Kendrick squeaks by Welch to win right to face Barton

In the runoff for the 6th District, which includes Bryan-College Station, N.P. "Pat" Kendrick won the right to face Republican Joe Barton in November.

Kendrick, a contractor from Joshua, edged Waxahachie farmer John E. Welch on Tuesday. Kendrick tallied 51 percent to Welch's 49.

Welch said he may ask for a recount. "It's something I'll consider over night," he said.

The 6th District stretches from south of Dallas to north of Houston.

In another district, political newcomer Larry Milner defeated Bob Price, who held the Panhandle-area seat 20 years ago, to grab the Republican nomination in the 13th District.

Milner won 56 percent of the vote in defeating Price, and now will face State Sen. Bill Sarpalius in the battle for the state's lone vacant Congressional seat, given up by GOP U.S. Senate candidate Beau Boulter.

The former president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce said district voters were ready for someone new.

"That's what they voted for tonight," he said.

Milner said Boulter's presence in the runoff help generate voter interest in his race.

"I think if Boulter had not been on the ticket it would have been very difficult to get out as many votes as we did," he said.

With more than one-quarter of the vote tallied in District 22, south of Houston, Konrad, with 56 percent, led Fresno attorney Wayne Walker, with 44 percent, for a chance to oust Republican incumbent DeLay.

In the Panhandle-area district, Milner eliminated five other Republican candidates.

Price, who held the seat from 1966 until 1972, and Milner both spent thousands of dollars in their campaigns.

Milner raised more than $105,000, spending almost $80,000 according to financial disclosure forms filed at the end of March.

Price raised $11,500 and spent $25,000.

But questions about the farmer and rancher's personal financial problems dogged him in the final days of campaigning.

Price's farming and ranching operation is being reorganized under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, and court records show candidate has $4 million in debt.

Price has said his business problems, which he blames on unstable government farm policies, are able him to understand the importance of improved farm policy.

In the third district to hold congressional runoff, Houston's Richard Konrad led for the square off against Republican DeLay.
