

Thanks Greenleaf

Your Outpatient Program helped me to stop drinking without leaving work or my family!

"It all started with a few drinks after work. Before I knew it, I was drinking more than I realized. Then I was arrested for a DWI and spent the night in jail. I promised never to put my family through that pain again — so I called Greenleaf."

Jim

Greenleaf's Outpatient Program offered Jim an affordable solution to his drinking problem. Because it was "outpatient" treatment, Jim could continue to work and live with his family. Greenleaf helped Jim overcome his drinking problem and taught him how to better deal with the daily pressures he faced.

In addition, Greenleaf's Family Program helped Jim's entire family better understand his problem.

Greenleaf helped bring Jim's family closer together and the Outpatient Program was covered by his insurance.

Louisville spurns NIT; Crum angry at NCAA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Louisville Cardinals, denied a chance to defend their national basketball title in the NCAA tournament, spurned post-season play Monday by rejecting a National Invitation Tournament bid.

Coach Denny Crum strode onto the playing floor of Crawford Gymnasium to announce the decision on the NIT and denounce the NCAA's move the day before.

"I'd like the NCAA selection committee to be held accountable for their actions. I would like a public response," Crum said.

Stephen F. Austin received the last NIT bid.

Crum said Louisville was asked to play in the NIT, but the players voted only 7-6 in favor of playing.

"The coaches felt if it was not a unanimous decision by the players, we would not be able to do our best," he said.

"A lot of the players need the academic concentration of not going to a tournament, and since we can't go to the NCAA..."

Crum called for "an absolute dead certain formula" for NCAA tournament selection, which he said would have put Louisville ahead of several schools in the final 64.

The Metro Conference's automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament was forfeited Sunday when Memphis State, on probation, defeated Louisville 75-52 for the Metro Tournament title. No conference team received an at-large NCAA bid.

As for the NIT, Crum called it a "great tournament."

"But our feeling was if our school did not feel 100 percent in favor of participating they would not play hard, wouldn't work hard, wouldn't be the representation we would want to be," he said.

It will be the first time in Crum's 16-year tenure at Louisville that the Cardinals have not been in a season tournament.

In what he called "the most generated case," Crum asked the NCAA to explain for "me and thousands of Louisville fans" why they could justify selecting Tennessee.

"Our schedule was almost as difficult as theirs. We also played the road, Indiana, Purdue, Syracuse, UCLA... most of them Top 10 teams, on the road. The most difficult team Middle Tennessee played... was Michigan," he said. "There's no comparison in difficulty of schedules. There's no comparison in leagues."

"Could it possibly be because the commissioner of the OVC, Jim Delaney, is on that selection committee? Or is it just that they did not do their homework? I would like a response from them."

Delaney did not immediately respond. OVC spokesman Joe Yee said he responded earlier to Crum's statements by saying he was only one of eight selection committee members and did not have the power to include or eliminate a team.

As for the NIT, Crum called it a "great tournament."

"But our feeling was if our school did not feel 100 percent in favor of participating they would not play hard, wouldn't work hard, wouldn't be the representation we would want to be," he said.

It will be the first time in Crum's 16-year tenure at Louisville that the Cardinals have not been in a season tournament.

SWC sees NCAA bids as $400,000 surprise

DALLAS (AP) — A year ago, the Southwest Conference figured it would get three invitations to the NCAA Tournament and received one.

This year, the SWC received a $400,000 surprise from the NCAA Selections Committee — three teams in the 64-school field instead of one.

Texas A&M, Texas Christian and Houston received the coveted bids after it was feared there would be only one SWC representative. Each school receives $200,000 for a first-round game, which it must share with its SWC bretheren.

Two weeks ago most SWC coaches were convinced that regular season champion TCU would be the only school to get an invitation. Then the eighth-seeded Texas Aggies came along, upset the Horned Frogs, Texas Tech, and Baylor to win the SWC Post-Season Basketball Classic and earn an automatic bid.

TCU, with 23 victories including road triumphs over LSU and Oklahoma, did indeed get an NCAA bid as the fourth seed in the East Regional. The Horned Frogs will play Marshall at 11:07 a.m. on Thursday.

