

Ed Allred
Construction Science

Howdy Ags, my name is Ed Allred and I'm running for junior yell leader. I'm a San Antonian majoring in construction science. Once elected, I promise to do my best to represent the student body of Texas A&M. I have developed a strong platform based on loyalty, dedication and Aggie pride. I am excited about the prospects of the national championship year that will start with football in the fall and continue through the spring sports. During each of these important events, I pledge to be the most highly motivated and enthusiastic yell leader this school has ever witnessed. Our goal is to win. My part of this goal is to cheer our Ags on to victory. Beat the hell outta t.u.! Whoop!

Waylan Cain
Agricultural Engineering

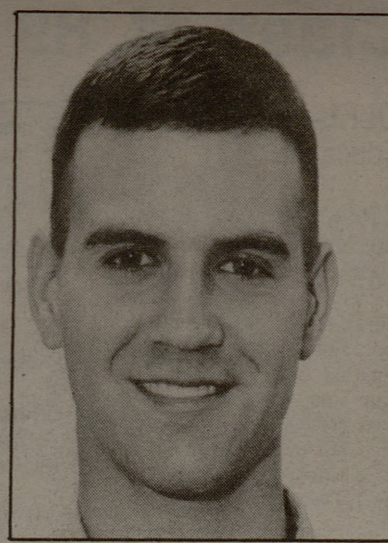

Howdy! My name is Waylan Cain and I am running for junior yell leader. I am Guidon Bearer for company D-1 of the Corps of Cadets. My hometown is Conroe, Texas and agriculture engineering is my major. I am involved in Recon Company and the Corps public relations committee. I can not express how pumped up and motivated I am about running for junior yell leader. I believe I can do the job for several reasons. I know a lot of people, which helps in representing you -- Texas A&M. Also, I have lived around and talked with yell leaders and know what it takes to be a yell leader. Last, I want to put out and give service to you and this University because without you all, being a junior yell leader would not be possible. God bless you all. Beat the hell outta t.u.

Jud Chappell
Animal Science

Howdy. My name is Jud Chappell and I am a sophomore animal science major running for junior yell leader. To be an Aggie yell leader, a person must not only possess many leadership qualities, but must also be filled and overflowing with Aggie spirit and pride. That's me. It's the type of Aggie spirit that makes your blood pump every time you hear the Aggie War Hymn. It's Aggie pride that makes you want to keep the many traditions here alive. These are all qualities that I possess. I have also served on Student Government, Off-campus Aggies and Fish Camp. So you see . . . I clearly have what it takes. Remember, on March 30:

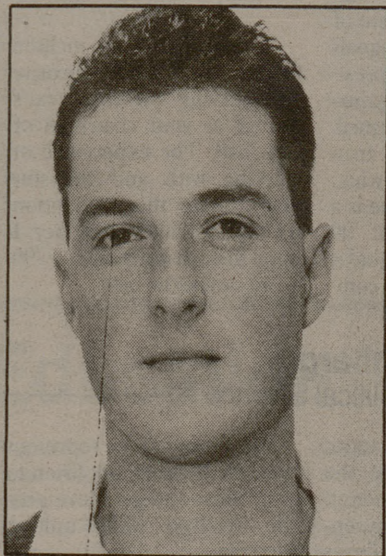

"Just Yell Jud" for junior yell leader.
If you have any questions, please call 696-7525 and say Howdy.

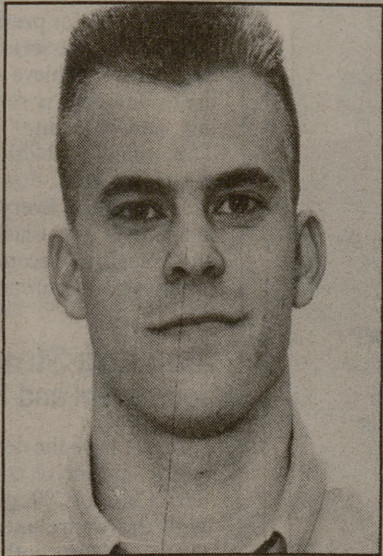

Steve Coan
Electrical Engineering

Howdy, my name is Steve Coan, and I would love to be your next junior yell leader. I am an electrical engineering major from Stephenville. Having the opportunity to lead the Twelfth Man has been an aspiration of mine ever since my first yell practice. Being in the Corps of Cadets, I've come to love Texas A&M, its traditions and especially that fightin' Texas Aggie Spirit.

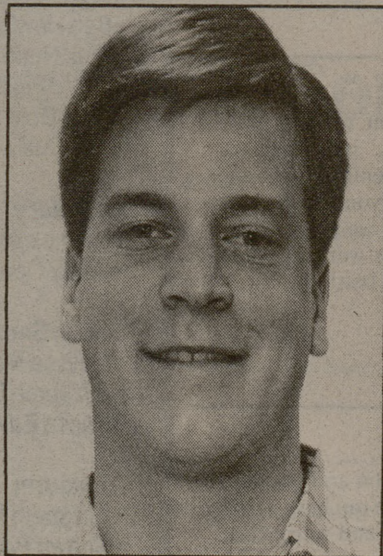

Being a yell leader takes a great deal of dedication and hard work and underlying love for Texas A&M. You have to be the kind of guy that gets tears in your eyes when the Aggie Band strikes up the Aggie War Hymn. I wouldn't run if I didn't think I could put forth 110 percent effort and take on the responsibilities of the job. If elected, I will bring Aggies together for another great year. Gig 'em!

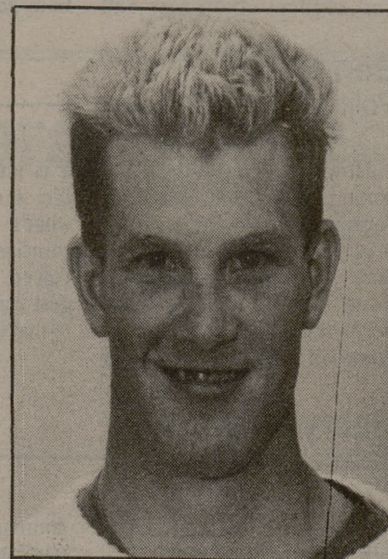

Teddy Peinado
Building Construction
Senior Yell Leader

Brent Brown
Business Administration
Junior Yell Leader

Cary Moore
Business Administration
Junior Yell Leader

Patrick Schulte
Industrial Distribution

Through my close ties with people in all areas of the student body, I feel that it is important that no one area take prominence. A yell leader needs to represent all of Texas A&M.

Honor, tradition, pride, spirit, challenge. The honor of representing the finest school in the nation. The traditions of the school carried out by the student body. The pride and spirit of Aggies everywhere shown in the Twelfth Man and the challenge of becoming among the few people lucky enough to lead the Fighting Texas Aggie Twelfth Man.

Thank you and Gig 'em.
