Ponies stampede Aggies

From Staff and Wire Reports
 DALLAS — Guard Kato Armstrong keyed a 12-0 run midway through the second half as Southern Methodist stamped to an 86-68 Southwest Conference victory over Texas A&M Thursday night.
 SMU improved its records to 11-10 for the season and 3-7 in the SWC. Texas A&M fell to 12-8 and 4-5.
 Armstrong scored eight of his 18 points as SMU broke a tie at 44 and built a 56-44 lead that the Aggies never overcame. Terry Williams and Carlton McKinney each scored a game-high 20 points for the Mustangs.
 Texas A&M guard Darryl McDonald, making his first start, led the Aggies with 18 points. Todd Holloway chipped in 17 points for the Aggies.

 SMU shot 61 percent from the field, compared to only 42 percent for the Aggies, who also were out-rebounded 40-33 before 4,628 fans in Moody Coliseum.
 The Aggies played without starting forward John Trezvant, who missed the game with a case of the chicken pox. Trezvant is expected to miss the next three contests.
 A&M defeated Southern Methodist 61-59 the first time the two teams met this season.
 The Aggies were frustrated trying to hit three-point shots over the tough SMU zone defense, making only three of 14 attempts.
 "This victory is a big lift for us," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss. "We lost some close ones early, but our guys have hung on and it's great to see them experiencing some success after the bad times."

 "Kato did a good job of penetrating and kicking off. For a sophomore guard, Kato is doing very well. I thought the Aggies missed Trezvant. He hit a lot of shots against us in College Station. They are a different team without him."
 Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said, "Our guys played hard but we got tired out there. We made a little run at them to open the second half but it took a lot out of our guys."
 It was Texas A&M's fourth consecutive loss. The Aggies return home to G. Rollie White Coliseum for a 2 p.m. game Sunday with league-leading TCU.

Lady Aggies succumb to SMU pressure 90-78

From Staff and Wire Reports
 The Texas A&M Lady Aggies fell to 3-6 in the Southwest Conference after losing to the SMU Mustangs 90-78 Thursday night at Moody Coliseum in Dallas.
 A&M Coach Lynn Hickey said the pressure defense of the Mustangs caused many problems for the struggling Lady Aggies.
 "We couldn't handle the press," Hickey said. "Our two young guards made some mistakes. And when you can't see the floor, that makes them (SMU) even more effective."

Forward Paula Crutcher led A&M in scoring with 18 points, while four other Lady Aggies scored in double figures.
 Forward Evelyn Sanders poured in 16; guard Rosalind Brown and guard Traci Thomas each scored 11; and Veronda Roundtree added 10 points.
 Hickey said the Aggies were plagued by the lack of rebounding in the game.
 The Lady Aggies return to G. Rollie White Coliseum on Saturday to take on the TCU Horned Frogs.

Sundvold's 25 paces Spurs to victory

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jon Sundvold scored 25 points to lead the San Antonio Spurs to their seventh consecutive victory, 117-111 over the Seattle SuperSonics in the NBA on Thursday night.
 San Antonio led by as many as 24 points in the third period, only to see it cut to 111-109 with 2:25 left in the game.

Spurs reserve forward Mike Mitchell pulled down a rebound off a missed shot by Seattle's Tom Chambers with 1:45 left and scored at the 1:22 mark.
 Mitchell scored 18 points for the game after not playing in the last five games.
 San Antonio had seven players in double figures, including all five starters. The Spurs have not won seven in a row since November 1981.
 Seattle was led by forward Xavier McDaniel with 26 points and Maurice Lucas with 22.

The Spurs led 70-51 at halftime as they dominated the boards in both halves and held a 48-38 margin in rebounds at the end of the game.
 David Greenwood had his second straight 18-rebound performance to go with 20 points for San Antonio.
 "I'm very proud of Mitch for the way he handled the whole situation," Spurs Coach Bob Weiss said, referring to the forward's five-game lay-off. "Mitch has been really working hard. Give him a whole lot of credit."

On Sundvold's performance, Weiss said, "Sundvold is really heady and has been playing fantastic. He really has turned into a good leader."
 The guard out of Missouri connected on 11 of 17 from the floor.
 "Sundvold really had it going to-night," Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said. "He was throwing them in off one leg."
 Greenwood said, "We've faced a lot of adversity this season and the secret has been to keep playing hard and keep the adversity to a minimum."

