WTSU board rejects committee's report academic freedom

CANYON (AP) — West Texas State University's board of regents Tuesday rejected an external review committee's finding that academic freedom is "virtually non-existent" at the school and pledged to support embattled President Ed Roach.

The more than 50 faculty members assembled at the emergency meeting booed as regent Dee Osborne of Houston read a statement summarizing the panel's report and the regent's analysis of it. Osborne said the panel found that "academic freedom is virtually non-existent at West Texas State University."

But the board disagreed with that finding. "The plain fact of the matter is that almost all of the charges that have been made, including those contained in the panel's report, which can be in any way substantiated, are trivial in nature," Osborne said in the statement.

"There simply are no fundamental issues of academic freedom at stake in this situation. No faculty member is being punished for what he is teaching or researching. Tenure has not been denied to anyone for having controversial views."

Roach's critics have accused him of retaliating against faculty members who speak out against his policies and who say his management style is dictatorial. An underground faculty-published newsletter has railed against Roach.

Board chairman T. Boone Pickens Jr. blasted WTSU's dissenting faculty members, who have repeatedly criticized Roach's methods of management.

"We have heard the grievances of the faculty and while individually some were substantive, most were petty," Pickens said.

Acknowledging that many faculty have called for Roach's resignation,

Pickens said WTSU's president "serves not at the pleasure of the faculty, but at the pleasure of the board of regents."

"We will not bow to pressure tactics nor will we be intimidated by those who spread dissension through rumors, innuendoes and false reports," he said.

Faculty senate president Gary Byrd, whom Pickens charged had lied to the board, declined to comment after the meeting.

The board voted 8-3 to implement a plan under which Roach would allocate more time to planning the restructuring of the university and fundraising. Daily administrative duties would fall under the purview of the school's vice president for academic affairs and the Deans' Council.

The board's analysis of the panel's report found "a number of factual errors in the allegations cited by the Review Panel," Osborne said.

The panel consisted of three academics from outside the university who were appointed to investigate the rift between WTSU faculty and Roach, as well as faculty allegations that freedom of expression was being quashed.

The panel's report has not been made public and was referred to the state attorney general's office for an opinion after Amarillo media requested its release under the Texas Open Records Act.

After coming to the university in 1984, Roach has come under intense fire for his efforts to restructure the university. Regents voted to cut $115,152,000 from the school's budget by merging seven colleges into four and 23 departments into 14, cutting back on sports and switching from open to selective admissions standards.

Regents vote to stop providing birth control

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas State University System regents have voted 5-4 to ban the dispensing of contraceptives at four universities despite a plea from a health center physician at Southwest Texas State University.

The board Monday repeated a May 19 vote to ban contraceptives from being prescribed or dispensed at Southwest Texas in San Marcos, Sam Houston State at Huntsville, Angelo State at San Angelo and Sul Ross State in Alpine.

The earlier vote was nullified by a court order after students filed suit. Regent Norman Elder of Del Rio repeated the board majority's earlier reasoning that contraceptives do not fit in with the universities' educational mission.

"We don't do back surgery, do we? We don't do heart surgery. We do have to, I'm saying, draw the line somewhere," Elder told Dr. Joe West of the SWT health center.

West said his ability to prescribe birth control pills at SWT had helped cut in half a pregnancy rate that he estimated was one in 10 girls per year when he joined the health center staff in 1980.

Currently, the rate is about one in 20 female students, West said.

Condoms, which had been available at no charge at the SWT health center, also were banned by the regents' vote.

In other action, the board voted 5-4 to review its earlier 5-4 decision to demolish an historic SWT building — Carroll Hall, which was built in 1907. Regent W.C. Perry of Waco changed his vote.

Program frees bars from alcohol suits

In 1987, the Texas Legislature enacted a law allowing owners of establishments serving alcohol to be free of liability if their employees have been trained through an approved alcohol serving program.

Dr. Maurice Dennis, professor of safety education, has been involved with the Texas Safety Council in the development of the Responsible Alcohol Serving Program since October 1987.

Dennis developed a four-hour program that teaches alcohol-server responsible serving techniques.

Four main areas covered in the program are awareness and law, the effects of alcohol, prevention techniques and intervention techniques.

Instructors are contracting with large companies such as 11, Hilton Hotel and Bennigan's to train their servers.

Award winner will do research at A&M

A May graduate who received one of 30 National Science Foundation awards for 1988 has been chosen to conduct research on his prize-winning project at Texas A&M.

Carl Beard, who has a bachelor's in nuclear engineering, received the Creativity in Engineering award, a three-year, $30,000-per-year grant. The award could be used at any university in the United States, but Beard said he will stay at A&M because of the outstanding nuclear engineering department.

Beard won the award for his proposal to study a method to reduce the hazards of high-level nuclear waste by bombarding it with other radioactive particles. He will begin work on the project in the fall with Dr. Bahram Nassersharif, assistant professor of nuclear engineering. Beard said this project is within Nassersharif's area of expertise.

Nassersharif said the award is prestigious in the academic community and has significance that goes beyond the monetary award.

Beard said he will work on his master's while conducting his research, and he plans to eventually earn his doctoral degree in nuclear engineering.

It is unreasonable to expect this research to lead to the elimination of all hazardous waste, he said, but he hopes to find a way to reduce the hazard of spent reactor fuel, the most hazardous type of waste.
