Oil refineries finish 1986 with profit

DALLAS (AP) — Texas crude oil refineries recovered from a terrible first-quarter start and finished 1986 with an average profit margin of 36 cents per barrel, an international petroleum consulting firm says.

The average Gulf Coast refinery enjoyed a strong second quarter but had to cope with falling wholesale prices for refined products in the first quarter that produced an average net loss of 36 cents per barrel, a Purvin & Gertz analyst said.

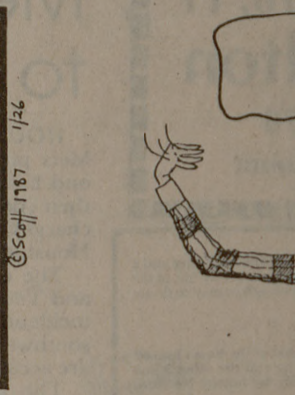

Robert Hermes said that most refineries suffered losses from inventory write-downs in the first quarter.

"Because of the great amount of uncertainty and volatility, refinery runs were relatively low," he said, noting that the average operating capacity dropped to around 78 percent in the first quarter.

But after the fall in crude prices that occurred in the first quarter, demand for petroleum products picked up strongly, Hermes said.

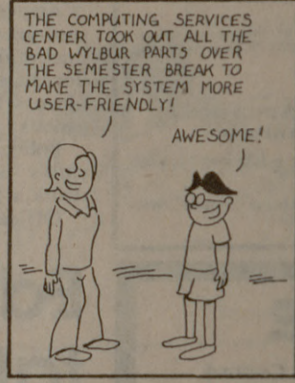

The increase in demand and the low crude price led to a jump in the average operating margin to $1.66 per barrel in the second quarter.

Cardinal blames reform failure for massacre

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Cardinal Jaime L. Sin blamed government failures in land reform Sunday for the deaths of 12 demonstrators, and leftists readied a march by tens of thousands of protesters to express anger over the shootings.

Teodoro Benigno, spokesman for President Corazon Aquino, said it was her 54th birthday Sunday and she spent the day with her family. He said she was "very concerned, as any president should be," about the planned march on Monday.

Bayan, the nation's largest leftist organization, said students, peasants, professionals and others would march from several rallying points toward Malacanang presidential palace. Organizers threatened "more decisive action" if troops again opened fire.

The crisis comes right before a Feb. 2 plebiscite on a new constitution, which is regarded as a vote of confidence in Aquino's stewardship.

About 10,000 peasants and supporters of their demands for land reform marched toward Aquino's office Thursday. At Mendiola bridge near the palace, they forced a line of police to retreat. Marines behind the police fired on the protesters, killing 12 and wounding 94.

Both left and right-wing groups condemned the "Mendiola massacre," the bloodiest street clash of Aquino's presidency.

Aquino named a commission to investigate the incident and promised justice for victims and their families.

Sin, the Roman Catholic bishop of Manila, referred to the killings Sunday at Manila. The cardinal played a key role in bringing Aquino to power in January, and on Sunday he urged her to act urgently on land reform.

Aquino has said land reform is a major goal of her government, but she has proceeded slowly on it, however, since taking office in August after a 20-year uprising ended the 20-year reign of Ferdinand E. Marcos.

State records show that the Texas Water Commission has long considered the landfill to be inadequately monitored because only one shallow monitoring well was built in the vicinity of the landfill.

And Environmental Protection Agency records show that in June 1984, a field inspection team contracted by the EPA tried to draw a sample from the well but were unable to remove the well cap.

The EPA tests determined that small concentrations of PCBs, less than 10 parts per million, were present in landfill and pond soil samples.

On the basis of this test, EPA press officer Karen Brown said, the EPA dropped the school from consideration for the federal Superfund program.

PCB concentrations must be greater than 50 parts per million to be considered for the Superfund program, she said.

Kate Arthur, a Texas Water Commission official, said the state only requires that A&M build the monitoring wells.

"No one is requiring them to put the monitoring wells in," Arthur said. "They (A&M) see if there could possibly be something else missing and they want to put the wells to rest once and for all."