Frazier, Barry among inductees into pro basketball Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — After two years of narrow misses, former New York Knick guard Walt Frazier was one of five former players named to the Basketball Hall of Fame Thursday.
 Also elected in this week's balloting were Rick Barry, Pete Maravich, former University of Washington star Bob Houbregs, and Bobby Wanzer, who played with the Rochester Royals during professional basketball's early days.
 They will join the four teams and 156 players, coaches and contributors already in the Hall of Fame during May 5 induction ceremonies.
 Frazier, the playmaker and defensive star, is the fifth player from the New York Knicks 1973 championship team, plus Coach Red Holzman and President Ned Irish, to be elected to the Hall of Fame. Inducted earlier were front-court stars Bill Bradley, Dave DeBusschere, Willis Reed and Jerry Lucas.
 His teammate, Earl Monroe, was among 11 persons selected by a screening committee, but failed to get the 18 votes needed for election by the 24-member Honors Committee.

 Frazier, who lives in his native Atlanta, joined the Knicks in 1967 after playing college ball at Division II Southern Illinois. He was named to six all-star and seven all-defensive teams during his 13 years with the Knicks and Cleveland. During the 1973 championship game he had 36 points, 19 assists and seven rebounds.
 Barry was named to league all-star teams 10 times during a 14-year professional career that included four years in the American Basketball Association with Oakland, Washington and New York and 10 years in the National Basketball Association with Golden State and Houston.
 Maravich was the nation's top collegiate scorer for three years at Louisiana State, and still holds the NCAA career scoring record of 3,667 points in 83 games, and points scored in one season, 1,381 in 1969, when he averaged 44.2 points a game.

 He was also named to four all-star teams during his 10-year professional career, which included stints at Atlanta, New Orleans, Utah and Boston, and led the NBA in scoring in 1977.
 Houbregs, a three-time All-American, was the University of Washington's top gun in 1953, when the Huskies finished third in the NCAA tournament, scoring 49 points against Idaho, 45 against Seattle and 42 against Louisiana State. He played pro ball for the Pistons, both in Fort Wayne and Detroit, the Baltimore Bullets and briefly in Boston and Milwaukee.
 Before becoming general sales manager for Converse Inc., Houbregs served as general manager of the Seattle SuperSonics from 1970-1973.
 Wanzer, 66, played for the Royals for 10 years prior to his retirement in 1957. In 1962, he was named the first basketball coach at St. John Fisher College in Rochester and has been there ever since.

Rockets slip by Warriors

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Akeem Olajuwon responded to the loss of 7-4 forward Ralph Sampson with 21 points, 11 rebounds and nine blocked shots to lead the Rockets to a 120-110 NBA victory over Golden State Thursday night.
 Sampson suffered a knee injury in Tuesday's night's loss to Denver and underwent arthroscopic surgery Thursday. He'll miss at least six weeks of the season.
 The Rockets took the lead from the opening basket and never trailed in the game. They used a pair of 8-0 spurts in the third quarter and expanded a 68-55 halftime lead to 95-

77 at the start of the fourth quarter.
 Olajuwon left the game with 8:55 to go after twisting his ankle under the Warriors' basket, but he returned with 5:27 left when Jim Petersen drew his fifth foul.
 Petersen, who started in Sampson's forward spot, finished with 12 points and Steve Harris had a season-high 20 points. Houston's Rodney McCray hit 10 first-quarter points and Steve Harris came off the bench to score 14 points in the first half.
 Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 20 points and Sleepy Floyd added 16.

Sampson may not miss year

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston forward Ralph Sampson underwent arthroscopic surgery on a knee injury Thursday and could rejoin the team before the end of the season, Rockets officials said.
 Team spokesman Jim Foley said the surgery was performed in Charlottesville, Va., by Dr. Frank McCue to remove cartilage damaged in Tuesday night's 107-105 loss to Denver.
 The Rockets gave no timetable for Sampson's return but anticipate he'll return this season.

Sampson slipped on the Summit floor in the first quarter of Tuesday's game while trying to get into defensive position. He returned briefly in the second quarter but had to be helped from the court.
 Sampson said Wednesday he thought he'd be out for the season after Rockets team doctor Charles Baker recommended he choose an operation that would have fused the damaged cartilage, which would have meant a much longer recuperation period than with the arthroscopic surgery.
