Olajuwon keys Rockets past Denver

HOUSTON (AP) — Jim Petersen said the Rockets pulled out the usual welcome mat for Denver Monday night, delivering a 1-2 punch that led Houston to a 124-108 NBA victory.

"We always try to play well against our arch rivals like Denver and Dallas," said Petersen, who scored a career-high 22 points and grabbed nine rebounds. "Anytime we can kick them it's a good night."

Akeem Olajuwon scored 16 of his 31 points in the third quarter when the Rockets took firm control of the game and Petersen hit 10 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter.

"We have that big guy No. 34 (Olajuwon) out there and that's a good start right there," Petersen said.

The Nuggets had trouble brunting Houston's charges, Coach Doug Moe said.

"We missed everything and they hit everything during those streaks they had," Moe said. "We needed to move the ball and we didn't do it. But when things aren't going good things like that happen."

Olajuwon led a 12-0 Houston surge over a 2:55 span of the third quarter that broadened the Rockets' six-point halftime lead to 82-67 with 5:04 remaining in the quarter.

It was Denver's fourth straight loss and its seventh in eight games.

Olajuwon, who also had 14 rebounds, scored Houston's final eight points in the third period for a 92-82 Houston lead going into the final quarter.

Clemens ready to prove himself as 1987 baseball season nears

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Roger Clemens, the 1986 American League Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, donned his Boston Red Sox's uniform for the first time since the World Series Monday, determined "to prove myself again."

"There's no doubt in my mind that I can pitch, but I don't care who you are — you have to prove yourself again," Clemens said after the Red Sox's first workout at Chain O'Lakes Park.

"I'm 0-0 just like everybody else," said the big right-hander, who led the majors with a 24-4 record last season. "I'm a nobody. I have to prove myself again."

Brought along gradually last spring after right shoulder surgery on Aug. 30, 1985, Clemens became a sensation in just his second full year with the Red Sox.

On April 29 in little Fenway Park in Boston, he set a major league record by striking out 20 batters in a 3-1 victory over Seattle. He went on to win his first 14 decisions while pitching the Red Sox to their first pennant in 11 years.

"The first thing I'm going to try to do is be 1-0," Clemens said. "Then, if I finish 5-5 with 15 no decisions and we win all 15, I'll be happy because I'll know I've kept my team in the game."

Clemens, only 24, said his right shoulder recently "tested out stronger than ever" at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center. But, he said, he expects opposing hitters to be gunning for him.

"If I didn't think this will be a very, very tough year, I'd be kidding myself," he said. "This is going to be a hard year."

"If you get Big League-itis, someone is going to sit on your butt."

Clemens said the disappointment of Boston's loss to the New York Mets in the seven-game World Series last fall affected him for "about a week or 10 days."

"Then I started thinking about this year," he said. "We were the sixth different team to win our division last year, so it seems it should be Cleveland's turn this year. It's a challenge for us, and we have to accept that challenge."

Clemens, who ran, participated in calisthenics and threw from the mound for 10 minutes in his first formal practice, said he had been working out at high school field in Tampa about 60 miles from Winter Haven.

He reported on schedule although he is Boston's only unsigned player.

"That doesn't bother me," Clemens said. "I don't care about the numbers. That's Mr. (Alan) Hershdricks' job. He handles things like that for me. He'll be here next week to talk to (General Manager) Lou Gorman."

Clemens reportedly earned slightly more than $300,000, including incentive bonus money, last year, but is ineligible to go to arbitration until next winter.

The Red Sox may renew his contract for just about what they want this year, but Clemens said:

"I think they'll treat me very fair. They know what I can do for them and the way I live. I take a lot of pride in the way kids look up to me."

Added Manager John McNamara:

"Roger Clemens is a very poised young man. He has a very positive attitude — plus a 95 to 97 m.p.h. fastball."

University of New Orleans enters Top 20 for 1st time

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — In just his second season at the University of New Orleans, Coach Benny Dees has combined a giddy-up offense with a gimme-that defense to produce the school's first-ever appearance in college basketball's Top 20.

New Orleans was ranked No. 19 in this week's major college basketball poll, well off the pace set by top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, but still a heady experience for a group of newcomers, who were still learning each others' first names when the season began.

"This feels, probably, better than ever before, because of what we are and where we've come from," Dees said. "I particularly like being in the Top 20 in the last weeks of the season. If we can stay there, it's a great way to finish."

It could help produce the school's first appearance in NCAA tournament play as a major college. New Orleans lost the Division II championship by two points in 1975, the school's last season in the smaller division.

Dees replaced Don Smith as head coach last season, kept three of Smith's players, signed four from Tulane after that school abandoned men's basketball, and added a couple of his own recruits to go 16-12.

This year, he signed the nation's No. 1 junior college prospect, Ledell Eackles, and added center Damon Vance, a transfer from Louisiana State University. New Orleans was 22-3 after a 73-72 victory at Pan American Saturday.

Dees turns Eackles loose off the running game, and he's averaging 24 points a game.

The man-to-man defense comes up with an average of 22 turnovers a game, and an average of just under 17 of those are steals.

Aggies face Razorbacks here tonight

The Texas A&M men's basketball team will try to stay on the winning track when it takes on the Arkansas Razorbacks tonight at 8 p.m. in G. Rolie White Coliseum.

Last Saturday in G. Rolie White Coliseum, Winston Collier scored 30 points and nine rebounds powered the Aggies past Rice 63-60.

A&M comes into the game with a 14-11 record overall and a 6-4 Southwest Conference slate. Arkansas sports a record of 17-11 overall and 7-7 in the SWC. The Razorbacks took an 87-69 decision over the Aggies in the first meeting of the season between the two teams Jan. 26 in Fayetteville, Ark.

The game is being televised by the Raycom Sports Network.
