Bush, Dukakis bask in victory after primaries

Associated Press
Republican George Bush and Democrat Michael Dukakis exulted in their impressive New Hampshire primary victories Wednesday while the rest of the presidential field jockeyed for position in a campaign without clear, commanding front-runners.

And with the delegate-rich primaries just ahead in the South and elsewhere, there was no danger of peace breaking out among the combatants. "I think you're seeing a mean George Bush," said Sen. Bob Dole, who blamed his defeat in New Hampshire on distortions he said were spread by the vice president's campaign. "I'm not going to run from it. I'm not known for running from a fight."

Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr. dismissed his Democratic rivals as "peas in the same pod" who had staked out positions to appeal to the voters of Iowa and New Hampshire and who would be rejected in the Southern primaries next month.

Dukakis disputed that, just as Bush denied Dole's accusation of foul play.

"We're going to surprise some people" in the South, said the Massachusetts governor as he headed for a day of campaigning in Dixie. "Our message of strength, of opportunity for the future is going to do very well there."

While most of the field worried about raising money and gaining momentum, there were others who had possibly fought their last.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt returned to Washington after his fifth-place Democratic finish and seemed a likely candidate for withdrawal, although the odds were against his endorsing another contender.

Even so, he clearly hadn't lost his desire for the White House.

"The only cure for the presidential disease is embalming fluid," he said, quoting fellow Arizonan Mo Udall, himself a presidential also-ran.

There was fresh talk that the muddled races might produce no clear winner before the nominating conventions, particularly on the Democratic side.

New York Mayor Ed Koch said he thought the Democrats would draft a nominee, either New York Gov. Mario Cuomo or New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley.

But Democratic national chairman Paul Kirk predicted the convention would pick a winner on the first ballot from among the active contenders.

Bush, who won in New Hampshire after first watching his support hemorrhage when Dole captured the Iowa caucuses, said he was taking "nothing for granted" from here on out.

The vice president denied Dole's charges, and said he had proven he had staying power by rebounding from his third-place finish in Iowa. "The system worked," he said. "You can take them on the chin, you can get up and you can fight again."

Schultz to meet with Sakharov on Moscow trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will meet with noted Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov on his trip to Moscow next weekend to underline U.S. support for the human rights movement.

Sakharov, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975, is a physicist who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb in the 1950s. His subsequent outspoken support for human rights led to his banishment to the closed city of Gorky in 1980, until he was allowed back in Moscow in 1986.

Shultz will hold wide-ranging talks Sunday with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, then meet with General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Shevardnadze again on Monday.

World Briefs

Fire causes evacuation of embassy

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet fire-fighters chaperoned by Americans extinguished a fire Wednesday in the U.S. Embassy, the aging building the United States has been unable to abandon because of bugging devices that permeate a new structure.

About 150 embassy employees were evacuated and sent home for the day, embassy spokesman Richard Gilbert said. No one was injured.

U.S. Embassy officials said Soviet firefighters were called out the fire in an underground fifth-floor residential sector they decided embassy personnel couldn't extinguish on their own.

Man surrenders after killing seven

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — A former employee of a Silicon Valley defense contractor fatally shot seven people Tuesday and wounded five others at the company's offices, including a woman who had spurned him, authorities said.

The man, identified by police as Richard Wade Farley, 39, surrendered after barricading himself inside the building for about six hours. Three officers grabbed him as he walked out with his hands in the air and he was taken to the Santa Clara County Jail nearby San Jose.

Employees dove under desks and inside closets as the gunman shot his way into the building, witnesses said.

As the siege continued, negotiators talked by telephone with the man, who "expressed little remorse" for his actions, Lt. Tom Moore of the Santa Clara County Public Safety Department said.

Seven people were killed, including Alex Michaelis, commander of the safety department.

Agreement ends students' takeover

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — A six-day occupation of a University of Massachusetts building by minority students ended Wednesday after protesters and the school's chancellor agreed on reforms to correct alleged racial harassment on campus.

The takeover ended just before 1 p.m. when 150 minority students walked onto the steps of New Africa House and began to sing a gospel song, then they raised their fists in a victory salute.

The five-page agreement worked out between Charles Joseph Duffey and nine protesters late Tuesday night following nearly four hours of negotiations.

The pact included a promise to change the school's student conduct code to allow suspension of students found to commit acts of racial violence or harassment.

Academy reveals Oscar nominations

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "The Last Emperor," a panoramic drama of modern China, scored top honors with nine nominations Wednesday in an Oscar race that included Cher, Robin Williams and Michael Douglas but overlooked directors Steven Spielberg and James L. Brooks.

Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun" tied "Fatal Attraction" and "Moonstruck" with six nominations, but Spielberg was mentioned for director of the film make the best movie.

Joining "Broadcast News" in the story of China's last emperor were "The Last Emperor," the story of China's last emperor, and "The Untouchables," the story of the FBI's first undercover agents.
