6 killed in Tibetan riot; Chinese impose curfew

LHASA, Tibet (AP) — Chinese authorities imposed a curfew Sunday and tried to stop at least one busload of foreign tourists from leaving this Tibetan capital after pro-independence demonstrations that killed at least six people.

Dissidents proclaimed the six as martyrs. They put up signs saying those who died in Thursday's demonstration "died for all the Tibetan people, not for themselves."

Nineteen policemen were seriously wounded in that demonstration, which was held to protest the arrests of participants in an earlier Sept. 27 demonstration.

Buddhist monks at the Sera Monastery outside Lhasa said they hoped to stage another protest on Wednesday, the 37th anniversary of the day

Chinese communist troops moved into Tibet to annex it in 1950.

The monks also said in a taped interview with three French tourists that the 20 monks who staged Thursday's protest had not returned to the monastery and were believed to be hiding from police.

In London, a representative of the Tibetans' exiled spiritual and civil leader, the Dalai Lama, called the protests "the tip of the iceberg."

The Dalai Lama fled to India in 1959 after a failed uprising against the Chinese.

Meanwhile, an American diplomat in Chengdu, the nearest large city to Tibet, said two Americans detained in Lhasa after the Sept. 27 demonstration were released and believed to still be in the city.

A 10 p.m. curfew was imposed on Tibetans in Lhasa, although foreigners were allowed to move about past the curfew.

Chinese authorities posted warnings at several hostels that foreigners should not become involved in the unrest, William Milberger, a tourist from San Francisco, said.

The nation's leading newspaper, the People's Daily, carried a detailed story and pictures of last week's demonstration. The evening television news for the first time showed film of the protest. It showed a crowd surging through Lhasa's Jokhang Temple square and tossing stones at police and the police station there.

Trade agreement receives support from U.S., Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan hailed a tentative U.S.-Canadian free trade agreement Sunday that would eliminate all tariffs between the two countries as a historic pact beneficial to both nations' economies.

"Now, in addition to sharing the world's largest undefended border, we will share membership in the world's largest free trade area," Reagan said in a statement released at the White House.

Treasury Secretary James Baker III and Canadian Finance Minister Michael Wilson told a joint news conference they were confident the agreement would be approved by the U.S. Congress and Canada's parliament. Both described it as a "win-win situation," good for both countries.

U.S. and Canadian negotiators had settled on the general framework for the pact linking the world's two largest trading partners just before the midnight Saturday deadline that had been set for submission of the agreement to Congress.

A preliminary report gave these details of the agreement:

- All agricultural tariffs would be eliminated within 10 years, with more access to Canadian markets for U.S. farm products and the conditional elimination of Canadian import licenses for U.S. wheat, barley, oats and grain products.

- Discriminatory pricing of alcoholic beverages in Canada would be phased out.
- Free and open energy trade would be established, with Canadian access to oil from Alaska's north slope, "subject to certain conditions."
- On automobiles, Canada would immediately eliminate a tariff subsidy program linked to export performance or local production.
- Many restrictions that require government agencies to buy only products made within the respective country would be eliminated on both sides.
- Border crossings for business purposes would be made easier.
- Virtually all existing import and export restrictions would be eliminated, but with procedures set up to lessen the effects on specific industries.
- Citizens of each country providing services in the other would be treated as equal to the country's own citizens in all new measures affecting services.
- Existing laws dealing with subsidies and dumping of inexpensive foreign merchandise in either country will remain.

Union spokesmen OK contract to end strike for Chicago teachers

CHICAGO (AP) — Representatives of the Chicago Teachers Union late Sunday approved a two-year contract that ended a four-week teachers' strike, the longest in the city's history.

The 563-95 vote by the union's House of Delegates guarantees that the system's 28,000 teachers and other employees will start work Monday, union spokesman Chuck Burdeen said.

The contract will be submitted to rank-and-file union members over the next few weeks, Burdeen said.

The system's 430,000 students would return Tuesday, officials said.

Teachers went on strike Sept. 8, their ninth walkout in 18 years.

Elsewhere, the Little Rock school district and its teachers reached agreement on a two-year contract to end the first teachers' strike in Arkansas. Some 1,400 teachers had been on strike since Sept. 25 against the 26,000-pupil school system.

Strikes also continued at Elizabeth, N.J., and two small districts in Pennsylvania.

The proposed contract, reached Saturday, called for a 4 percent pay raise this year and a 4 percent increase the next year, with the second-year increase depending on additional state funds. The contract also called for some reductions in class size.

The Board of Education, which has insisted it had no money for raises, planned to finance the $43.8 million package largely through layoffs, including teacher layoffs, board spokesman Robert Saigh said.

"You're asking if teachers are going to be hurt in this process?" he said. "You bet."

He estimated that 1,300 full-time and 500 part-time positions would be cut because of the new contract, many of them classroom teachers with the least seniority.

About 100 people would get lay-off notices this week, he said.

Royal couple from Japan visits U.S. town

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Japanese Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko visited this tiny seacoast town where the first Japanese citizen is believed to have taken up residence in the United States.

The royal couple also visited historic Plymouth Plantation in Plymouth, where the Pilgrims first arrived in Massachusetts to settle in 1620, and boarded the Mayflower II, a replica of the ship that brought the Puritans from England.

In 1841, 14-year-old Manjiro Nakahama was one of five Japanese fishermen stranded on a small island in the Pacific after they were blown out to sea by a storm. They were rescued from the island six months later by an American whaling vessel and Nakahama eventually settled in Fairhaven.

The prince and princess arrived in Massachusetts on Saturday for an eight-day U.S. visit.
