Lovers' roles lack sparks, credibility in Valentine play

By Karl Pallmeyer
Reviewer

"Two households, both alike in dignity, In fair Verona, where we lay our scene, From ancient grudge break to new mutiny, Where civil blood makes civil hand unclean. From forth the fatal loins of these two foes A pair of star-cross'd lovers take their life; Whose misadventur'd piteous overthrows Doth with their death bury their parents' strife."

Those lines from the prologue of William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" provide the best summary of his most famous tragic play. About 1,800 people attended the National Shakespeare Company's production of that play Saturday night in Rudder Auditorium. The Valentine's Day performance was sponsored by MSC Town Hall Broadway.

The National Shakespeare Company, a 14-member traveling group dedicated to bringing Shakespeare's plays to all parts of the country, presented a simple, straightforward interpretation of the play. The acting was clear and competent, but there was no fire in the performance, except in some of the play's more humorous parts.

The title roles were performed by Christopher Todd and Carol Dearman. Both were convincing in their roles as lovers — as long as they were not together. When Romeo was speaking of his love to others or in soliloquy, his feelings were obvious. When Juliet spoke to her nurse, well-played by Eleanore Tapscott, she captured the spirit of a teen-age girl talking to her best friend about her new boyfriend. Unfortunately, there was no spark between the 'lovers' when they were together.

Lance Spellerberg provided a few good moments in his role as Mercutio, Romeo's best friend. His lines included some of the most humorous and suggestive puns that Shakespeare ever wrote. And in his role as Juliet's cousin, Tybalt, Timothy Stickney clearly showed the deep, baseless hatred between the families of Romeo and Juliet.

Dan Snow gave warmth and consideration to his role as Friar Lawrence. His desire to see the families' feud end and the lovers unite was evident in Snow's performance. Bill Blank, who played Romeo's cousin Benvolio, looked good, but was unable to deliver a line that could be fully understood by the audience.

The best moment of the play was not the famous balcony scene, but the duel between Tybalt and Mercutio. Tybalt is looking for a duel with Romeo, who refuses to fight because he doesn't want to worsen the situation between his family and Juliet's. Mercutio wants to defend Romeo and begins fighting Tybalt. The three-way duel and swordplay was well-choreographed and exciting. Spellerberg was able to deliver Mercutio's final words, a wonderful Shakespearean play on words, with full humor, but without taking away from the seriousness of the scene.

Masked man evades arrest after armored-car holdup

AMARILLO (AP) — Authorities found checks, food stamps and other non-negotiable currency Sunday taken in an armored car robbery. But the evidence yielded no clues about the masked robber's identity.

Police initially estimated that $500,000 was taken in the robbery, but an official of Rochester Armored Express disputed the estimate.

The bandit, brandishing a pistol, approached two guards about 9:10 p.m. Saturday as they were unloading the armored car at the First National Bank of Amarillo.

Police Sgt. Phil Dean said the robber took weapons from two guards, handcuffed them in the back of the armored van and then drove the vehicle to a nearby parking lot.

Dean said witnesses told police the bandit jumped out of the armored vehicle with the money and sped off in a van parked in a nearby alley.

PHI ETA SIGMA SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS

Seniors who plan to enter graduate or professional schools in Fall 1987 and who are members of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society should get in touch with the faculty advisor Dr. Curtis F. Lard in Rm. 113, System Bldg., Phone 845-3712.

National Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society will award nine $2,000 scholarships and thirty $500 scholarships this year on the basis of the student's scholastic record, evidence of creative ability, potential for success in chosen field, and character. Only members of Phi Eta Sigma are eligible for these gift scholarships. National deadline for submitting applications is March 1. Application forms are available from the faculty advisor to the local chapter. Local deadline for applications is February 26, 1987.
