Walker dominated Cards, says Landry

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday that Herschel Walker's fourth period against the Phoenix Cardinals was why the Tony Dorsett trade was made this summer.

Walker carried nine times on a 13-play, 81-yard drive to the winning touchdown Monday night in a 17-14 NFL victory over the Phoenix Cardinals.

"Herschel was just dominating," Landry said. "He's just so powerful that you can be in position to make the tackle and he runs over you."

The Cowboys traded Dorsett to Denver after Landry decided Dallas' future was with the younger Walker.

Walker rushed 29 times for 149 yards against the Cardinals and scored on a 3-yard run.

"Herschel is the number one challenge of any defense that plays us," Landry said. "What you saw in the fourth quarter against the Cardinals is the type of offense we are leading toward."

Landry said, "I guess in that fourth quarter was as many times as Herschel has ever run the ball. He just gets stronger. That was the hardest workout he's had since summer camp. I was beginning to wonder if he had any spring left in his legs."

Landry said he would love to be an offensive lineman blocking for Herschel.

"I would really enjoy blocking for him," Landry said. "He's worth the price of a ticket, even in Phoenix."

Landry said the Cowboys, who are 1-1, are "playing a much tougher offense than we did in the 1970s. We are blocking tougher. Our young offensive line is improving."

Landry said quarterback Steve Pelluer only had "an average" game against the Cardinals.

"He didn't beat us or get trapped," Landry said. "He only had one bad throw when he underthrew a receiver deep. He's learning. It's a progressive thing. He threw a ball away down there on the goal when the receiver was covered. He learned that from last week."

Hermesmeyer

Lady Aggies winning the SWC title and finishing in the top 10 of the national rankings. For 1990, Givins has set the NCAA Final Four and a national title as realistic goals for A&M.

"It's (the NCAA tourney) definitely something I want to experience and we'll be very disappointed as a team if we don't make it this year," Hermesmeyer said.

These lofty goals played a major part in getting Hermesmeyer to attend A&M.

"I'm goal-oriented like (Givins) is, and I liked that about his program," she said.

Hermesmeyer has modest personal goals this year and hopes to keep improving while fulfilling her role as a backup outside attacker behind seniors Cheri Steensma and Vivian Viera.

"Basically, my job is to work as hard as I can and be ready to step in whenever and wherever I'm needed," Hermesmeyer said.

Hermesmeyer, the youngest of four children, participated in soccer, track, basketball and softball, as well as volleyball.

"I started playing sports when I was little because I was raised around boys and I was a rough kind of kid," she said. "I started out playing in a T-ball league and I was in Little Dribblers (basketball) and other sports groups."

She began her volleyball career as a sixth grader in a YMCA league and has stuck with it ever since.

"I decided to stay with volleyball in high school because I got more attention for it and I loved it so much," she said.

Hermesmeyer chose A&M over Duke, Clemson, Texas Tech, Baylor and Texas-Arlington.

"I was impressed with the overall package here as far as academics, facilities and spirit," she said. "Duke had the academics, but A&M had the total combination."

She's impressed with the spirit of the fans here despite the small crowds.

"We have a lot of spirit as a team and our crowds are spirited," she said. "The crowd is a big advantage for us."

The Lady Aggies have been competitive against tough competition and look to only get better as the season progresses. A big test for the team will be a trip to California next week for three games, including a match with national power San Jose State.

"This will provide some good opportunities to expose our program," Givins said. "We're ahead of schedule and I was real pleased with our performance last weekend."

Conference

"It seems like every week we play a Heisman Trophy candidate," Sherrill said. "He has tremendous speed and great action in picking holes and cutting back. He'll break every record that Alabama's ever had."

He also said this year's Tide possesses the best talent Alabama has had in a long time.

Defensively, Alabama returns eight starters headed by inside linebacker Derrick Thomas.

Thomas recorded 18 sacks last year for 142 yards in losses. Former Alabama All-America linebacker Cornelius Bennett made only 16 in his entire career. Bennett was the first player picked in this last year's NFL draft and is playing for the Buffalo Bills.

Sherrill said Alabama Head Coach Bill Curry will play Thomas almost anywhere on defense.

Sherrill said Alabama will be the fastest team the Aggies will play all year.

"They'll stunt a lot and turn Thomas loose quite a bit. They're awful quick."

From an offensive standpoint, Alabama played with a no-huddle offense against Temple.

