Weather Watch

Key:

☁ - Lightning	☁ - Fog	⚡ - Thunderstorms
☔ - Rain	 - Snow	☂ - Drizzle
⚡ - Ice Pellets	☔ - Rain Shower	• - Freezing Rain

Sunset Today: 6:14 p.m. Sunrise Thursday: 7:02 a.m.

Map Discussion: Rainshowers will be scattered from Arkansas and the lower Mississippi Valley into Eastern Texas. Rainshowers will be scattered across the Pacific Northwest and into Montana. Snowshowers will be scattered across upper Michigan to New England. Winds will be gusty across the lee of the Northern Rockies. Low level convergence and an abundant flow of warm moist air into the local area will produce rain showers with a slight possibility of an isolated thunder shower this afternoon and evening. The upper level flow is somewhat parallel to the front through Texas; thus, it will be slow to move out of Southeast Texas.

Forecast:

Today and Tonight: Mostly cloudy and mild with a 40 to 50 percent chance of precipitation. High 71. Low Thursday morning 48. Winds will be southerly at 10 to 14 mph today, five to eight tonight, and becoming northerly at 12 mph Thursday morning.

Thursday: Overcast and mild. Probability of precipitation 80 percent through mid-afternoon, then decreasing. High 64. Winds easterly at eight to 12 mph.

Weather Fact: Lightning - Generally, any and all of the various forms of visible electrical discharge produced by thunderstorms; in weather observing terminology, an igneous meteor or electrometeor; popularly, the luminosity of a lightning discharge.

Inmate sets fire after prison forces him to get rid of pets

RICHMOND (AP) — A convicted murderer who kept deer and other wild animals at a prison says he set a boiler room on fire and escaped briefly last month in retaliation for having to get rid of some of his pets.

"I felt a grudge in my heart," inmate Millard Moon said. "I said, 'Well, I want to hurt back.'"

Moon was sentenced to life in prison for the 1980 death of his girlfriend and has spent nearly six years at the Jester III unit in Fort Bend County. During his imprisonment, he has raised wild deer, cats, rabbits and plants and has come to be known as the Deer Man.

He has kept busy taking care of the animals and once commented that it almost seemed as though he was not in prison.
