Fourth-inning rally keys Twins win; series moves to St. Louis for next 3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Randy Bush and Tim Laudner sparked another night of fourth-inning hanky panky as the Minnesota Twins defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 Sunday night for a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

Bert Blyleven pitched seven innings, allowing six hits and two runs, while the Twins, whose seven-run fourth keyed a 10-1 mismatch in Game 1, again got their 55,257 fans shouting early at the Metrodome.

Gary Gaetti's homer in the second off Danny Cox set the crowd screaming and by the time Minnesota combined six hits, including a two-run single by Tim Laudner, and two walks in the fourth, the crowd was singing "My Baby Does The Hanky Panky" and it was 7-0.

The white sea of homer hankies signaled the Cardinals' surrender, and Laudner completed the Twins' scoring with a 420-foot home run to dead center in the sixth.

The Cardinals scored two runs in the eighth off reliever Juan Berenguer, and Jeff Reardon threw the ninth.

Minnesota's 56-25 home record was the best in baseball and the Twins seemed stronger than ever in blowing away the Cardinals, whose 49-41 road mark was tops in the majors. Of the 37 teams that have taken a 2-0 lead in the World Series, 27 have gone on to win.

Game 3 is scheduled for Tuesday night in Busch Stadium with Minnesota's Les Straker, 8-10, facing left-hander John Tudor, 8-2.

The Cardinals headed home shell-shocked and with a five-game losing streak in the World Series. They lost the last three in the 1985 Series and have been outscored 37-7 during their drought.

Blyleven, who won twice in the American League playoffs and once in postseason play, easily dispatched Cox in the first Series meeting, pitching seven innings and striking out five batters.

The British-born Cox, regarded by Manager Whitey Herzog as the Cardinals' best big-game pitcher, seemed rattled in foreign territory and yielded seven runs on six hits in 3 2/3 innings.

The Twins came out swinging, making three outs in the first inning on four pitches. That pattern changed.

Gaetti, MVP of the AL playoffs with two homers, connected on his next delivery and sent it soaring

Piston forward Dennis Rodman battles controversial statements, racist image

From the Associated Press

Just after ending his rookie season in the NBA with a controversial verbal attack on Larry Bird, the Detroit Pistons' Dennis Rodman drove to his "second home" in rural Oklahoma to be with his "second family."

Rodman, 27, cut loose on Bird during an interview after the Celtics defeated the Pistons in the seventh game of the Eastern Conference finals last spring.

He said: "Larry Bird is overrated in a lot of areas. I don't think he's the greatest player. He's way overrated. Why does he get so much publicity? Because he's white. You never hear about a black player being the greatest."

Piston teammate Isiah Thomas, also black, agreed with Rodman, but the public did not.

"It was the kind of statement that should never have come out," Rodman said. "I made a mistake."

To escape the controversy, Rodman went to Bokchito, Okla. to spend the summer with his white "second family," Byrne Rich and parents.

Rodman became friends with Bryne, 18, four years ago during summer basketball camp at Southeastern Oklahoma State University.

Pat and James Rich wanted Bryne to attend the camp hoping it would end the depression he had felt since his best friend had been killed during a shooting accident nine months earlier.

Bryne came home from the camp bubbling about his new friend, whose nickname was Worm, and wanting to invite Rodman to dinner.

"It was the first time I'd seen his face light up about anything," said Pat Rich. "I said, 'Sure, you can bring him.' He came back later and said, 'There's just one thing I haven't told you. He's black.'"

Pat Rich said Bokchito, when she and her husband were growing up, was not an enlightened racial environment.

"White people treated the blacks then as kind of outcasts," she said. "Blacks have their place; whites have their place."

Nothing had happened to the Riches to change that opinion before Rodman came to dinner.

At that time, Rodman was struggling to make college work for him. He graduated from South Oak Cliff High School in Dallas in 1979 and didn't play high school basketball. Rodman grew from 5-11 to 6-8 during the year after graduation.

He started playing basketball in community college, but had no direction until Southeastern coach Jack Hedden brought him to the school in Durant, Okla.

Rodman and the Riches grew together during the next four years as they endured the narrow-mindedness of neighbors and family, tried to surmount cultural and racial differences.

"After a while," Bryne said, "I'd been around each other for so long that he was like a brother."

When Rodman finished his year at Southeastern as the NBA's leading scorer and rebounder, he went to the Portsmouth, Va. tournament for players not expected to be selected in the first round and the Most Valuable Player award.

The Pistons selected him with the third pick in the second round of the 1986 draft, 27th overall.

Rodman was old for a rookie. He became an important player on the bench for the Pistons. He was drafted by the Pistons because of his reputation as a player who would not be intimidated by Bird fans.

But Rodman has never been intimidated by Bird's. Even when sitting on the bench watching NBA games with Riches, Rodman would say "Bird is a piece of s---" and that he could guard Bird.

Rodman said his detractors would be surprised to know that he is the summer with a white family.

"It would shock them," Rodman said. "It sure would. But if you knew me and would come here and find out the background they'd realize."

NFL regulars post large numbers as replacement games conclude

From the Associated Press

The strike replacements learned a lesson Sunday. There's a big difference between real NFL players and their stand-ins.

Steve Largent and Joe Montana, plus such backup quarterbacks as Gary Danielson, Jeff Kemp, Pat Ryan and even Doug Flutie spent their first week back taking advantage of playing against the second-liners.

But even the presence of Lawrence Taylor couldn't prevent the New York Giants' fifth straight loss, a 6-3 overtime loss to Buffalo in a game marked by 258 yards in penalties, five missed field goals and nine turnovers.

For some, the heroics were almost embarrassing, particularly Largent, who almost surely would have set a new record for catches in a game had he not left Seattle's 37-14 win over Detroit with 9:26 left in the third quarter.

"The only record I was concerned with was getting a win," said Largent, who had to be content with extending his NFL record of consecutive games with a reception to 143. He also moved within 36 catches of becoming the league's all-time career leader and helped Kemp to 20 completions in 27 attempts for 344 yards and four touchdowns.

"I don't take any personal joy in this day at all," said Danielson, who completed 25 of 31 for 281 yards and four touchdowns as the Browns used nine regulars and routed the Cincinnati "B" team 34-0.

"That shows what happens when you get professional football players involved in these kind of games — the cream always rises to the top," said Ken O'Brien, the New York Jets regular quarterback after Ryan, his backup, led the Jets to a 37-31 overtime win over Miami.

The one notable exception on the third and final week of strike football was Erik Kramer, Atlanta's replacement quarterback, who threw for 338 yards and three second half touchdowns as the Falcons overcame a 17-0 deficit for a 24-20 victory over the Los Angeles Rams, who beat veterans back.

But the rule was misapplied to those veterans who were on Wednesday toed with teams as veterans came back when the ended too late for Sunday's games.

Montana, one of 17 regulars on the field, was 31 of 39 for 301 yards and four touchdowns, TD, to tight end Ron Helton. San Francisco a 34-28 win over Louis, which had 21 players from the strike.

The Jets' Ryan went 30 of 39 for 301 yards and four touchdowns, including the winner in overtime.

There was no rush back to fans.

The day's average attendance about 26,500, 38 percent of the high for the early game, 46,813 at Chicago's Soldier Field, where the Bears lost for the time, real or replacement.

New Orleans, as Coach Mike Altematt alternated quarterbacks, the second half to shuttle in players were 40,719 in Cincinnati
