LET ME DESCRIBE YOU

You are a responsible individual who have a neat car, some prestiges credit cards, pinstriped clothing and a nice home. Your job stinks, your over extended your bored and constantly trying to figure a way out of the rat race. You detest traffic but are in it every day. You have no time to enjoy life, nor enough money to do so, at any rate. And what's worse you may even be between jobs.

LET ME DESCRIBE ME

I'm a 36 year old man. I earned $18,000 last month working less than 30 hours. The rest of the time I basked in the sun and flew my ultralight. My wife and I spent 1 week in Aspen trout fishing and the other 3 just playing with life. 4 months ago I said, "What The Heck" and became a distributor for the hottest Network Marketing Deal in history...

Mets' Darling, Teufel to have day in court

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling and second baseman Tim Teufel will have their day in court today to face charges that they assaulted two Houston police officers.

The charges against Darling, 26, and Teufel, 28, stem from a July 19 incident at Cooter's nightclub in southwest Houston in which the two are accused of fighting with police.

The players and their attorney, Dick DeGuerin of Houston, are scheduled to appear in State District Judge Joe Kegans' court this morning.

Attorneys and prosecutors are prohibited from talking about the upcoming trial because of a gag order issued by the judge last fall. The players have kept mum since their arrests.

Officer D.L. Bristley, working off-

-duty as a security guard, said Teufel was told he was breaking the law but kept going and put up a fight when Bristley tried to stop him.

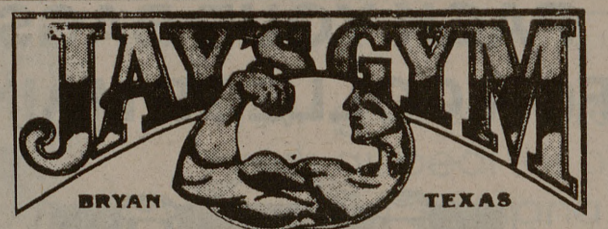

Teufel is accused of hitting Bristley with his elbow and kicking him in the groin. Prosecutors say Darling grabbed another policeman, R.G. Gresham, by the throat.

Mets pitchers Bob Ojeda, 29, and Rick Aguiera, 25, are accused of hindering police apprehension by trying to help Darling and Teufel avoid arrest.

DeGuerin has complained that police overreacted during the July arrests, using excessive force that included striking one of the players with a flashlight.

If convicted, Darling and Teufel face maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and $5,000 in fines.

A hearing for Ojeda and Aguiera is pending. They could receive up to a year in jail and $2,000 in fines, if convicted.

Edberg outlasts Cash, takes Australian Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Stefan Edberg of Sweden held off a gritty comeback by Australian Pat Cash on Sunday to win his second straight men's singles title in the $1.65 million Australian Open Tennis Championships and avenge one of his most painful defeats.

Edberg, 21, earned the second Grand Slam title of his career with a 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 5-7, 6-3 victory.

On Saturday, Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia won her second Australian Open women's singles title and earned the fourth Grand Slam crown of her career, upsetting Martina Navratilova, the world's top-ranked player, 7-5, 7-6 (7-1).

In Sunday's final, Edberg won the first two sets with flawless serving, but then allowed Cash, playing in his first Grand Slam final, to fight his way back into the match.

Edberg, the No. 4 seed, regained his composure in the final set, broke for a 4-2 lead, then won the match despite Cash staving off three match points in the next-to-last game.

The match lasted three hours, 40 minutes, and the victory was sweet revenge for a straight-set loss Edberg had suffered to Cash last month in the opening match of the Davis Cup final, which Australia went on to win 3-2.

"That was the best revenge," Edberg said. "That was the win I wanted."

Cash, 21, was bidding to become the first Australian man to win a Grand Slam event since Mark Edmondson captured the Australian Open in 1976.

Edberg collected $103,875 Sunday, while Cash got $51,938.

