Dodgers-Giants rivalry at peak after Tuesday's fight-filled game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers finished the game, a slugfest in more ways than one, under police guard.

At least three of the police suffered minor injuries, including a broken hand, during Tuesday night's four hours of baseball and brawling at Candlestick Park.

Mike Marshall, who admitted later he was over-exuberant about his heroics, hit a three-run homer off Scott Garrelts in the 10th inning to give the Dodgers an 11-8 victory. There were five homers earlier, with the Dodgers' Franklin Stubbs and the Giants' Jeffrey Leonard hitting two apiece.

Police and stadium security personnel stood guard around the Dodgers' dugout in the final minutes of play.

Giants Manager Roger Craig ordered hot-hitting Pedro Guerrero walked intentionally, for the second time, before Marshall homered, and Craig said, "I'd do it again."

Marshall, 0-for-5 earlier, made a taunting gesture toward Craig as he crossed home plate.

"It wasn't professional, and I'll apologize," said Marshall, who phoned Craig with an apology after the game. "Everyone that knows me knows that it's so uncharacteristic. The easiest way to put it is I just snapped."

The longtime rivals, who concluded a three-game series Wednesday night, do not meet again until late July, and a three-month cooling-off period is no doubt a very good idea.

"Those things can carry over. We'll be battling each other the rest of the year," Leonard said.

Garrelts' first pitch after the final home run ball knocked down Alex Trevino, and that touched off a 10-minute showing match among players from both teams.

No blows were thrown in the confrontation, which occurred after Trevino got up, yelled something at Garrelts and made a move toward the mound. Fans behind the Los Angeles dugout got in their fists, and throwing other things.

"It was disgusting the way the fans behaved," Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda said. "They disgraced the U.S.A. What gives them the right to throw things at ballplayers?"

In the opinion of Lasorda, "Garrelts did it uncalled for in the ball. It was terrible and I have no respect for him."

On the other hand, Craig blamed Marshall's emotional outburst "bush" and said, "It's no wonder fans got upset."

Sgt. Manuel Barretta of the San Francisco Police Department said Wednesday that 20 fans were ejected from the crowd of 31,513 after being ejected from the park.

Brewers start red-hot, but Yanks closing fast

CHICAGO (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers will not wind up with a 13-149 record, as one sign predicted after their record-tying 13-game winning streak to open the season finally ended.

And neither will they finish 161-1 as another sign from optimistic Brewer fans suggested following Tuesday night's 7-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox at blustery Comiskey Park.

"I can't predict how far we'll go, but we do have a good team and we feel we can win when we go out there," said first baseman Greg Brock, summing up the team's feeling. "You're going to lose one-third of your games automatically. No one goes through the season losing less than 50 or whatever a third is," he said.

The Brewers were still aware, however, that despite their spectacular start, they were still only two games ahead of the surging New York Yankees in the American League East.

"That's one of the disappointing parts," said Brewer third baseman Paul Molitor, one of Milwaukee's hottest hitters during the streak.

Milwaukee's 13-game winning streak tied the 1982 Atlanta Braves for the major league's quickest start. The Brewers broke the American League record with their 12th straight on Sunday.

"They can't do anything about those 13 games that are on the right side of the ledger," first-year Manager Tom Trebelhorn said after Tuesday night's loss in 40 degree temperatures with 22 mph winds. "Our guys remember what it takes to win. I still think we'll win 85 to 90 games."

Outfielder Rob Deer, who hit seven homers in the first 14 games, said, "We've impressed and surprised a lot of people."

"The best way to explain it is the concentration and confidence you build up over a streak like that. You believe in yourself and you believe in each other."

Molitor said that while the Brewers were disappointed by having the string snapped, "you can't be that upset."

"You have to be realistic. A 13-game winning streak, whether it be at the start of the season or for a club in a pennant chase in September, is a phenomenal streak at this level of play."

Maybe even more amazing than the streak itself was the way in which the Brewers put it together.

They won on a no-hitter by Juan Nieves, they won with two eight-run innings, they got two victories from rookie Chuck Crim, who wasn't even on the spring training roster, they won with two game-winning RBIs from rookie catcher B.J. Surhoff and they won No. 12 with a dramatic five-run rally in the bottom of the ninth.

Lady Horns capture 2nd SWC golf title

SUGARLAND (AP) — The Lady Longhorns captured their second Southwest Conference women's golf championship crown Wednesday with a three-day, 54-hole tournament.

Texas jumped out to a three-hole advantage after Monday's opening round, and stretched the lead to strokes over Southern Methodist Tuesday. In Wednesday's final round of 18, the Longhorns and Mustangs played virtually even.

Texas shot a 296 for the tournament. The Ponies were just one stroke at 297. But the lead Texas shot over the first 36 holes was just much for SMU to make up during the final day.

The Mustangs ended the tournament at 904, well in front of the place Texas Christian, which finished 25 strokes ahead of the A&M. The Aggies carded a total of 952, followed by Texas in fifth place at 965.

Individually, Texas sophomore Kate Golden won the SWC individual title. She was tied with her mate and roommate Jenny Germs after the first two rounds with 72, while Germs turned in a round of 75. Golden's three-over-par 219. Germs' runner-up total was a 3-over-par 219.

The Longhorns became the team in the five-year history of the SWC women's championship with two golf titles.

Houston Open starts today with the 'Shark' on the hunt

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Greg Norman says he will start the $600,000 Houston Open today with no thought of his disappointment two weeks ago when he lost the Masters in a sudden-death playoff to Larry Mize.

"Fortunately, I don't brood over things," said Norman, one of the favorites in this week's PGA Tour event. "This one took me a little longer to get over because it is the toughest loss I've ever had."

Norman's misfortune at the Masters was the latest in a series of final-round flops that have plagued the Australian.

In 1986, Norman led all four of the Grand Slam events going into the final round but he could salvage only a victory in the British Open.

Bob Tway had a miracle hole-out from a trap to beat Norman in last year's PGA Championship.

Then came Mize's chip in from 140 feet at Augusta, Ga., to once again end Norman's chances of winning all four Grand Slam events in one year.

"The first four or five days (after the Masters) everyone came up and commiserated with me," Norman said. "I could never get it off my mind. It took me till the week of Hilton Head (last week) to recuperate."

Norman closed out with rounds of 69 and 66 and tied for 17th in last week's Heritage Classic.

Sharing the favorite's role with Norman will be defending champion Curtis Strange, who beat Calvin Peete, also a returnee, in a sudden-death playoff for the 1986 title.

Ben Crenshaw, who finished one shot behind the leaders in the Masters, and Payne Stewart, who snapped a three-year victory drought at the Bay Hill Classic, also are crowd favorites.

The tournament is being played for the second year at The Woodlands' 7,042-yard, par-72 Tournament Players' Course, and the final two rounds will be televised for the first time since 1983.

The tournament was played out a commercial sponsor and lost more than $100,000, but rebounded in 1986 with a standing field that included Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

Tournament Director Dudley Ler says that despite economic times, the tournament is reaching a sales goal.

"We've exceeded our sponsorship goal," Butler said. "Let's really put us back on the map."

Norman already is off to a start in the 1987 Houston Open, entered the event last year and drew before the first round from a high fever.

Leading money-winner Curtis T. Allen, whose first victory was the Houston Open in 1984, is entered, but No. 2 Lanny Wadkins, No. 3 Crenshaw, No. 4 Stewart, No. 5 Mark Calcavecchia, and field.
