Texas Democrats reject proposal for official language

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Dem-ocratic Executive Committee on Tuesday rejected a resolution pushed by a group that wants Texas lawmakers to make English the state's official language.

Ed Martin, executive director of the state Democratic Party, said the official language resolution could be viewed as a "slap in the face" to some Texans of foreign descent. Also Tuesday, the American Ethnic Coalition, whose leader says English must be made the official language to avoid "a tangle of squabbling nationalities," kicked off a petition drive to encourage Texas lawmakers to back their proposal. "America is increasingly pop-ulated by illegal immigrants and other factions who look upon America's English language as a secondary language and who cling to their eth-nicity so strongly as to do both themselves and America a great disser-vice," said Lou Zaeske of Bryan, founder and chairman of the coalition.

California voters in November approved a similar official language proposal.

If approved in Texas, the propo-sal would bar bilingual ballots and bilingual education. Instead of bil-ingual education, the coalition favors intensive English courses for students who speak only another

The State Republican Executive Committee in November backed the official language resolution. But Bill Toney of Nacogdoches, chairman of the coalition's Democratic caucus, said he was "flatly rejected" Tuesday by the Democrats. The SDEC resolution committee approved a counter-resolution that there is no need to adopt an official language.

"There is no threat to the English language," Martin said. "Immigrants have always learned English and de-sire to learn English. We don't need to be doing something to be divisive

The full committee approved the counter-resolution with no discussion and no opposition.

The petitions being circulated by the coalition say "recent policies have unwisely granted recognition to rival languages which threaten to undermine the status of English as the language of the United States and the state of Texas.'

At a Capitol news conference, Zaeske said, "America must never be allowed to become a tangle of squab-bling nationalities divided along ethnic or language lines. "Should this ever happen, America would cease to be the strong, united, secure and prosperous nation it has become. Indeed, it would cease to be a nation at all.
