Chamber orchestra to perform at A&M

The Paillard Chamber Orchestra will perform Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium. The concert is part of this year's OPAS series.

The French ensemble will perform Baroque and early classical music, including concertos by Bach, Handel and Claude Debussy.

The group will be conducted by its founder, Jean-Francois Paillard. Shigenori Kudo, an internationally-known flutist, will perform with the ensemble.

The orchestra has earned numerous awards and is best known for its revival of music from the 17th and 18th centuries.

Their recording of Johann Pachelbel's "Canon in D" is the best-selling classical recording of all time.

Kudo has won many international prizes, including the First Grand Prix at the 1978 Paris International Competition.

Tickets are still available. Prices range from $8 to $12.50 with a student ID. Non-student tickets range from $9.25 to $14.50.

Department says it helped create 4,260 jobs in state

AUSTIN (AP) — The new Texas Department of Commerce said Monday its efforts created 4,260 jobs in the state during its first year of operation, and it predicted creating 9,000 more during the next 12 months.

The department, formed from several old state agencies last year, said it has teamed up with communities across the state to attract 24 companies and keep or help expand four others to directly create those jobs.

Economic models indicate that another 6,367 jobs were indirectly created from those efforts for a total of 10,627 and an increase in personal income of more than $244 million.

Bill Lauderback, executive director of the department, said, "These are very impressive results for our first year of operations."

The department reported that prospects had been located in every region of the state and represented a wide sector of business, including electronics, computers, petrochemicals, manufacturing and recreation.

For the next year, the department said it will demonstrate creation of 9,000 more direct jobs.

The department's report said prospective employers have been lured with a simple message: Texas offers plenty of land and office space at bargain rates, the dollar is low against foreign currencies and there is a large pool of skilled labor available.

"By marketing changes in our economy, Commerce is helping the state to capitalize on a situation unique to Texas,"

Bill Lauderback,
 executive director
 Texas Commerce Department

"By marketing changes in our economy, Commerce is helping the state to capitalize on a situation unique to Texas," Lauderback said.

Department officials said their strategy in luring new companies includes increased advertising and publicity about the state's current economic climate.

Phil Brewer, the department's director for national business development, said, "There's been a growing trend in the number of quality prospects we're getting."

"In the past, there were lots of cases where initial inquirers were never heard from again," he said. "The most recent year, however, we've had more inquiries followed by site visits."

"One reason is because Texas is such a good deal right now, and we're getting a lot of that positive news into the national and international media," he said.
