Voting continues in San Salvador despite violence

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Salvadorans vowing not to be intimidated by guerrilla threats voted Sunday in legislative and municipal elections. The voting came after explosions ripped through the capital and sabotage knocked out power to much of the nation.

Early turnout was moderate, with no long lines at polling places in the capital. There were some organizational difficulties, including late delivery of ballot boxes to some voting stations and arguments over the placement of party observers at tables where registrations were checked.

The entire capital was without electricity after leftist guerrillas blew up transmission towers outside the city. The outage meant that virtually no one in the city had running water, as the electric utility's pumps run on electricity.

The outage knocked almost all radio stations off the air. Only the army's Radio Cuscatlan, which has a powerful generator, was broadcasting news.

Telephone calls to local radio reporters around the country showed that guerrillas had knocked out power in 11 of El Salvador's 14 provinces.

A half-dozen explosions were heard late Saturday and early Sunday in and around the capital. Guerrillas of the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front had vowed to step up sabotage attempts to demonstrate their "repudiation" of the vote.

The rebels, engaged in an 8-year-old war with the U.S.-backed government, considered the vote a farce and called for a boycott.

The destruction of transmission towers and high-tension lines followed the explosion Friday night of a car bomb in the affluent neighborhood of Escalon. One person was injured.

At stake were all 60 seats in the National Assembly legislature. Voters also elected mayors and municipal councils in all the 262 cities and towns nationwide.

It was the fifth time since a 1979 coup by reform-minded officers that voters were casting ballots. The last election was in 1985.

The visit also may produce a date for the next superpower summit — speculation centers on late May in Moscow — and some progress toward a treaty to sharply reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear weapons.

The treaty is the projected centerpiece for President Reagan's fourth and final meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, but negotiations in Geneva have proceeded slowly.

"It's possible, but we not going to try to have one just for the sake of a treaty," Shultz said.

World Briefs

Official: Insurance should pay for tests

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Insurance companies should pay for efforts to detect cancer early in return for slightly higher premiums, the head of the American Cancer Society said Sunday.

"The public should be encouraged to ask about these procedures, and physicians should be rewarded for providing them," society President Harmon Eyre said in a speech prepared for delivery Sunday at a society-sponsored conference for science writers.

In an interview earlier, Eyre said he was talking about Pap tests for cervical cancer, stool blood tests for colon or rectal cancer, visual examination of the lower colon, called sigmoidoscopy, and breast X-rays called mammograms for breast cancer.

In addition, he said, insurers should provide reimbursement for "health maintenance exams which include counseling about smoking and evaluation of the mouth and lymph nodes for cancer."

When a smoker is treated with antibiotics for pneumonia, antibiotics resulting from smoking, he said, both physician and patient are reimbursed.

"But if that same smoker goes to a physician for counseling about that cigarette habit, no reimbursement," he said.

Canal seems untouched by crisis

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — When strikes shut down the rest of the country, Panama Canal employees went to work. When flaming barricades blocked downtown streets, roads to the canal were clear. The crisis gripping the rest of the country has barely touched the waterway so important and vital to Panama's economy.

Even at the height of this week's protests, rioters demanding the ouster of strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega avoided the canal zone just outside the capital.

Canal officials said the most serious problem was a transit page that made it impossible for many canal employees to get work.

After last Wednesday's coup attempt and street fighting, joint U.S.-Panamanian commission that has governed the canal since 1979 issued a reassurance statement.

"We expect surface transit to continue, without interruption, the canal's marine director, George Hull, said.

Capt. John Maher, president of the 230-member Panama Canal Pilots Association, said canal operations were not affected by political instability and would the waterway's death.

Canal passengers in China sight UFO

BEIJING (AP) — Passengers on two flights to Xinjiang, China's northwesternmost province, reported UFO sightings, an official report said Sunday.

The state-run Xinhua News Agency said a passenger on a flight from Beijing to Urumqi, the provincial capital, last Friday sighted the unidentified flying object to the right in front of the plane at 9:35 p.m.

The flight crew contacted local airports and were told there was no plane in the area at that time.

The object was described as being about the size of a basketball and sending out a beam like searchlight. The crew sent a signal to the object, which was received opposite the plane, but received no response, Xinhua said.

Three minutes later, the object changed directions and headed north, then split in two, into smaller ball above a bean-shaped object. They were spinning at high speeds and gave off a bright green light, the news agency said.

Soviet Foreign Minister arrives in U.S. for talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze arrived Sunday for three days of talks with Reagan administration officials that are bound to be dominated by the wars in Nicaragua and Afghanistan.

The visit also may produce a date for the next superpower summit — speculation centers on late May in Moscow — and some progress toward a treaty to sharply reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear weapons.