The sellout crowd of 11,000 was firmly behind Cash, hoping an Australian would win the final Australian Open to be played on Kooyong's grass courts. The tournament will move to Melbourne's new National Tennis Center next year.

Edberg, however, finished the stronger, helping to dispel his reputation as a player who folds under pressure.

"I gutted it out," he said. "I worked hard on every single point."

Both players agreed the turning point of the match came when Cash led 5-1 in the fourth set, but allowed Edberg back to 5-5.

Although Cash eventually won the set, Edberg's comeback renewed his confidence.

"He had control of the match totally," Edberg said. "He let me off the hook."

Cash concurred. "If I'd won the fourth set 6-1, I would have won the match," he said. "I was on a roll and should have finished him off before he got his momentum back."

Despite staving off three match points two games later, Cash was unable to stop the resurgent Edberg from holding serve for the match and the title.

Azinger wins Phoenix Open after shooting 4-under 67

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Azinger took advantage of a mass collapse by other contenders and nursed home a 4-under-par 67 that provided him with his first professional triumph Sunday in the Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Azinger, playing steadily and confidently in the bright, warm sunshine, took the lead when defending champion Hal Sutton, playing well in front of him, missed a five-foot putt and bogeyed the 18th hole.

"I was putting through my shadow and I just didn't get the putt lined up," Sutton said.

It was just the opening Azinger needed. He brought home the victory with a couple of decisive pars and won with a 268 total, 16 strokes under par on the new TPC course at Scottsdale.

The lanky, 27-year-old Azinger, called "Zinger" by his fellow players, was making his first start of the season. He collected $108,000 from the total purse of $600,000 for his solid performance.

Sutton, Corey Pavin and Doug Tewell all led or shared the lead at one point or another, with a half-dozen others — including PGA champion Bob Tway and Fuzzy Zoeller — within striking distance.

One by one, they all dropped away. With a share of the lead, Tewell bogeyed three consecutive holes starting on the sixth.

Pavin, a winner last week in the Bob Hope Classic, remained in contention until he bogeyed the 16th, then got one in the water on the 17th.

Zoeller and Tway simply couldn't make up the ground necessary. They needed a mistake by Azinger to have a chance.

And he didn't make any.

Spurs' acquisition of Berry proving worthwhile recently

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Walter Berry joined the San Antonio Spurs out of shape and with a lot to learn.

But Berry has been getting lots of playing time recently and Coach Bobby Weiss is happy with the results.

"Unless I'm crazy, I'd have to be pleased with Berry," Weiss said Saturday night after the Spurs rallied to beat the New York Knicks 108-101.

"He's ahead of where I expected him to be," Weiss said.

Berry, a 6-foot-8 forward who has been averaging 19 points per game in his last eight games, was Portland's first-round draft pick last June, the 14th player chosen overall in the NBA draft. He was acquired Dec. 18 in a trade for 7-foot rookie Kevin Duckworth.

Saturday night, Berry, last season's College Player of the Year at St. John's, scored 19 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, helping the struggling Spurs improve their record to 12-29.

"I think I'm coming along real well," said Berry, who has started the last four of the 15 games he has played with San Antonio.

Last season, Berry set the St. John's single-season scoring record with 828 points, won the John Wooden Award and the Adolph Rupp Trophy, and was named an All-America.

Berry's addition to the Spurs has given the team a lift, Weiss said.

"When Walter got here, I told him there was no pressure on him. I didn't expect any real production from him until the last quarter of the season," Weiss said.

"I felt he was way behind. He was out of shape, didn't know the offense. It was a big adjustment," Weiss said. "About 10 to 12 days after we got him, he started being productive."

Berry also has pleased Spurs management.

"He has contributed a lot more than people expected him to contribute," club president Angelo Drossos said Sunday. "We knew he had the talent. But there were some questions in some people's minds, not our minds, as to his attitude and intensity. So far, he has shown he is the type of player you need to build a franchise."

Berry joined two other first-round draft picks on the Spurs, guards Johnny Dawkins of Duke and Anthony Jones from Nevada-Las Vegas.
