Cheap toys provide new voice, hearing would be a shoo-in. Twice in the past year, this small manufacturer of cheap electronics for children has produced toys with noteworthy applications — giving voice to those who could not speak and aiding the hearing impaired. "We were as surprised as any-body" by the serious uses to which the toys were put, said Scott Spiegel, Nasta's director of sales. It all started when an Omaha

It all started when an Omaha, Neb., man discovered that with the aid of a Transformers Voice Synthesizer — a $10 item that makes a child sound like a robot — he could speak after his cancerous larynx was removed.

Then an 80-year-old Tulsa, Okla., woman found another use for the Super Amplifier, an $8 toy that allows children to don headsets and, with a gun-like receiver, amplify sounds 20 feet away. RENO, Nev. (AP) — Federal workers Wednesday picked up some of the 1,500 birds and 3 million fish that died at a wildlife refuge when the water became a "chemical sink," according to one scientist.

The fish probably were victims of the increasing salinity of their evaporating lake and of natural and manmade poisons, said Dick Navarre, a fish biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Service in Reno. "The only thing the place has ever gotten is man's leftovers," said Ron Anglin, manager of the

Experts: Rheumatic fever still a threat

World Briefs

Dead fish, birds line banks of refuge

BOSTON (AP) — A recent rheumatic fever outbreak of nearly epidemic size shows this once-common illness is still a health threat in the United States, researchers say.

While the disease remains a major worldwide problem, it has nearly disappeared in the United States since World War II. However, a series of regional outbursts hints that the disease could return.

Market at standoff after busy session

NEW YORK (AP) — Buyers and profit-takers slugged it out to a virtual standoff Wednesday in a busy and volatile session in the stock market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about points 18 in the early going and down about 18 at midsession, closed with a .14 gain at a new closing high of 2,237.63.

Japan rebuked for economic inaction

TOKYO (AP) - The chief author of a 1986 report calling for a "historic transformation" of Ja-pan's economy chastised his countrymen Wednesday for doing too little to meet those goals

He also blamed the U.S. budget deficit for trade imbalances.

"I hope the United States takes measures . . . to reduce the fiscal deficit," Haruo Maekawa, former Stillwater National Wildlife Refuge 60 miles east of Reno.

A key problem, he said, is the location at the end of the Carson River, where miners dumped mercury, arsenic and other mining byproducts a century ago and where agricultural pesticides and fertilizer are dumped today.

The problem started just be-fore Christmas with the deaths of 500,000 fish. It escalated earlier this month when 3 million scavenger fish lined the 30-mile shore of the Carson Sink.

Physicians should take strep throat infections more seriously, experts say. Strains of the streptococcal bacteria that cause sore throats also may cause rheumatic fever, which can damage the heart valves.

Rheumatic fever is traditionally a disease of overcrowding and poverty. With improving living conditions and the development of antibiotics, the disease ceased to be a major concern in the United States.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 218.21 million shares, up from Tuesday and the largest total in nearly two weeks.

Analysts said stocks were buffeted Wednesday by computer-program activity and crosswinds of catch-up buying and selling to cash in on the market's recent gains.

governor of the Bank of Japan, said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Maekawa headed a 17-member government advisory group that submitted a report to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone last April calling for a shift from export orientation to greater internal consumption in the Japanese economy.
