Early parole bill heads for House after Senate OK

AUSTIN (AP) — The first major bill of the 1987 Legislature to clear the Senate — a proposal that could make 10,000 low-risk prison inmates eligible for early parole — could reach the House floor this week, Speaker Gib Lewis said.

The bill by Sen. Bob McFarland was approved by the Senate 25-3 on Wednesday and was referred Thursday to the House Corrections Committee.

Gov. Bill Clements has put an emergency stamp on the proposal, which was filed in response to a federal court contempt order that could cost the state $860,000 a day in fines, beginning April 1, if prison overcrowding is not eased.

Each time the number of inmates surpasses a 95-percent capacity limit, the doors are closed.

Most recently, on Wednesday, the Texas Department of Corrections' 26 units were closed when the population reached 38,472, or 95.21 percent of capacity — 86 inmates over the cap.

McFarland's bill provides that the state attorney general would have to certify that the prison system was over the legal capacity. The governor then would have to declare an emergency before the Board of Pardons and Paroles could order early releases on parole.

The bill, if feasible, would require any inmate getting an early release to make financial restitution for his crime.

Also, the inmate would have to do at least 10 hours a week of community service, as directed by local officials.

McFarland, R-Arlington, said he hoped to have ready this week a prison financing bill totaling approximately $25 million to make corrections that federal courts have ordered.

Although two House chairmen had predicted the 70th Legislature to evolve into a battle between Clements and the Senate over certain issues, including possible new taxes, Lewis said, "I hope there is no real battle. I hope we all work together and get this thing solved, because it's a big problem, and we just need to solve it."

C.A.R.E. program to teach about rape

By Daniel A. La Bry
Staff Writer

A sexual assault awareness program — "Create Attitudes for a Rape-free Environment" — will be held at Texas A&M today through Wednesday. The program is sponsored by the Department of Student Affairs and several campus and community organizations.

The highlight of the program will be a keynote address by Dr. Mark Stevens, a nationally recognized expert on rape and sexual assault from the University of Southern California. The address will be given at 5 p.m. Tuesday in 401 Rudder. Stevens will discuss ideas on how to educate students and staff on the issues of rape and sexual assault in a university setting.

Other scheduled C.A.R.E. activities include:

Today
 • "Hall Feud," a take-off of "Family Feud," will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Krueger lounge and the Commons area. The game will match five-member teams from different halls against each other in a duel of questions relating to Aggies and dating. For reservations call 845-2255.

Tuesday
 • "Men Can Stop Rape" is a brown-bag lunch, for-men-only session from noon to 2 p.m. in 401 Rudder. During the session, participants will be encouraged to explore their own socialization, to personalize the emotional rape experience for women and to discuss strategies for stopping rape.

• "Rape on Our Campus: How Can You Help?" is the keynote address designed for faculty and staff from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in 401 Rudder. This session will deal with responding to a rape crisis, helping the survivor cope and educating people on how to prevent rape from occurring.

• "Date Rape: I Heard You Say No But I Thought You Meant Maybe" is a session designed to explore how society has been socialized to think and feel about sexuality from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. in 201 MSC. Ideas for initiating and declining sexual invitations also will be presented.

Wednesday
 • "Date Rape: Is It Really Rape?" is a skit on date rape presented by the Brazos County Rape Crisis Center from noon to 1 p.m. at the Lawrence Sullivan Ross statue (212 MSC if it rains). A discussion will be held on methods of preventing and reporting rape.

• "Stopping a Rapist: A Self Defense Demonstration" is a session from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. in 212 MSC designed to give hands-on experience in defending yourself against an attacker.

• "Take Back the Night Rally" is a walking tour of the dark spots on campus from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m., starting in 212 MSC. Facts on personal safety and A&M crime statistics will be given during the tour.

Paper: Clement's budget hides $500 million in cuts

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' plan to balance the state budget includes more than $500 million in hidden cuts, the Houston Chronicle reported Sunday.

Clements' budget would cut $3.72 million in state scholarships at Texas' institutions of higher learning, the newspaper said.

The plan also calls for elimination of state funding for the Thurgood Marshall School of Law at Texas Southern University, the McDonald Observatory and Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas and the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston State University.

The cuts were not obvious in the 53-page policy budget Clements gave the Legislature last week.

The governor proposed to balance the state's budget by selling state land he valued at $315.5 million to the state trust funds.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the properties are not worth that much in the depressed real estate market and called it poor public policy to sell off state land to pay for the operation of state government.

Triple murderer to be sentenced

DALLAS (AP) — A jury returns Monday to determine whether a man convicted of killing three women with a hatchet should be sentenced to death.

David Martin Long, 33, was convicted Saturday of capital murder in the deaths of Donna Sue Jester, 38; her adoptive mother, Dalpha Jester, 62; and a 20-year-old drifter, Laura Lee Owens, at the Lancaster home on Sept. 27.

Long had testified that his Pentecostal religion led him to believe that people can become "demon-possessed" rather than mentally ill, and had shouted to jurors earlier in the week that he was guilty.

He also told State District Judge Larry W. Baraka that he wanted to receive the death penalty.

"I'm guilty as hell," Long jumped up and shouted at one point during the trial.

Long's attorneys had tried to build a case showing that insanity prompted Long to kill the three women.

"I never wanted this insanity defense," Long said Friday.

A psychologist and psychiatrist testified that Long is not insane, but the psychologist said Long probably experienced a psychotic episode at the time he killed the women.
