Hogan to address Faculty Senate

When outgoing Student Body President Mason Hogan addresses the Faculty Senate Monday, he will offer thanks, explanations and challenges, he says.

Hogan says he will address relations between the faculty and student governing bodies from a past, present and future perspective.

He says he also will offer faculty members a chance to ask him questions if time permits.

"I'm open to what they have to say," Hogan says.

MSC variety show set for Friday night

By Marcena Fadal
Reporter

"I've Gotta Be Me" is this year's theme for the MSC All-University Variety Show to be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium.

"The Variety Show is an Aggie talent show performed during Parent's Weekend to get parents there to see their kids," Sharon Beisert, chairman of the show, said. "Tryouts were held in February and 50 acts tried out. Thirteen made the cut and will perform Friday."

Some of the acts include a solo vocalist, a tap dancer, a clog dancer, a guitar duo and a band.

The MSC Variety Show began in 1951 as the Aggie Talent Show. The winner went on to the

The Faculty Senate also will be approving candidates for graduation in May.

In other business, the Senate will consider:

- A revision in A&M's sexual harassment policy.

- A resolution calling for a system that classifies classrooms according to degree of equipment available.

- A resolution on prerequisites for core-curriculum science courses.

Intercollegiate Talent Show in which schools from a five-state region competed in G. Rollie White.

This year's master of ceremonies is comedian Eddy Strange.

"Strange has performed with Robin Williams, Sam Kinison and has been on 'Dick Clark's Keep on Cruisin', 'The David Brenner Show,' 'Comedy Tonight' and 'Show Time's Laff-Off,'" Beisert said. "He's really funny."

Special performances will be given by last year's Variety Show winner, "Out of Tune," and Miss Texas A&M Stephanie Smith.

Tickets for the Variety Show are available at the MSC Box Office and at all Ticketron outlets at a cost of $4 for students and $5 for others.

Symphonic band holds spring concert

By Eric Prather
Reporter

The Texas A&M University Symphonic Band will present its Spring Concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in Rudder Theater.

Admission to the concert will be $2. The concert will consist of a wide variety of music with selections by J.S. Bach, Gustav Holst, Dmitri Kabalevsky and others.

The band, which was formed in 1973, is a non-credit organization composed mostly of A&M students who are good musicians and wish to keep playing their instruments, Symphonic Band Director Bill Dean said.

This year 24 members of the 80-member band were part of the all-state band in high school. Also, a member of the A&M faculty is playing with the band this year.

The band is composed of students from Minnesota, Virginia, Oklahoma, Kansas, Kentucky and Texas.

Students must audition to become a member of the symphonic band. Students receive tryout music at the general meeting held at the first of each fall semester and then have a week to practice before auditions. Each fall, 30 to 40 new students audition, but the band retains many of its members from the previous year, Dean said. The number of members reauditioning has been increasing each year.

After tryouts are completed, the band begins practicing twice a week. Rehearsals are Tuesday and Thursday from 12:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m.

This is the only time the band practices together, Dean said. It's hard to call extra rehearsals because of conflicts with the students' schedules. He believes the band is successful because of the limited time it has to practice.

"The students say the band is good therapy for them," Dean said. "They can get away from their studies for awhile and relax by playing their instruments."

The band plays a wide variety of music.

"We play heavier pieces at our concerts, but we also play lighter pieces because the audience enjoys it," Dean said.

During the year the band gives many concerts, Dean said. Besides playing at A&M the band has played in Dallas, Houston and Beaumont.

Inmates have mixed feelings about penalties

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Robert Drew and James Smith both are convicted killers facing death next month for slayings they say they did not commit.

However, Drew has said Wednesday he will fight his penalty, while Smith insists he wants to die.

"New trial, commutation, pardon — I'll take any of them," Drew said. "I'll never stop my fight as far as appeals. I'll go as far as the law allows."

Drew faces death May 4 for the February 1983 stabbing death of Jeffrey Mays, a 17-year-old runaway from Alabama. Court records showed Drew stabbed Mays after a fight along a freeway east of Houston and allegedly took Mays' wallet and watch after the slaying.

Smith, meanwhile, has a May 11 lethal injection date for the March 1983 shooting death of Larry Rohus during a robbery.

"I have no faith in the criminal justice system," Smith said. "It's foolhardy. I've spent enough time here. It's time to get out."

"Hey, give me a break! I refuse to accept this. I believe to stay here year after year is a waste. Nobody wants you to die. That's a terrible thing."

Smith said he does not want to end up like old-timers on death row and tells anti-death penalty lawyers who plead to help him to go elsewhere.

"I told them, 'You're wasting your time. Other people can use your help. Go talk to them,'" Smith said.

Other inmates and relatives also have asked him to accept legal help.

"It's just so much sentimental and emotional nonsense," Smith said.

Smith, who believes in voodoo, worked in New Orleans as a tarot card reader and was a taxi driver in Houston at the time of his arrest. He said he was confronted by two men as he emerged from his cab, pulled a gun on them and then was subdued by several other people before being apprehended by police. His gun was linked to the weapon used in the Rohus slaying.

Prosecutors maintained Smith was fleeing the insurance office at the time of his arrest.

"It's not a death wish," Smith said of his desire to die. "They gave me a sentence. I'm not a volunteer. You weigh the pros and cons."

Drew, who says his claim to fame is that he's the only Vermont native on a death row anywhere, blames his problems on alcoholism.

"My guts were in the bottom of a beer can," he said of the stabbing that left Mays dead.

But Drew insisted the killer was Earnest Purleauski, who is serving a 60-year term for the Mays slaying. The three were among four men in a car heading toward Houston from Louisiana. Drew said he and Mays were hitchhiking.

"I watched him stab him," Drew said of Purleauski. "I wasn't about to argue. I was drunk. I knew I was in no condition to be playing games."
