Holieway: Sooners may have to pass to win high-scoring game with USC

Associated Press

Jamelle Holieway, the consummate wishbone quarterback, says Oklahoma may take to the air Saturday when the third-ranked Sooners face No. 5 Southern California in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"We have to put points on the board, and the only way to do that is to throw the ball," he said. "I believe it's going to be a high-scoring game."

The Sooners, 2-0, have lost their past two meetings with the Trojans, 2-0, and have scored only seven points in the last six quarters against USC.

Holieway has attempted 10 passes this year in victories over North Carolina and Arizona, completing five for 134 yards and one touchdown.

The Sooners rank fifth in the nation in rushing with 328 yards a game while the Trojan defense is 12th best against the run.

USC coach Larry Smith realizes the game will loom large in the national rankings. He is also aware that a West Coast team hasn't captured the national championship since USC won in 1972.

"This is a big game for national prestige," he said.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, Wisconsin visits No. 1 Miami, Fla.; Tennessee is at No. 4 Auburn; No. 6 Georgia travels to No. 14 South Carolina; No. 7 LSU plays at Ohio State; No. 8 Notre Dame hosts Purdue; Michigan State faces No. 9 Florida State; and Arizona State meets No. 10 Nebraska.

Also, No. 11 West Virginia is at No. 16 Pitt; No. 12 Clemson travels to Georgia Tech; Vanderbilt visits No. 13 Alabama; No. 15 Penn State hosts Rutgers; San Jose State is at No. 17 Washington; Texas A&M faces No. 18 Oklahoma State; Wake Forest travels to No. 19 Michigan; and Mississippi State plays at No. 20 Florida.

Columbia, losers of 42 games in a row, plays Lafayette, 2-0, in New York. The Lions bowed to Harvard, 41-7, in their first game and have not won since a 21-18 victory over Yale on Oct. 15, 1983.

On the other hand, the top-rated Hurricanes, 2-0, have won 34 consecutive regular-season games, including a thrilling 31-30 come-from-behind victory last week over Michigan.

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson is grateful for the chance to play the winless Badgers — 42-point underdogs — after two games against nationally-ranked opponents.

"I think it's a little bit of a relief not going into another week of hype and emotion," he said, hoping to move his team closer to the record of 45 straight victories, set by Oklahoma from 1953-57.

Junior quarterback Steve Walsh said this week he might skip his senior year for the chance to play in the NFL. But Walsh said his main concern these days is bringing a second national title to Coral Gables.

South Carolina quarterback Todd

Ellis, who has thrown for 712 yards and five touchdowns in the Gamecocks' three victories this season, is expected to continue his aerial assault against Georgia, 3-0.

The Bulldogs gave up more than 700 passings yards against Tennessee and Mississippi State, prompting Coach Vince Dooley to say, "I'm sure South Carolina is licking their chops — particularly the quarterback and ends — as they look at our past history this year."

Williams, Schroeder in ironic injury shuffle

Associated Press

An injury sidelines Super Bowl MVP Doug Williams of the Washington Redskins and Jay Schroeder gets to start.

"I'm excited, no question about it," the 27-year-old Schroeder said. "It's an opportunity and it's up to me to take advantage."

Mark Rypien is also bubbling with enthusiasm over the chance to direct a high-powered offense and prove to his teammates that he can get the job done.

"They'll have to see what Mark Rypien is made of. Of course, I'm excited — and nervous," he said.

Once upon a time, Williams, Schroeder and Rypien were teammates on the Redskins. Their fortunes now are intertwined in a web of irony.

Schroeder's stock rose when he took over for the injured Joe Theismann and went 27-8 as a starter. Williams, a one-time star in Tampa Bay before jumping to the USFL, got his chance last year when Schroeder was injured and led Washington to the NFL title.

Rypien, the 26-year-old third-string, waited. He played in preseason games but never saw action in a regular season contest.

But his talent impressed Coach Joe Gibbs enough to deal the unhappy Schroeder away on Sept. 5 to the Los Angeles Raiders.

On Wednesday, after Williams complained of abdominal pains during the team practice, Gibbs spoke to Rypien.

"He said, 'Be intense and watch what's going on,'" Rypien said.

Rypien had better be a quick learner — he'll start on Sunday for the NFC East-leading Redskins, 2-1, against the Phoenix Cardinals, 1-2, because Williams will be out at least one month following an appendectomy.

"For him, this is terrible," Rypien said. "For me, I guess it's time to put up or shut up."

Meanwhile, Schroeder — an All-Pro in 1986 when he threw for more than 4,000 yards — will have the opportunity to show the Raiders, 1-2, he was worth the price of star offensive tackle Jim Lachey and two draft picks.

"This is the right time. I had time to get used to the people here, and the system, and now it's up to me," he said while preparing for Monday night's game in Denver against the 1-2 Broncos.

In other NFL games this week end, Atlanta visits Dallas; the Bears are in Green Bay; Cleveland faces the Bengals in Cincinnati in an AFC Central battle; winless Indianapolis hosts Miami; New England travels to Houston; and the surprising Jets play the Lions in the Silverdome.

Also, the Vikings play in Philadelphia; Pittsburgh hosts undefeated Buffalo; Tampa Bay faces New Orleans in the Superdome; the Chargers are in Kansas City; the 49ers visit Seattle in an interconference matchup; and the Rams play at the New York Giants.

The Browns and Bengals meet in Cincinnati in the season's first "Battle of Ohio."

"This is probably the biggest game of the year for us to this point," said Bengals quarterback boomer Edson, who leads the NFL with nine touchdown passes.

of producing a time like that," she said. "I can't swim a 4:03."

Evans' time was fast enough to win a gold medal in the men's 400 freestyle in any Olympics before 1972.

She still has one more event, the 800 freestyle, and she owns the world record in that, too.

The boxing controversy, or Battle of Byun, if you will, began after South Korean fighter Byun Jong-il lost a 4-1 decision to Alexandar Hristov of Bulgaria. The Korean had been penalized two points for head butting, perhaps costing him the fight.

When the decision was announced, one Korean coach entered the ring, gesturing angrily at Walker, and then another came in, followed by a score of other boxing officials and Koreans. A chair and a bottle were thrown, and it took dozens of police to clear the ring of all but Byun.

Almost totally lost in the boxing brouhaha was Kennedy McKinney's first-round knockout, giving the U.S. team its fourth victory in a row.

McKinney, of Killeen, was a heavy favorite over Erick-Giovanni Perez of Guatemala in the 119-pound class, and it was brutally evident. McKinney knocked Perez down with a right hand only seconds into the fight, then floored him with another right mid-way through the round. The fight ended at 1:31 of the round.

"Obviously, he didn't have too many boxing skills," McKinney said. "It's better to get them easy like that. By the time I reach the finals, I'll be fresh and I'll win the gold."

Bulgarian weightlifter Mitko Grablev became the first medal-winner to be disqualified at these Games for drugs, losing his world-record victory in the 56-kilogram division when his urinalysis showed the banned diuretic furosemide.

The U.S. men's volleyball continued defense of its Olympic championship, battling back to beat Argentina 11-15, 11-15, 15-4, 17-15, 15-7 and better its record to 3-0.
