Appeals halt 2 Texas inmates' execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Two death row inmates scheduled to die this week have received stays from the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Richard J. Wilkerson, 23, scheduled to die early today, and Michael Goodman, 32, slated to die before dawn Wednesday, received stays from the appeals court Friday, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said Monday.

Wilkerson received the death sentence for the 1983 death of an 18-year-old night manager of a Houston raceway and amusement center. Anil Varughese, a pre-medical student, and three other employees were fatally stabbed during the robbery that netted about $2,000.

Wilkerson had been fired from his job at the center about two weeks before the slayings. Two co-defendants also were convicted.

Goodman was convicted of capital murder in the 1979 death of Jackie Quin, 35, of Houston, who was as she stood outside a parking lot.

She and a friend were found the back of the van and around for about 30 minutes. Quin was thrown into a parking lot and left for dead.

The friend was raped, but escaped.

Two co-defendants, convicted lesser charges in the slaying, sworn statements identifying man as the triggerman.
