Officials call bad weather 'good test'

GALVESTON (AP) — Officials of the Emergency Operation Center say the tropical depression that washed ashore Monday morning served as a good dry run for further storms.

All department heads in the Galveston city government were on stand-by Sunday night and EOC crews monitored the weather system continuously shortly after the first warning was issued Sunday afternoon, said George Kraft, Galveston's assistant emergency management coordinator.

"Ever since Hurricane Alicia hit in 1983, we've been very conscious of what kind of damage can happen," Kraft said Monday. The 1983 storm killed 21 people and caused an estimated $1.2 billion in damage in the Houston-Galveston area.

"Since that time, we've done a lot to develop our emergency program and tried each year to keep it in the best possible shape," he said. "In a very real sense, you could consider what happened through the night as a dry run. Of course, nothing really happened to us."

The storm was dissipating near Sam Rayburn Reservoir and only a few scattered patches of rain remained Monday afternoon, National Weather Service spokesman Debbie Cage said.

The storm in East Texas near the Louisiana border was traveling east at 10 mph, Cage said. Most of the remains of the depression were in Central Louisiana and in the Gulf of Mexico about 60 miles to 120 miles off the Galveston coast on Monday afternoon.

Galveston police said the depression did not bring any high winds or unusual tidal activity.

"We're all laughing about it," police dispatcher Norma Oliver said.

The formation of the depression surprised forecasters, who issued tropical storm warnings for the Texas and Louisiana coastline.

Had winds increased to 50 mph, it would have been the first tropical storm of the 1987 Atlantic hurricane season.

August is one of the deadliest months for Texas hurricanes, records show.

No hurricane has hit Texas earlier than June or later than October, records show. August and September are the most active months.

Texas has been hit by more than 100 hurricanes since 1766. The worst of those hit Galveston Island in September 1900, killing at least 6,000.

Apartment fire kills 4 children, injures 2 others

ARLINGTON (AP) — Four children were killed and two others were injured Monday when a blaze trapped them in a second-story apartment, prompting their pregnant baby sitter to leap from the building, authorities said.

The 14-year-old baby sitter, who is six months pregnant, jumped out of the burning building with one of the six children, a 5-year-old girl, as the fire moved from the living room to a stairwell, authorities said.

The baby sitter, Elizabeth Medina, and the 5-year-old, Diamantina Ybarra, were taken to Arlington Memorial Hospital for observation but later released, said spokeswoman Lori McDowell.

McDowell said 3-year-olds Alejandro Saenz and Carolyn Ybarra died at the hospital shortly before noon.

Parkland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Catherine Ellis said an 8-month old boy and a 1-year-old girl, whose names were not immediately released, died there shortly after noon.

Patricia Rodriguez, 4, was in good condition at Parkland's burn unit where she was transferred from Arlington Memorial. Rodriguez, Saenz and the two children who died at Parkland had the same mother, McDowell said.

Firefighters were en route to a substation when they passed the burning apartment, said Lt. Gary Pipes, a spokesman for the Arlington Fire Department. They reported the fire at 10:24 a.m. and had it under control about 15 minutes later.

Pipes said the cause of the fire is under investigation, but officials believe it started on a mattress in the apartment living room.

Judges forced to tote guns for protection in security-lax courts

HOUSTON (AP) — Threats, violent criminals and a loose security system are prompting many judges to tote pistols or hide a shotgun under their benches during courtroom proceedings, the judges say.

"I go armed all the time," said State District Judge Allen Daggett, who once disarmed a man on the witness stand in his domestic relations courtroom.

State District Judge Bob Robertson told the Houston Post he carries a .32-caliber pistol and that most of the time he has the gun within reach while he's on the bench.

In the wake of a recent fatal shooting of a family court judge in Florida, concern at the Family Law Center is especially great.

One state district judge, armed at times with a powerful .357-Magnum revolver, said, "I'll give them the first shot but, boy, they better not miss."

Judges at the Harris County Criminal Courthouse describe the courthouse as a security nightmare. One armed judge said he's "charged with the worst crime in the world" share hallways and stairs with the public — including their alleged victims — in the house built in 1954.

Unlike the federal courthouse in Houston, the county courthouse does not have metal-detector security stations. Armed guards are assigned to each courtroom, but the judges contacted by the newspaper said that wasn't enough.

Officials are looking into installing a metal-detector system in a law center, which has four entrances and a tunnel entrance, which are lacking security posts. McCain, Harris County building superintendent, said.

Presidential candidates begin touring state

AUSTIN (AP) — Several Democratic presidential candidates will tour Texas this week, hoping to win support from Hispanics, organized labor and blacks.

"The March primary will be before us sooner than people realize," said Ruben Bonilla, chairman of Mexican American Democrats of Texas. "There's very little time in which to familiarize ourselves with the philosophy and character and integrity of the candidates."

Texas will be the largest state participating in the March 8 Southern "super primary," and Texas will send the third-largest delegation to the 1988 Democratic National Convention.

Democratic hopefuls are scheduled to speak at the Texas AFL-CIO convention in Austin, the annual meeting of the Mexican American Democrats in El Paso and the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats meeting in Dallas.

Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri and the Rev. Jesse Jackson are scheduled to address all three groups, officials said.

In addition, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois is to speak Saturday to the AFL-CIO's convention.

John Rogers, spokesman for the 210,000-member AFL-CIO said "all the Democrats were invited" to address the convention that opens Wednesday in Austin.

Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware had been scheduled but canceled.

"He is spending four days a week in Washington on the (Senate) Judiciary Committee preparing for the (Robert) Bork confirmation hearings," Rogers said.

Bork was nominated by President Reagan for the U.S. Supreme Court.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt is scheduled to be campaigning in New England, Rogers said.

Bonilla said the Mexican American Democrats also had invited all the Democratic candidates to their El Paso session that runs Friday and Saturday.

He noted the pivotal role Hispanics could play in the Texas elections due to the Hispanic participation in the Democratic primary.

"It's to the advantage of Democratic candidates to cater to the Hispanic Democratic vote," he said. "That's what we have at this convention."

Bonilla predicted that Gephardt would gain the most from the MAD appearance.

"It will certainly make up some lost ground for Gephardt," Bonilla said. "Gore also comes a much better-known entity."

"At this point, Gephardt, (Massachusetts) Michael Dukakis and Jackson are the top runners. Gephardt has not been highly visible in the Hispanic community up to this point. This forum offers him an opportunity to gain some ground on trade and employment issues."

Dukakis has been working vigorously with Hispanics, Bonilla said, and Babbitt is known and well-respected in the Hispanic community.

Eight Ball, Corner Pocket

Dave Green, 23, an electrical engineering major, takes aim at the eight ball as he sharpens his skills in a game of pool Sunday afternoon.

Green sank his shots on one of the pool tables in the bowling games area in the basement of the Memorial Student Center.
