Jury chosen for suspect in kidnapping

BEAUMONT (AP) — A jury was selected Monday for the trial of a man charged with the May 1986 roadside abduction of a Texas City woman whose body was never found, officials said.

The trial was moved from Galveston to Beaumont by State District Judge Henry G. Dalehite because of pre-trial publicity in the case.

Jury selection began Monday morning in the case, and was completed by the afternoon, Randy Kitchen, courts administrator said.

Robert John King, 29, of Bacliff, is accused of abducting 19-year-old Shelley Sikes from her car as she returned home from her summer job at a Galveston restaurant.

King was arrested last June at an El Paso motel after he tried to slit his wrists and hang himself with a pair of shoestrings.

El Paso police called Galveston authorities after they found a suicide letter in King's possession that mentioned the murder of a woman in Galveston County.

If convicted of the aggravated kidnapping charge, King could face five to 99 years or life in prison and a fine of up to $10,000.

Galveston County District Attorney Mike Guarino expects the trial to last about two weeks.

"I'm very glad that we're going to start the trial and attempt to resolve this case," he said. "But at the same time, no one will rest until her body is found."

Guarino said he will call about 20 witnesses to testify in the trial.

Shortly after his arrest, King implicated Gerald Peter Zwarzst of El Lago. Zwarzst, 32, also was granted a change of venue, but the date and location are pending.

Neither man has admitted killing Sikes. King offered to take authorities to a site in Bacliff where he said her body was buried, but changed his mind after meeting with his family.

MSC Council redefines jobs, adds 2 nonvoting members

By Deborah L. West
 Staff Writer

The MSC Council approved by-laws updating job descriptions and added two nonvoting positions in their last meeting of the semester Monday night.

Linda Hartman, MSC Council president, said that as the titles and responsibilities of MSC officers change, constitutional definitions of the positions must be updated. Kevin Carruthers, the director of the new Multi-Cultural Services Center, and the president of the Interfraternity Council will join the council as nonvoting members next semester.

Barry Hoggard, vice president for educational programs, said the economic subcommittee of MSC Great Issues probably will become an independent committee in the 1990-91 school year.

MSC Great Issues has been two autonomous groups under one chairman, he said, and should be separated. The economics subcommittee probably will use the 1989-89 school year as a transition period.

Terri Rivera, vice president for cultural programs, asked that committee size and possible programming conflicts outside of educational programming be considered when evaluating the economics subcommittee.

Hartman said an independent economics committee was not constitutionally approved because the council wants to determine if sufficient funding and member support exist.

"The economics committee is relatively new, and until this year, unproven," she said. "We do not want to create a committee and then have no members to fill it."

The council reviewed the progress of a 400-call marketing survey that will measure the University's awareness of the MSC and its functions. Liz Hudson, vice president for public relations, said she had difficulty getting the manpower for the survey and hopes the results will not be skewed by the length of time it takes to complete the survey.

Traci Ryan, executive vice president for administration, distributed a "master plan." The plan is a composite of thoughts and ideas of this year's MSC Council leadership that next year's officers can use as a guidance tool, she said.

Number of working oil rigs increases; 941 actively search for oil and gas in U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of working oil and gas rigs in the United States rose by six this week to total 941, Baker Hughes Inc. announced.

In the previous week, the count lost eight rigs to total 935. A year ago, the count totaled 752, Baker Hughes said Monday.

The rig count reflects the number of rigs actively exploring for oil as of last Friday, not the number of rigs producing oil.

Baker Hughes, an oil toolmaker company, tallies the number of working rigs and the count is the widely-watched industry index of drilling activity.

Hughes Tool Co., which merged this year with Baker International Corp. of Orange, Calif., has kept track of the number of working rigs since 1940.

The rig count reached a peak of 4,500 active rigs in December 1981, which was the height of the oil boom. But oil prices plunged to less than $10 per 42-gallon barrel in the went with it, dropping to 663 — the lowest since Hughes began compiling figures.

Among the major oil producing states, New Mexico gained eight rigs, Oklahoma, seven; Colorado, five; Kansas and Louisiana, four each; California, three; and North Dakota, two.

Texas lost nine, Wyoming lost three; and Pennsylvania's rig count fell by two.

Buses link rural routes in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — In an effort to improve public transportation in rural Central Texas, Greyhound Lines Inc. said Monday is joining forces with Kerrville Bus Companies and the Capital Area Rural Transportation Authority.

The public-private effort, which involves nine counties, is part of a national campaign by Greyhound to connect urban and rural areas.

In the new program, publicly funded, rural transportation systems in Central Texas will be passengers from outlying areas to Greyhound or Kerrville terminals. There, the passengers can make connections to 10,000 communities nationwide on the Greyhound-Trailways work.

Operators in the Capital Area Rural Transportation System (CARTS), are based in San Antonio, Smithville, Dripping Springs, Lockhart, Luling, Austin and Round Rock. They provide general public transportation and special transportation for the elderly and disabled.

Kerrville Bus Companies, a private, intercity bus company that provides service through Texas and Louisiana.

Through the national program, Greyhound is providing greater mobility for rural residents, providing access to areas for visitors and also returning to its roots.
