Mets' players get 1-year probation

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling and infielder Tim Teufel pleaded no contest Monday to reduced misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest stemming from an altercation with off-duty Houston police officers outside a nightclub last summer.

Misdemeanor charges against two other Mets baseball players, pitchers Bob Ojeda and Rick Aguilera, were dismissed as part of the plea bargain arrangement, reached after nearly 3½ hours of discussions Monday in a Harris County court.

Darling, 26, and Teufel, 28, were fined $200 each and placed on one-year probation. If both the players successfully complete their probation period, their records will be cleared.

"I'm not unhappy I had to plead out. I'm happy that it's all over and don't have to worry about it anymore," Darling said outside the courthouse. "It wasn't fair to my teammates or the whole organization for all this to be happening. I'm glad it's over and the whole organization can concentrate on baseball."

"I haven't really been able to get mentally ready for spring training because of all this stuff going on now. Now, I can concentrate on baseball."

Darling said he was unaware about the plea bargaining until Monday morning.

Terms of the probation for Teufel and Darling were not released. The two, accompanied by their wives and attorneys, met with probation officers following a brief court appearance before State District Judge Joe Kegans.

The judge did not lift a gag order imposed in the case for attorneys, so the two police officers involved in the case could not comment.

The four players were arrested July 19 following a confrontation with off-duty police at Cooter's nightclub. Police said that the incident began when Teufel left the nightclub's premises with an alcoholic drink, a violation of state law.

Ojeda, 29, and Aguilera, 25, were arrested and charged with hindering police apprehension, a misdemeanor, by trying to help Darling and Teufel avoid arrest. Darling and Teufel were originally charged with felony assault.

An aggravated assault charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $5,000 in fines. The misdemeanor charge carries a maximum penalty of up to a year in jail and $2,000 in fines.

Assistant District Attorney Barbara Cudros, who was to prosecute the charges against Ojeda and Aguilera, said the dropped charges were "part of the agreement in the plea bargain."

She said the disposition of the case was left to another district attorney, Mike Anderson, who was handling the felony matter.

When asked if he would go back to Cooter's, Darling said, "No, never again. I'm watching a lot of TV in Houston from now on."

Abdul-Jabbar chosen for NBA All-Star game

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers and six other players have been selected by Western Conference coaches to compete in the NBA All-Star Game on Feb. 8 in Seattle, the league announced Monday.

Also selected by the coaches were center Joe Barry Carroll of Golden State, forwards Mark Aguirre of Dallas and Alex English of Denver, and guards Rolando Blackman of Dallas, Walter Davis of Phoenix and Eric "Sleepy" Floyd of Golden State. They will join the Western Conference starters chosen by fans in

All-Star voting — center Akeem Olajuwon of Houston, forwards Ralph Sampson of Houston and James Worthy of the Lakers, and guards Earvin "Magic" Johnson of the Lakers and Alvin Robertson of San Antonio.

It will be a record 16th All-Star appearance for Abdul-Jabbar, the NBA's all-time leading scorer. Wilt Chamberlain, Bob Cousy and John Havlicek each played in 13 NBA All-Star Games.

Simms' career changed after playing backup QB

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Call it the turning point of Phil Simms' career.

And no, it didn't happen Sunday in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena with a record-setting passing performance that carried the New York Giants to a 39-20 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos.

It happened three years earlier, when Scott Brunner beat him out for the starting quarterback job with the New York Giants, Simms said Monday at a post Super Bowl news conference.

"My biggest doubts were was I ever going to play as well as I thought I could," Simms said. "I always thought I could play well, but I never was doing it. I was beginning to wonder. It was never working out."

Injuries had kept him on the sidelines more often than not in his first four seasons, but in 1983, it was Brunner. And when Simms finally did get in, he fractured a thumb.

The Giants eventually went 3-12-1 with Simms missing 14 games.

"It was probably the turning point in my career because I don't know if I could have done anything," Simms said. "It was a terrible year. Everything went wrong, and you can't blame the quarterback or anybody. It was a total team effort and we failed."

"I probably was lucky not winning the job, because at least I didn't play myself out of position," the former No. 1 draft pick said. "That's what Scott did. He played himself off the team. If I would have been the starting quarterback I might have done the same thing."

In 1984, Simms was named the No. 1 quarterback and the Giants now have gone to three straight playoffs. Much of that, Simms credits to better players and a radical change in the offensive philosophy.

"I was working out at the stadium that spring and he (Coach Bill Parcells) told me to work on nothing but throwing 20-yard in cuts and 20-yard out cuts. That's Ron Erhardt's philosophy, and I think it's the perfect offense for me right now."

On Sunday, it worked to perfection against the Broncos. Simms hit 22 of 25 passes for 268 yards and three touchdowns and guided the New York offense to 30 second-half points.

Baylor upsets UH by five

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor center Darryl Middleton scored 25 points and guard Michael Williams followed with 24 as the Bears downed Houston 67-62 in a Southwest Conference game Monday night.

Baylor improved to 10-7 overall and 5-2 in the conference after winning four of its last five games. Houston fell to 11-6 and 4-3 after losing three of its last four.

Rickie Winslow led Houston with 21 points and 15 rebounds.

The 6-foot-2 Williams blocked a shot, scored, then stole a pass and started a Baylor surge for a 60-50 advantage with two minutes left in the game. Baylor had opened the second half on an 11-6 tear to take a 37-34 lead on six points from Williams. The guard had 16 points in the second half.

Winslow had 11 of Houston's first 15 points.
