A&M's vice president of operations to retire after 27 years at University

By Daniel A. La Bry
Staff Writer

The saying "once an Aggie always an Aggie" is a good description of Charles R. "Chuck" Cargill, Texas A&M's vice president of operations, who will leave A&M after his retirement on Jan. 31.

Cargill has served A&M in a variety of positions for the past 27 years. Cargill's history as an Aggie goes back to his days as a student in the Corps of Cadets.

A member of the Class of '53 who earned a master's degree from A&M in 1967, Cargill says he looks forward to the adventures awaiting him, but will hate to leave the University and the multitude of friends he has made.

"I think the association and the people I've met are really A&M as far as I'm concerned," Cargill says. "The buildings and the campus are beautiful, but I think you can take the people and put them down almost anywhere else and you'd have Texas A&M."

Cargill says he will remain in close contact with the University since he and his wife will continue living in Bryan, although he has a busy post-retirement schedule planned.

After his retirement, Cargill will work as the new executive vice president for military liaison at the Fort Hood National Bank in Killeen, and also will serve as a major general in the Air Force Reserve.

He will work as the mobilization assistant to the commander of Air Training Command at Randolph Air Force Base in Texas.

Cargill's history has been dotted with military experience ever since he received a U.S. Air Force commission in 1953.

He served on active duty with the Air Force until 1956 and has continued to serve on reserve duty with the Air Force ever since.

Texas A&M President Frank E. Vandiver, in a statement issued by the University News Service, says, "Gen. Cargill has given Texas A&M long, loyal and distinguished service, and at the same time has served his country in such a commendable manner that he is one of the few men to rise to flag rank under the citizen-soldier concept incorporated into the nation's military reserve program."

Cargill returned to Texas A&M in 1962 as the tactical officer for the Corps of Cadets, where he acted as a counselor and enforced discipline.

His next position came in 1963 when he became a research economist in charge of the market research section of the Industrial Economics Research Division at A&M. In 1965, he became general manager of the University Exchange Store — now the Texas A&M Bookstore.

After serving as general manager for eight years, Cargill became manager of the University Center Complex in 1973, where he was responsible for the operation and upkeep of the complex, which includes the Memorial Student Center, Rudder Tower, Rudder Theater, Rudder Forum and Rudder Auditorium.

After becoming director of the Department of Business Services in 1978, Cargill's responsibilities were increased to include all auxiliary enterprises on the campus.

He became the chief financial adviser for the president of the University when he was named associate vice president for business affairs in 1981.

Charles R. "Chuck" Cargill

Not quite two years ago, Cargill was named to his present position as vice president of operations. In that post, Cargill was responsible for the department's security and traffic, education services, physical facilities, ground maintenance, and the University's airport operation.

Cargill will be honored at a retirement reception from 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 29.

Sunset Advisory Commission OKs TDC recommendations

AUSTIN (AP) — The Sunset Advisory Commission voted 7-0 Monday to shorten parole eligibility time for some inmates but cut back on "good conduct time."

Commission recommendations would allow the governor to appoint the state prison board chairman.

Proposals in the commission's proposed 78-page bill also would give the Texas Department of Corrections authority to contract with private firms to construct, operate and manage prison facilities.

The firm, however, would have no authority over when inmates could be released on furlough, parole, or for completion of sentence.

Karl Spock, senior staff analyst, called the commission's attention to recommendations that could affect the prison population, which has approached the legal saturation point of 95 percent in recent weeks.

Spock said under the commission's recommendations the maximum amount of credit for good conduct time would drop from 60 days for 30 days served to 45 days.

The proposed bill specifies that an inmate could get good time for participating in a literacy program either as a tutor or pupil.

Also, certain prisoners would be eligible for parole after serving one-fourth of the maximum sentence or 15 years, whichever is less, instead of one-third of the sentence, or 20 years.

Mandatory release for inmates convicted of violent crimes such as murder, sexual assault and aggravated kidnapping would be abolished.

The law now provides that prisoners shall be released to mandatory supervision when the "calendar time" a prisoner has served "plus any accrued good conduct time equal the maximum term to which he was sentenced."

Other recommendations by the commission, in extending the life of the Texas Board of Corrections to 1999, would:

- Authorize the TDC to establish a claim and lien against the estate of an inmate who dies while in prison to pay for the cost of the inmate's confinement.

- Hold back $100 of the inmate's $200 discharge money until the inmate reports to his or her parole officer.

- Make inmates liable for "intentional or negligent damage to property belonging to the state."

Bullock: Rudder may cost state $100 million

AUSTIN (AP) — State Auditor Bob Bullock said a recent state district court ruling in Austin could cost the state more than $100 million in franchise taxes.

Bullock said the ruling last week that Sun Refining Marketing and Sun Pipeline did not have to include franchise accounts in its state franchise tax calculations.

"Although we're going to appeal the case, I'm adding more than $100 million as a contingency in the revenue state officials."

LET ME DESCRIBE YOU

You are a responsible individual who have a neat car, some prestiges credit cards, a pinstriped suit, a nice home. Your job stinks, your over extended work schedule and constantly trying to figure out how to pay your rat race. You detest traffic but are in it every day. You have no time to enjoy life, nor enough money at any rate. And what's worse you may even be between jobs.

LET ME DESCRIBE ME

I'm a 36 year old man. I earned $18,000 last month working less than 30 hours. The rest of the month I was in the sun and flew my ultra-light. My wife and I spent 1 week in Aspen trout fishing and then playing with life. 4 months ago I said, "What The Heck" and became a distributor for the best Marketing Deal in history...
