Perot bids for takeover of contract

DALLAS (AP) — A bid by billionaire H. Ross Perot's new company to take over a lucrative Medicaid contract held by his old company has caught state officials by surprise.

J. Livingston Kosberg, chairman of the board of the Texas Human Services Department, said his agency already had begun hammering out financial details of a new contract with Electronic Data Systems when Perot Systems Corp. entered the picture.

"These are two giants fighting it out, and we just don't want to get hit by a flying missile," said Donald Kelley, deputy commissioner for Texas' health-care services.

With Perot leading the way, EDS won the contract in 1976, helping establish its reputation nationwide.

The contract, which expires August 1989, is being contested for the first time since EDS won it after an often publicly bitter battle with Bradford National Corp. in the early 1980s.

"We certainly will be there and will bid," EDS spokesman Roger Still said.

"We look at this as a competitor and will treat them as a competitor."

Analysts said Perot's extensive knowledge of EDS, complemented by the two dozen former EDS employees on his staff, give his firm some competitive strengths.

"Ross and his people ought to know exactly, contract by contract, what EDS has," said Stephen McClellan, a technology analyst with Merrill Lynch in New York. "They'll know what deals are expiring, what their (profit) margins are, and what it'll take to beat them on a bid."

Under the pact — EDS assumes data-processing and administrative responsibility for more than $800 million in the state's Medicaid program — EDS could net close to $7 million depending in part on performance.

Perot founded EDS in 1962 and sold the firm to GM in 1984. In December 1986, after highly-publicized conflict between Perot and GM, Perot and three other top EDS executives left the computer services company when GM agreed to pay them $850 million.

Under terms of the GM buyout agreement, Perot is barred from operating a for-profit firm until after December 1989.

Perot announced the startup of the new firm Perot Systems and a controversial no-bid contract to automate the U.S. Postal Service in June.

He said opposition led by General Motors Corp. and EDS prompted him to compete against EDS for commercial projects.

The General Services Administration later suspended the Postal Service pact, but Perot has challenged the GSA's action.

Brazos Beautiful to decide fate of achievement award

By Lucinda Orr Reporter

The fate of $130,000 awarded to Bryan-College Station for its 1987 landscape beautification endeavors will be decided this week by Brazos Beautiful Inc. and the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Bryan-College Station was chosen in the 100,000 to 300,000 population category for the annual Governor's Community Achievement Award, a grant first given in 1986. The award recognizes eight cities — one in each population category — and proportionally allocates among them a sum approved by the state highway commission.

This year $700,000 was allocated among the winning cities.

Diane Mills, executive coordinator of Brazos Beautiful, said Texas A&M students played a big part in the community's efforts by participating in Adopt-a-Highway, the Big Event, and distributing litter bags and bumper stickers along with individual projects.

"We really appreciate the Aggies and are looking forward to working with them next year," Mills said.

Gov. Bill Clements announced the winning cities last month in a ceremony at the Hope Arena of Galveston's Moody Gardens. Of the eight, the city considered best overall was given the Award of Excellence.

Instead of a spoken announcement, a band played the Aggie War Hymn to identify the winner — Bryan-College Station.

Award criteria includes beautification efforts such as litter cleanup programs, education, publicity and recycling accomplished during the previous year.

"This award exists because the highway department's $24 million litter-control cost was increasing by 20 percent per year," Mills said.

Faced with such expense, the department set up programs in 1985 such as this award and its "Don't Mess With Texas" campaign.

Others named for the 1988 Governor's Community Achievement Award were Port Aransas, Caldwell, Livingston, Lake Jackson, Victoria, Wichita Falls and Houston.
