Restrictions fail to control violence: 4 killed, 39 hurt

BEIT SAHUR, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Hundreds of Arabs defied a massive security crackdown and battled Israeli troops in the West Bank on Wednesday to mark a Palestinian anniversary. Soldiers killed four Arabs and wounded 39 others, officials said.

The army's toughest restrictions in more than 20 years of occupation failed to contain the violence. The measures included mass arrests, the deployment of thousands of extra police, restrictions on media coverage and a ban on Palestinians traveling in occupied areas.

"We can't say that Land Day was quiet. It was not," West Bank commander Maj. Gen. Avraham Mitzna said.

The day commemorates a confrontation on March 30, 1976, when Israeli Arabs protested the forced sale of 1,600 acres of their land for Jewish settlement. Six Arabs were killed.

Wednesday's fatalities brought the Arab death toll to 123 since the unrest began Dec. 8, according to U.N. figures. One Israeli soldier was also killed.

The army closed the Arab-owned Palestine Press Service for six months, further illustrating the seriousness Israel attaches to reducing media coverage.

The agency, the only Arab information service, has been a vital source of breaking news for foreign journalists since Israel ordered the territories closed Monday.

The army barred reporters from entering the West Bank and Gaza Strip except in news pools with an army escort. Army spokesman Ofra Preuss said reporters violating the ban would be prosecuted with the maximum penalty being five years in prison.

U.S. television networks and some journalists entered the territories with military escorts. Others slipped through alone — taking back roads, accompanying Jewish settlers or posing as tourists.

In Arab towns throughout Israel, about 30,000 Israeli Arabs waved Palestinian flags and chanted anti-occupation slogans as helicopters circled overhead. About 4,000 extra police were deployed.

Troops clashed with Arab protesters who hurled rocks, bottles, metal bars and raised the outlawed Palestinian flag in street battles in a half-dozen areas around the biblical city of Bethlehem.

In the village of Beit Sahur, where tradition says Jesus' birth, about 200 Arab protesters clashed with troops who responded with tear gas and ammunition, Arab witnesses said.

Witnesses said one Palestinian was shot and wounded in the demonstrations. Mitzna said the high casualty rate was the result of army orders to crush PLO protests on Land Day.

"The high number of casualties was caused by the active, immediate and forceful measures of the army everywhere there was an anti-occupation order," Mitzna said.

Mitzna said four Arabs were killed by army gunfire and 45 were injured, most from shrapnel and tear gas and beatings. Israeli officials said 39 of the injured were shot.

The three-day crackdown on occupied lands began late Monday and early Tuesday. The 850 Palestinian on the West Bank were ordered confined to their homes while the 650,000 Arabs on the Strip were prohibited from leaving their homes.

In Washington, the State Department defended Israel's authority to maintain order in the territories, saying it should be exercised in a humane way.

Spokesman Charles E. Young supported assertions by Secretary of State Richard A. Holbrooke that Israel "not only has the obligation" to restore order

Swaggart to preach despite suspension

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart plans to resume preaching three months after he tearfully confessed to sin, his lawyer said Wednesday, a move that would defy a year-long suspension by his church and could lead to his dismissal.

Swaggart, an Assemblies of God minister who stepped down from the pulpit Feb. 21, will return May 22, said Bill Treeby, a lawyer for Swaggart and a board member of Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries.

The date coincides with the end of a three-month suspension by the church's Louisiana council.

The national church's General Presbytery on Tuesday overruled that term as too lenient and ordered a year-long suspension.

Although the fiery preacher did not specify his sins, a prostitute was said Swaggart said her to pose nude for him.

"We have an issue involving the constitution and bylaws of this organization," said Treeby, noting there was a conflict over whether the national presbytery or the Louisiana council has the right to discipline ministers.

"He is willing to submit himself to the Louisiana District," Treeby said. "He is considering an appeal to the national Presbytery."

Treeby said the national Presbytery might dismiss Swaggart from the denomination if he resumed preaching May 22, but that Swaggart would have the right to appeal that move.

The Rev. G. Raymond Carlson, the Assemblies' general superintendent, said that if Swaggart did not accept its ruling, "the Executive Presbytery would no doubt take action to dismiss him."

Asked if Swaggart had considered leaving the Assemblies, Treeby said, "He is considering the possibility of an appeal. He has not thought beyond that."

Utah judge lifts ban prohibiting abortion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A judge on Wednesday lifted a ban prohibiting a woman from obtaining an abortion despite her estranged husband's wishes, but the Utah Court of Appeals quickly issued its own restraining order halting an abortion.

District Judge David S. Young ruled that although Michael Reynolds may have the right to be consulted about any abortion involving his estranged wife, Jennifer, Mrs. Reynolds had the ultimate authority over whether to carry the fetus to term.

Within an hour of Young's ruling, the appeals court scheduled a Monday hearing to consider Reynolds' appeal.

Last week, Young ruled that Mrs. Reynolds could not have an abortion pending resolution of a divorce-related custody dispute involving both a 10-month-old infant and the 8-week-old fetus. But Wednesday, he accepted arguments by American Civil Liberties Union attorneys that the woman has a constitutional right to end her pregnancy.

Mrs. Reynolds, 18, of Salt Lake County, did not attend Wednesday's hearing and could not be located for comment.

Following the hearing but before the appellate court issued its restraining order, Mrs. Reynolds' attorney, Sandy Dorowitz, said he believed his client would secure an abortion as soon as possible.

ACLU Executive Director Robyn Blumner refused to say whether the abortion had already taken place or whether Mrs. Reynolds knew of the later court order.

Co-counsel Julie Bryan said the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Roe vs. Wade that husbands have no veto power over their wives' abortion decisions.

Senate dismisses impeachment charges

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Arizona Senate dismissed the third, most serious, impeachment charge against Gov. Evan Mecham Wednesday and moved toward considering a verdict on the two charges already heard.

The vote was a surprise to most involved, including the senator who made the motion, Republican Wayne Stump, who had predicted it would get no more than three votes.

Several of those who voted to dismiss said they were doing so in order to avoid prejudging Mecham's upcoming criminal trial on the charge that he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan. That would have been the subject of evidence on the third impeachment charge and Stump said it would have put the governor in "quasi-double jeopardy."

The motion passed on a simple majority with 16 of those present voting in favor and 12 voting no. Two senators were absent.

Before the vote, other senators had urged putting the third charge in abeyance while they vote on the first two, which allege that Mecham misused $80,000 from a protocol fund and obstructed an investigation of an alleged death threat to a member.

"If the governor is convicted on other things," Democratic Sen. Walker said, "if he is convicted, state ought not to have through the agony of this trial longer."

The governor's trial on charges related to the $350,000 campaign loan begins April 21. The state Supreme Court will hear Mecham, 63, the first U.S. governor to face an impeachment trial in decades, also faces a recall vote May 17.
