Fiscal fitness.

The best thing about Plantation Oaks isn't the $10/month membership to Aerofit. Or the on-site facilities like jacuzzi, two pools, men's and women's weight rooms (each with a sauna), tennis courts, basketball and volleyball courts. The best thing about Plantation Oaks is that you get all this and more for as little as $170 a month this summer. That's fiscal fitness.

Former parole officer gives support to handgun licenses

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas professor who formerly was a New York parole officer joined representatives of the Texas State Rifle Association on Wednesday in supporting a proposal to license the carrying of handguns in Texas.

Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, chairman of the House Subcommittee on the Licensing of Firearms, noted that a handgun law had failed in the 1987 Legislature and said his subcommittee was created to identify problems within current state law, if there are any.

James Brown of Austin, legislative director of the rifle association, said the law now prohibits the carrying of handguns by citizens.

Dr. Edward Leddy, professor of Criminal Justice Studies at Tarleton State University, said Texas' handgun law is vague, makes it impossible to prove a legal right to carry a handgun and forces police "to decide on the basis of superficial appearances whether to make an arrest."

"The criminal in a suit and tie may go free while an honest working man in jeans gets arrested," Leddy said.

David Edmondson of Dallas, executive director of the rifle association, said 47 states have a permit system for carrying handguns.

He said doctors, nurses, real estate and insurance salesmen, as well as retired law officers who have made some enemies, are among those who are carrying handguns illegally for self-protection.

Leddy said laws which refuse to grant licenses to citizens to carry handguns to protect themselves "are being widely disregarded. Instead, they follow the old police maxim: It is better to be tried by 12 than carried by six."
