 points in the second half of regulation while teammate LeChandra Ladd scored 19 of her 28 points in the second half to keep the game within reach.

A&M held the lead until the 11th minute and eight seconds were left in the second half as Currie scored to put Grambling up 69-68. M. Smith hit the game winner as A&M's Rosalind Brown turned the ball over with 10 seconds left—32nd turnover by the Lady Aggies in the game.

The Lady Aggies also were plagued by fouls as Crutcher, Sanders, Jordan and Tamara Johnson fouled out of the game. Leading Lady Aggie in scoring was Roper with a career-high 25 points. Crutcher had 15, six of which came in the overtime periods.

Arnsparger unsure about future

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Bill Arnsparger, announcing his resignation after leading LSU to a No. 5 rating, the Southeastern Conference championship and a Sugar Bowl berth, kept the mystery going Sunday as he sidestepped questions about his future.

Arnsparger, 59, has led LSU to a 26-7-2 mark in three years, including three bowl berths.

This season, the Tigers — picked for the middle of the SEC pack last August — wound up with a 9-2 record and the conference crown.

Arnsparger has been wooed by the University of Florida for the athletic director's job and has expressed interest in the same post at LSU, which recently became vacant with the pressured resignation of Bob Brodhead.

One thing is for sure, Arnsparger said at his Sunday news conference, "I'm not going to another coaching job."

Heralded for years as the defensive genius for the Miami Dolphins, Arnsparger came to LSU to pick up a program that had almost dropped to the bottom, losing more SEC games than any Tiger team in decades in 1983.

Last summer, as Arnsparger and Brodhead apparently came to log-headers on the football program, the coach went to Florida to interview for the AD job. He came back to say that he had withdrawn his name, and LSU Chancellor James Wharton announced that Arnsparger would have more control over the football program.

Asked Sunday if he is still in the running for the Florida job, Arnsparger said, "I can't answer that."

Will he apply for the LSU job as athletic director?

"That is one of my options," replied Arnsparger.

He declined to say who he favors as his successor, although reports are that he is pushing Mike Archer, the defensive coordinator who joined LSU after being defensive backfield coach of Miami's 1983 national championship squad.

"I hope to be back next year whatever my capacity," Archer said after Saturday's 37-17 victory over Tulane. "If it's head coach, fine. If not, I can accept that."

Also mentioned prominently as a successor have been Tulane's Mack Brown and Southwest Louisiana's Nelson Stokely, who once quarterbacked the Tigers.

Arnsparger, in coaching for 25 years, served as an assistant coach for Tulane, Kentucky, Ohio State and Miami of Ohio before joining the Baltimore Colts as an assistant.

Ag volleyball team gets bid

The Texas A&M volleyball team will travel to Athens, Ga., to face the University of Georgia Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the first round of the NCAA tournament it was announced Sunday.

"We're very pleased to get the bid," A&M Coach Al Givens said. "If we play well as a team, and I underscore 'team,' we should do well."

The Aggies finished the year with a 23-13 record and second behind Texas in the Southwest Conference with a 7-3 mark.

A&M enters the tournament as the fifth seed in the region right behind Georgia. Texas is the No. 1 seed in the region.

A&M beat Georgia earlier in the year in the Oklahoma Tournament at Norman, Okla.

In other games involving teams from the South region, Texas will host Duke, Southwest Texas State will travel to the University of Texas at Arlington, and LSU will host Arizona.

"We felt secure we were going to get a bid," Givens said. "It'll be tough going to their place and playing because there will be a big Georgia crowd on hand, but our team plays well in front of any big crowd."
