U.S. boxers slug way into finals

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — U.S. boxers conjured memories of Montreal as they moved into the finals at the Summer Olympics on Thursday, filling the void left by Ben Johnson's alibi, U.S. basketball supremacy and Carl Lewis' golden grand slam.

Michael Carbajal of Phoenix, Ariz., and Kennedy McKinney of Killeen, Texas, became the first two U.S. boxers into the finals, and five more were knocking on the door after making the quarterfinals.

Carbajal scored a 4-1 decision over Robert Isaszegi of Hungary in the 106-pound class, and McKinney stopped Phajol Moolson of Thailand in the first round of their 119-pound bout.

Romallis Ellis of Ellenwood, Ga., lost a unanimous decision to Andreas Zuelow of East Germany in the 132 pound semifinal, but he'll get a bronze medal as consolation. Still lined up were Riddick Bowe, Kenneth Gould, Roy Jones, Andrew Maynard and Ray Mercer — waiting to challenge the record of the fabled seven who won five gold, one silver and one bronze in 1976.

A doctor for the Canadian Centre for Doping in Montreal, meanwhile, revealed Wednesday that Johnson's male hormone levels were so low when he won the 100 meters in Seoul that it could only have been from extended steroid use.

Johnson was stripped of the gold medal when he tested positive for steroids, but his agent had said the sprinter was sabotaged by a stranger with a bottle of "sport drink" containing a "gooey yellow substance" that smelled bad.

The coordinator of doping control here also said Johnson admitted he took three medications, one of them by injection, before his race. One of them was a partially banned corticosteroid which "could be suspicious," Dr. Lee In-joon said.

The Soviet Union defeated the United States 82-76 in their first Olympic basketball meeting since the controversy of 1972. The United States now has lost only two of its 87 Olympic games, both to the Soviets.

And Lewis lost the 200 meters to teammate and friend Joe DeLoach. Lewis won the long jump and got the 100-meter gold when Johnson was stripped for taking steroids. He still has the 400-meter relay, but the best he can do now is three gold, not four like L.A.

On Thursday, a silver medal-winning weightlifter from Hungary became the eighth athlete caught using drugs. Andor Szanyi, who finished second in the 100-kilogram class, tested positive for the same drug Johnson used, stanozolol, and was stripped of his medal.

In the 13th day of Games, the medal standings looked like this: Soviet Union 85 total, 36 gold; Germany 73 total, 29 gold; United States 57 total, 19 gold. America also won the gold in demonstration sport of basketball behind the complete-game pitcher Jim Abbott and the two homers Tino Martinez, beating Japan 5-3.

Dr. Robert Masse, the acting director of the Canadian Centre for Doping Control, said Johnson's natural testosterone levels in Seoul were 15 times lower than they should have been.

"It would suggest he was a heavy user of steroids," Masse said. "Johnson's testosterone levels would go down that low after one or two doses."

And in Ottawa, Canadian Sports Minister Jean Charest said the federal government will hold an inquiry into the drug scandal. He said he hopes it will give Johnson a chance to speak out publicly on the matter.

Jones keeps on spiking enemy passes

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones would have made a great blocker for the United States Olympic volleyball team.

In his last nine NFL seasons with the Dallas Cowboys, the 6-foot-9 Jones has batted down 73 enemy aerials from his left defensive end post. Dallas didn't keep records of batted passes before then.

On three occasions, including Danny Noonan's 17-yard return in a 26-20 victory over the Atlanta Falcons on Sunday, the blocks have been returned for touchdowns.

Jones, a first round draft pick in 1974, has never had the pleasure of catching one and returning it himself, although he came close against the Falcons.

Dallas' defensive co-captain batted a Chris Miller pass into the air but Jones couldn't quite catch it before it hit the artificial turf.

"That would be the ultimate wouldn't it?" Jones said. "I've hit all those passes into the air yet I haven't returned one for a touchdown myself. It's kind of ironic."

His teammates kid him that he would be too slow to score anyway.

Jim Jeffcoat, the right defensive end, has returned two of Jones' tipped passes for scores, both of them against the New York Giants.

"Oh, Ed doesn't have the speed to score on one of those," Jeffcoat said. "That's why he should leave it to me."

Jones is the Cowboys' "iron man." He has never missed a game in his 14-year career.

When he lines up against New Orleans on Monday night, it will be his 197th consecutive game.

"I just have a physical structure that lets me come back from injury," Jones said. "I just have a body chemistry that lets me take punishment and shake it off."

Somehow his body and his legs have been able to hold up to the pounding. The 35-year-old Jones has a career 99½ sacks to prove his mobility.

"Some of them take shots at my legs but I just dance around them," said Jones, who once unsuccessfully tried professional boxing as a career.

How long can old bones Jones keep going?

"I feel great, but you never know how much longer you can go," he said. "I get excited more now than I did when I was 25 years old looking forward to game day Sundays."

Jones gets player of week

NEW YORK (AP) — Dallas defensive end Ed Jones and San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana were named Wednesday the NFC Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week.

Houston running back Allen Pinkett and Buffalo safety Mark Kelso earned Player of the Week honors in the AFC.

Montana was 20-of-29 for 302 yards and four touchdowns in less than three quarters of play Sunday in the 49ers' 38-7 victory in Seattle. He is rated second in the NFC in passing.

Kelso had a pair of fourth-quarter interceptions in the Bills' 36-28 victory over Pittsburgh.

Jones had five tackles, one sack, one forced fumble and two tipped passes, one of which was intercepted by teammate Danny Noonan and returned for a touchdown in the Cowboys' 26-20 victory over Atlanta.

Pinkett had three touchdowns and 146 yards of offense in the Oilers' 31-6 rout of New England. He ran for 70 yards and one touchdown and caught two 11 passes from Cody Carlson.

Kelso had a pair of fourth-quarter interceptions in the Bills' 36-28 victory over Pittsburgh.

"It will get to the point some year where I don't want to go to training camp anymore and that will be it. Fortunately, it hasn't happened yet."

Dallas coach Tom Landry said Jones might outlast him.

"Ed is an exceptional athlete," Landry said. "Age is no deterrent for him."

"I don't know how much longer he will last. I guess he'll last as long as he wants to."
