Cisneros decides to withdraw name in mayor election

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros, one of the country's leading Hispanic politicians, said Monday he has decided against running for a fifth term in order to enter private life.

The 41-year-old mayor, whose term will expire next spring, said he made his final decision only shortly before addressing a news conference Monday afternoon about his future plans.

Cisneros, who was interviewed by Walter Mondale for a vice presidential running mate role in 1984 and who has been mentioned frequently as a possible Cabinet-level appointee, said he thinks 14 years serving the city is enough and that it is time to move on.

"It's been work and it's been fun, but mostly, it's been the most engrossing and fulfilling thing I've ever done," Cisneros said.

"Basically, I've been at it for 14 years — eight years as mayor and six as council member. That's a long time to go at full throttle," he said. "Our country believes that eight years in a high office should be enough to get a job done."

"Presidents serve eight years. Governors serve eight years. And eight years is a good round number for a mayor, especially this one," he said.

Last year, Cisneros said he would not be running for statewide office because he wanted to devote time to San Antonio projects and to his son, John Paul Anthony, who was born with a congenital heart defect and with stomach abnormalities.

Earlier this year, Cisneros, a former president of the National League of Cities, turned down an offer to make a keynote address to the Democratic National Convention, saying he wanted to devote time to the city projects, including a controversial domed stadium proposal and a regional water plan.

Cisneros, who has met Pope John Paul II and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, was approached earlier this year by several San Antonio businessmen about the prospect of forming a business to handle business investments.

The mayor's salary is less than $5,000 and the mayor, with two adolescent daughters and an ill infant, had supplemented that income with lectures, columns and speaking engagements, but had to cut back because of the health of his son and the time-consuming city projects.

Cisneros said he needs to find a good-paying job because his two daughters are approaching college age and because the medical expenses for his son are sure to increase.

"Today is a little sad for me — it has to be," Cisneros said. "But I expect to wake up tomorrow morning, ready to make the most of the next eight months, same pace, same energy, same devotion to the city until midnight of the day before the next mayor takes office."

Church teacher: Pilot says God intervened

GREENVILLE (AP) — The pilot of ill-fated Delta Air Lines Flight 1141 told his Sunday school teacher that God must have intervened to spare so many lives when the jet crashed at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Capt. Larry Davis' Sunday school teacher said the pilot did not expect to survive the Aug. 31 crash that killed 14 of the 108 people on board. The pilot was eager to be interviewed by the National Transportation Safety Board, which was trying Monday to schedule a time.

"I think he thought he was going to die," Ed Wichern, who talked with Davis, said at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas about the crash.

Wichern, a teacher at Aldersgate Church where Davis is a member, quoted Davis as saying when he realized his plane wasn't going to make it, "It's all right with me, Lord."

"I think he said something like, 'You don't get out of a cockpit in an airplane crash like that with fuel flooding over you,'" Wichern said Sunday.

Davis, 48, was piloting the Boeing 727 when it crashed seconds after takeoff and burst into flames. The three-man cockpit crew and some 91 passengers survived the crash.

"We feel like God intervened," Wichern said. "Otherwise, why would so many people live through a plane crash like that?"

Davis was trapped in the cockpit for 30 minutes and was the last to be removed from the plane.

"I told him it must have been a scary 30 minutes," Wichern said. "He told me, 'What 30 minutes?'"

The pilot does not fully recall the time he lay injured in the plane, the Rev. Ralph Anderson, pastor of Aldersgate, said.

However, Anderson said some passengers recalled Davis seemed to be directing them out of the aircraft even though he was unable to move.

"His jaw is wired together, but you can understand him pretty well," Anderson told members of Wichern's Sunday school class.

Officials advise homeowners to test for radon

AUSTIN (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency and the Public Health Service advised all homeowners Monday to get their homes tested for deadly radon gas in light of new findings showing far more contaminated homes than expected in seven states and a newly discovered radon-prone soil formation in Minnesota and North Dakota.

Nearly one in three homes tested in the seven states had radon concentrations exceeding the EPA guidelines of four picocuries per liter of air.

But in Minnesota 45 percent of the homes tested exceeded the guidelines, and in North Dakota 60 percent exceeded guidelines.

Radon is an odorless, colorless gas resulting from the radioactive decay of trace amounts of uranium found in all soil. The gas kills when its own radioactive decay products lodge in the lung and irradiate tissue.

Previously, EPA had estimated that radon inhalation could account for 20,000 of the nation's 130,000 annual lung cancer deaths, about 85 percent of which would be the result of smoking.

In the past, based on smaller surveys, EPA had estimated that proportion of homes nationwide exceeding its guidelines probably ranged from 8 percent and 12 percent.

An Energy Department study estimated the proportion at 7 percent. The agency also surveyed on Indian reservations in Minnesota and Wisconsin, where 10 percent of the homes in tested exceeded the guidelines.
