Odessa to host Shakespeare festival

by Lyneen Johnson

The world's most authentic replica of the original 17th century Globe Theatre in London can be found nowhere else but in Texas.

Odessa, a West Texas town about 350 miles southwest of Dallas with a population of over 100,000 people, not only houses this world renowned theater but it is also the setting for the 20th annual Texas Shakespeare Festival.

The festival, featuring performances by the National Shakespeare Co., The Globe and Odessa College theater groups and the Texas Christian University theater department, begins Feb. 18 and will continue through March 12.

"Julius Caesar" and "Two Gentlemen from Verona" are the Shakespeare plays that will be featured in the festival, says David Weaver, executive director of the Globe Theatre and executive producer of the Shakespeare Festival. Also scheduled is a non-Shakespearean show, "The Music Man."

"We (the acting company sponsored by the Globe Theatre) produced this ourselves in order to broaden the appeal of the festival by attracting a wider audience," Weaver says.

"The Music Man" will be presented Feb. 25-27 and March 4-6 with one show each night.

"Julius Caesar," performed by the National Shakespeare Co., will open the festival on Feb. 18, 19 and 20 with an afternoon and evening performance each day.

Seats for the opening weekend will be $9 for adults and $6.75 for students and senior citizens. However, seats for the remaining performances will be only $8 for adults and $5.50 for students and senior citizens.

The prices differ due to the differences in the cost of bringing the shows to this area, Weaver says.

Closing the festival will be the T.C.U. theater department's performance of "Two Gentlemen from Verona" on March 10-12.

Recognized and promoted by the Tourism Division of the Texas Department of Commerce, the festival offers an atmosphere which sets it apart from other cultural events, Weaver says.

"We are recognized by scholars and architects for the architecture and atmosphere,"

Weaver says. "The Tutor look and feel run throughout the complex; unlike other replicas which carry the theme only in the main house or hallways but not both."

The purpose of the festival is to offer Shakespeare's plays in a unique and authentic setting in order to promote a new or deeper appreciation for the arts, he says.

"Watching the reactions of the audience as they make the transition from the dreadful dull drum feelings that surround Shakespeare's works to feelings of excitement and enthusiasm... is makes the whole thing worthwhile," Weaver says.

A successful season is expected since five of the first six shows have been sold out for two weeks, he says.

Reservations can be made through the ticket office Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on show days from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The ticket office will hold reserved tickets until the specific performance begins.

For more information or ticket reservations contact The Globe Theatre, 2308 Shakespeare Road, Odessa, Texas, 79761 or call (915) 332-1586.