The Aggies take on Duke at 1:37 p.m. on Thursday in the Midwest Regional first round game in Indianapolis.

The biggest shocker of all was the Houston Cougars, who also were invited to the NCAA tournament. The Cougars had 18 victories but lost to Baylor in the semifinals of the SWC Classic.

It took Washington's loss to UCLA to seal the deal for the Cougars. The Cougars had a road victory over TCU in a triumph over New Orleans, and took on the team, to their credit.

The Cougars meet Kansas at 7:05 p.m. Friday in the first round of the Southeast Regional at Atlanta. Baylor Coach Gene Huelskamp steamed his Bears, who lost to Texas in the Classic finals, didn't get an NCAA invitation. Baylor also had three victories and whipped Houston three times this season.

The Bears received a consolation prize, along with the Arkansas Razorbacks, in the form of a National Invitation Tournament berth.

"It's hard to be happy but we're happy about this," said Huelskamp. "I don't think there is any better for our team. It's been 37 years."

Baylor hasn't been in a basketball playoff game since the 1950 NCAA Tournament in which it reached the Final Four.

The Bears will be at Little Rock at 7:05 p.m. Thursday while Arkansas hosts Arkansas at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Houston Coach Pat Foster said it was a shame Baylor didn't get the NCAA tournament bid.

"I can understand how they might react and I wouldn't want to debate the issue," Foster said. "I was pleased to say the least."

The SWC haven't had three teams in the NCAA tournament since Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Texas Tech made it in 1984-1985.

Robinson unanimous choice for AP All-America squad

NEW YORK (AP) — David Robinson, the 7-foot-1 center who has been responsible for Navy's sudden success over the past three seasons, is the only unanimous selection on the 1986-87 Associated Press college basketball All-America team announced Monday.

Also chosen to the first team were Steve Alford of Indiana, the only repeater; Kenny Smith of North Carolina, Reggie Williams of Georgetown and Danny Manning of Kansas, a junior and the only underclassman.

The team was chosen by a 10-member AP panel of sports writers.

Robinson, an outstanding shooter, rebounder and shot-blocker, led the Midshipmen to the Colonial Athletic Conference title three straight years and into the NCAA playoffs each year. Last year Navy made it into the NCAA final eight, showcasing Robinson, and this season carry a 26-5 record into the tournament.

Robinson, who averaged 59 percent from the field, averaged 27.5 points, 11.8 rebounds and blocked 142 shots — best in the nation — this season. He is the only player in NCAA history to score 2,500 points, grab 1,300 rebounds and shoot 60 percent from the field during his career.

In four seasons, he has scored 2,619 points, grabbed 1,301 rebounds and compiled a 64 percent field-goal percentage.

"I'm the only one who can stop me from scoring," Robinson said this season.

Despite having a two-year naval commitment — reduced from five years because of his height — Robinson is a likely No. 1 draft choice in the NBA draft. He tied his career high with 45 points in a loss to Kentucky this season.

Alford, a four-year starter and third-ranked Indiana's all-time scoring leader with 2,300 points, member of the gold-medal 1984 Olympic team, he led the Hoosiers to a 24-4 record and a share of Big Ten Conference title this season, making 86 3-point goals (51 percent) while averaging 21.8 points.

Overall, the 6-2 guard made 62 percent of his field-goal attempts and 89 percent of his free throws.

The 6-3 Smith, another fourth-year starter, used his quickness to lead North Carolina in scoring with a 16.9 average, run the offense and play a key defensive role.

Smith made 51 percent of his field-goal tries, including 75 3-pointers for 41 percent from long range. He led the team in assists (5.7) and tied backcourt partner Jeff Leach for the team lead in steals with 45.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson calls his fourth-ranked "Reggie and the Little Miracles" adds, "Without Reggie, there would be no miracles."

The 6-7 Williams, the only sophomore on the squad, carried the offensive load in leading Georgetown, 26-10, a share of the Big East Conference regular season championship and the post-season title.

Manning, a versatile performer who played forward, center, guard, led the 20th-ranked Kansas, 23-10, in scoring (23.7) and field goal percentage (62 percent). In the Eight tournament he scored a record 79 points in three games and was named the Most Valuable Player although Kansas lost in the final
