3-pointer may enter high schools in '87

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—High schools across much of the United States will use a 3-point field goal in basketball next season.

Bruce Howard, a federation spokesman, said Thursday that any state athletic association could vote to be exempt from the rule change. But the 3-point goal will be the rule wherever state associations don't take specific action for exemptions.

"The feeling is most states will follow," Howard said.

The federation's basketball rules committee voted at a meeting in Kansas City this week to implement the 3-point goal for boys' and girls' basketball next season.

The basketball rules committee of the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations adopted the same 19-foot, 9-inch distance used nationally in college basketball last season.

"With the growing interest in the 3-point field goal and the success that many states have already enjoyed, the committee believed there was no need to delay the implemention of the play on a nationwide basis," Dick Schindler, editor of the federation's basketball rules and assistant federation director, said Thursday.

The 3-point field goal has been allowed on an optional basis for two years.

The 3-point goal in high school basketball was used in nine states during the 1986-87 season: Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Idaho, Wyoming, Alaska, Montana, Connecticut and Utah. It had previously been approved for use next season in Minnesota, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, the federation said.

"All states that have been using the 3-point field goal have been supportive of the play," Schindler said. "Most think it has made the game better, and the committee believes the 3-point field goal is here to stay at the college level. With some states using the 3-point field goal and others not . . . we've had two different games being played the past two years. The committee wanted uniformity across the country."

Reid's 30 points leads Houston over Portland

HOUSTON (AP)—Rookie Dave Feitl scored nine of his season-high 17 points in the fourth quarter and Robert Reid scored a season-high 30 points to lead the Houston Rockets to a 119-104 victory over the Portland Trailblazers Thursday night.

Houston led by five points going into the fourth quarter, but Feitl tossed in six points in the first 4½ minutes of the period to boost the Rockets to a 101-89 lead.

Portland was never closer than 10 again as the Rockets defeated the Trailblazers for the first time in four meetings this season.

Houston improved its record to 37-34 and Portland dropped to 42-28.

Houston's All-Star forward Ralph Sampson did not play but was in uniform for the first time since undergoing arthroscopic surgery Feb. 5 to remove a torn lateral cartilage in his left knee.

Portland was led by Kiki Vandeweghe with 23.

Neither team led by more than three until Houston scored the final seven points in the first quarter to take a 28-21 advantage.

Houston increased its lead to 43-30 at 8:34 in the second quarter and led 49-34 until Portland went on a 17-4 run to cut the Rockets' lead to 53-51.

Reid took charge for Houston in the fourth quarter, scoring 21 points to give the Rockets their 89-84 advantage going into the fourth quarter.

Hawks down Mavs 120-112

ATLANTA (AP)—Dominique Wilkins scored 35 points and led Atlanta with 12 rebounds as the Hawks defeated the Dallas Mavericks 120-112 Thursday night in a battle of NBA division leaders.

The victory was the fourth straight and 15th in 16 games for Atlanta, the leader in the Central Division. The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for Midwest-leading Dallas.

Dallas led 58-57 at halftime, but the Hawks scored the first eight points of the second half to take the lead for good. They stretched the margin to 14 points with 5:15 left in the game.

The Mavericks never came closer than six after that, at 112-106 on two Mark Aguirre free throws with 2:44 remaining.

Randy Wittman scored 24 points for the Hawks, and Spud Webb and Jon Koncak had 12 apiece.