Sherrill said, "That will probably be a big part of their year. I'm glad we're home, it'll be hard for them to go with no huddle in front of 73,000 people."

Seoul officials take stand on drug issue

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Olympic officials Tuesday averted a U.S. boycott of opening ceremonies, then took on the drug issue by unveiling a state-of-the-art testing center and a new, get-tough rule.

U.S. athletes were so upset over a plan by organizers to limit the size of teams marching in Saturday's opening ceremonies — effectively leaving out about half of the 611-member American team — they threatened to stay away en masse.

Within hours the International Olympic Committee and Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee retreated and said any athlete who wanted to take part could do so.

commission. "Education is a first step, but we need more sanctions as well."

The IOC's executive board have the power to impose penalties that "may extend to lifetime suspension from all forms of competition in whatever manner the Olympic Games or in any other competitions organized under the auspices of the IOC or its patronage."

The IOC agreed unanimously at its 94th session that people make, distribute or finance purchase of any of the more than 90 items on its list of banned substances should be barred from Olympic involvement.

The only exception, the IOC said, would be doctors, pharmacists and other members of the medical profession treating athletes.

Officials also showed off a million drug-testing center with computers, chromatographs and mass spectrometers set to begin the analysis of urine samples of all medalists and a random sampling of other athletes.

"Athletes who use drugs are imprudent, ill-advised, and plain stupid," said Dr. Robert Gal, a member of the IOC's medical commission.

Angel Myers, a U.S. swimmer, already has been disqualified for the use of steroids, as have four members of the Canadian weightlifting team.

All were caught by tests in their home countries.

The lab here will receive about 200 samples a day.

"It's mostly the athletes who use the steroids who get caught," said lab director Dr. Jong Park, a University of Maryland professor who has spent the last three years preparing for the Games.

In addition to amphetamines, beta blockers, diuretics and other drugs, the drug-testers also look for the first time for marijuana.

Pot is not banned by the IOC, but some member nations are nervous about the number of athletes who use it.

Park said his lab won't identify users by name.

"It is their right," the IOC and SLOOC said in a statement.

Volleyball player Robert Partie said the ceremony is a big part of the Games.

"We've been looking forward to doing it, and it would be a shame if it didn't work out," he said.

Evie G. Dennis, chief of the U.S. mission, said the restrictions, designed to reduce participation from 13,000 athletes to 8,000 and speed up the show, were not acceptable and were resented by the Americans.

"Every American who has a right to compete here feels that the chance to march in the opening ceremonies is the culmination of the Olympic dream itself," said Mike Moran, spokesman for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"Any athlete who represents his or her country and could not march would have a disappointment probably exceeding any failures they suffered on the playing field," he said.

Disappointment looms for drug users and dealers under the Olympics' high-tech testing system and anti-drug program.

Drug dealers could be banned from the Games for life under the resolution adopted by the IOC.

"We believe in two things in the fight against doping — sanctions and education," said Prince Alexander de Merode of Belgium, chairman of the IOC's medical

Rozelle says his friends should buy Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — New York billionaire Robert Tisch should purchase the Dallas Cowboys, said his friend, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"We've talked about it a great deal and I think he'd be a terrific owner," Rozelle told the Dallas Morning News Monday night at the Dallas-Phoenix game.

"He's the kind of owner that the NFL would want and welcome," Rozelle said. "He's a great success in business, he's a former postmaster general, and he would do a terrific job of the Cowboys. I'm encouraging him to do it."

But Tisch, a close friend of Rozelle, is concerned about the commuting distance between New York and Dallas.

Tisch, as Cowboys owner, could continue to live in New York and allow Tex Schramm to operate the franchise.

"He has a great interest in sports," said Rozelle. "I think he wants to own a pro sports team, but he would like something a little closer home. I don't think he would be hands-on owner."

"He has a great deal of love for Tex and Cowboys management," Rozelle said. "But he doesn't want to be an absentee owner, either, so I think making the commute is something he would not enjoy."

Rozelle, asked if the commuting distance and not Dallas Cowboys majority owner H.R. "Bum" Bright ported $150 million asking price for the team and its leases at Texas Stadium would be the deciding factor, said, "I think it could be."

Bright has asked Schramm to form a group of investors to buy the team.

Rozelle is a neighbor of Tisch's in Harrison, N.Y., and the two played tennis once a week.

"I know him well," said Rozelle. "He's a close friend. His interest in the Cowboys is genuine."

Tisch has visited Dallas to review the team's financial records.
