Reagan lauds Sessions at swear-in ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, swearing in William S. Sessions as his new FBI director, praised him and Supreme Court nominee Douglas Ginsburg as men concerned about the rights of victims of crime.

The president made his comments during the swearing-in ceremony in the courtyard at FBI headquarters.

Reagan said that the country should commit itself to caring in the future "about victims' rights, not just criminal rights."

"The next justice on the Supreme Court better be ready to deal with that challenge, and Judge Ginsburg is ready," Reagan said.

During a brief tour earlier of the FBI building, Reagan said he wasn't concerned about allegations of Ginsburg's possible conflict of interest involving his cable investments.

Ginsburg faces Senate questions about his role in an administration effort that helped win First Amendment protection for cable television operators at a time Ginsburg had a most $140,000 invested in a cable company.

At the swearing-in, Reagan joked that in his typically thorough manner, Sessions "got the ulcer out of the way before you got the job."

Sessions, 57, has spent a week and a half in the hospital this month for a previously undiagnosed bleeding ulcer which twice forced postponement of his installation.

Reagan stands by Ginsberg; senators want investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan stood by his Supreme Court nominee Monday as Senate Democrats said they would investigate Douglas H. Ginsburg's having held stock in a cable TV company while supervising a government effort to win First Amendment protection for cable television operators.

Meanwhile, conservative groups said they were not concerned about reports that Ginsburg's wife, Dr. Hallee Perkins Morgan, performed two abortions and assisted in a third as a medical resident in Boston in 1979-80. One conservative spokesman said she should be commended for making a personal decision to stop participating in such procedures.

Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will conduct hearings on Ginsburg's nomination, cautioned senators not to jump to conclusions about a possible conflict of interest in the cable television matter. But they also made clear they believe the issue should be investigated.

Financial disclosure statements indicate that at the time of the cable court case, Ginsburg had a stake of almost $140,000 in Rogers Communications Inc. The Supreme Court

New treatment fights lethal consequences of radiation exposure

NEW YORK (AP) — Treatment with two naturally occurring substances that stimulate bone marrow may protect against some of the most lethal consequences of radiation exposure and cancer chemotherapy, researchers said Monday.

Radiation and anti-cancer drugs both interfere with bone marrow's production of infection-fighting white blood cells. The new treatment triggers renewed production of those cells, thus lowering the likelihood of life-threatening infections, according to a report in the current issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

"The period when the patient is at greatest risk of infection due to reduced white cell functions is reduced," said Dr. Malcolm Moore, a cancer specialist at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City and principal author of the new study.

If such drugs prove successful in human trials that are now beginning, their principal use would be with cancer patients receiving chemotherapy or radiation treatment and with people suffering from other bone-marrow diseases.

Such drugs could also serve as a treatment for people exposed to radiation during nuclear war, Moore said.

A similar drug was reportedly used recently to treat two victims of accidental radiation exposure in Brazil and was credited with saving their lives.

Previous studies by Moore and others have shown that one of the substances, called granulocyte colony stimulating factor, or G-CSF, could boost numbers of the white blood cells known as neutrophils, which defend against invading bacteria.

The new study shows that another similar substance, called interleukin-1 or IL-1, also can boost the production of neutrophils in laboratory animals. And when both drugs were tried together, the effect was greater than that of either one alone, he said.

Toddler rests after transplant of five organs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 3-year-old girl was awake and kicking with her favorite doll beside her Monday as doctors watched for any signs of rejection after she became only the third person in the nation to receive a five-organ transplant.

Tabatha Foster of Madisonville, Ky., remained in critical condition, which is normal after transplant surgery, at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, said hospital spokesman Lynn McMahon.

Transplant pioneer Dr. Thomas Starzl said Tabatha was wide awake but could not talk because she was breathing with a respirator, which may be removed Tuesday. She was sedated enough to make her comfortable, and her arms were restrained.

Surgeons transplanted a liver, pancreas, small intestine and parts of the stomach and colon during an operation that ended Sunday after nearly 15 hours.

Stock prices rise slightly in quiet trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose slightly Monday in the calmest trading since the crash two weeks ago, giving Wall Street the appearance of normality despite the potential threat of a sharply weaker dollar.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which tumbled a record 508 points Oct. 19 and 156.83 points Oct. 26, traded within a relatively narrow range on this Monday. The indicator quickly recovered from a 26 point deficit and closed up 20.56 at 2,014.09.

It was the fifth straight session that the nation's best-known stock measure ended with a gain. Broader market indices also rose Monday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled a relatively moderate 176.04 million shares, the first time volume was less than 200 million since the collapse. It was the lowest volume since Oct. 13, when 172.87 million shares were traded.

Gaining stocks outnumbered losers by more than 5 to 3 in composite trading on the New York Stock Exchange, where 1,093 issues rose in price, 629 declined and 289 remained unchanged.
