Aggies split dual match with Mustangs

The Aggie Polo Club opened the season last Sunday with a dual match against Southern Methodist. The men's team lost to the Mustangs 11-7 while the Lady Aggies won their match by the same score, club spokesman Wesley Sinor said.

"Both of our teams played well for the first game of the season," Sinor said.

The men's team wasted several scoring opportunities in their loss, he said. Vicente Borrero had an outstanding game for A&M in the loss.

"The men played well. SMU was third in the nation last year and we should have won," Sinor said. "We missed some penalty shots and several other shots when we had the ball right in front of the goal."

Sinor praised the Aggie women's team which won in spite of constant substitutions. Kristin Matlack was a standout performer for the Aggie women.

"We rotated a lot of players in and out of the lineup," Sinor said. "We wanted to see how everyone would play."

Lady Aggies pluck Eagles in 2-1 victory

Bolstered by a strong defensive performance, the Texas A&M women's soccer team de-feathered the Eagles of the University of North Texas 2-1 last weekend.

A&M shut down the North Texas offense behind the excellent play of goalie Jeana Chicosky who played a major part in shutting out the Eagles for the first 45 minutes of the game, according to Lindsey Craig, A&M soccer club president.

The Lady Aggies improved their record to 4-1-1. A&M's previous wins came over Rice (8-2), Trinity

Women's Soccer

(3-0) and the College of the South-west (4-1).

The Aggies were led offensively by Chanel Mullican, Kelly Benner and Elena Olive. Benner and Olive scored for A&M.

A&M has this weekend off before resuming play at the Austin Women's Tournament November 5 and 6. The Lady Aggies return home the following weekend to host the Texas A&M Varsity Tournament.

Lacrosse stumbles during tournament

The Lacrosse Club swung southwest to Austin two weeks ago for an indoor tournament. Saturday, they beat Southwestern University 14-5 and lost to Austin Gold 21-12.

The club had one more shot against another city team Sunday, Austin Blue, but lost 10-5. Pat Braun and Craig Bernas had the hot hands offensively for A&M.

This weekend, A&M invites at

least 8 teams from in and around the state for the eighth annual A&M Fall Lacrosse Classic at Simpson Drill Field.

As many as three matches will be held at one time beginning Saturday at 9 a.m. and ending at 1 p.m. Sunday, action begins at 11 a.m. and finishes around 3 p.m.

Zuteck third at windsurfing regionals

Last week, Texas A&M's Sailing Club sent member Mark Zuteck to A&M-Galveston for the regional windsurfing competition. Zuteck came home with third place and an invitation to the national competition Nov. 19 at Annapolis, Maryland.

The club is having its fall regatta Saturday at Bryan Utilities Lake. The competition includes races in women's "A" and "B" divisions, men's J.V. and a windsurfing division.

The regatta gets underway around 9:30 or 10 in the morning and runs until 5 or 6. Teams from Southern Methodist, Baylor and Texas A&I will compete with A&M. Prizes will be given in all divisions.

Pack will welcome UT ex Cade back

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers announced Wednesday they would welcome back former player Mossy Cade, who was paroled last week on a sexual assault conviction.

Tom Braatz, executive vice president of football operations, issued a statement saying he and team President Robert Parins, a former circuit judge, met with Cade, a former Texas Longhorn, Tuesday.

"Judge Parins and I met with Mossy Cade and his attorney, Randy Rueckert, in Chicago Tuesday and told him we would welcome him back to the Green Bay Packers next training camp," the statement said.

"We asked him what he wanted to do, and he said he wanted to come back and play football," Braatz said in an interview Wednesday.

Cade, 26, was paroled after serving 15 months of a two-year sentence. His mandatory release date was Nov. 28.

Cade was convicted last year on two counts of second-degree sexual assault. He was accused of forcing a Houston woman who was a relative by marriage to have sex with him.

Cade played defensive back for the Packers prior to his conviction. He had been acquired in a 1985 trade for two draft picks, and Braatz said the team wanted to protect its investment by keeping a spot open for Cade.

"This is a business decision," he said. "We have a need for a defensive corner."

A Green Bay television station conducted a phone-in survey Monday night, and 67.3 percent of the more than 5,000 respondents favored Cade's return.

Packers Coach Lindy Infante said Wednesday, "If the front office feels comfortable with Mossy being back, I don't have any problems with it."

Infante said, however, he sensed a wide split of opinion in the community regarding Cade's future with the team.

"There is a contingent of people who believe that when a guy pays his debt to society it is over with," Infante said. "There are others that say that no matter what you do you should never have the guy back on the team because of what he did in the past. For me to make a bold statement either way, I feel would be out of place. It's a no win, no lose situation."

Asked if this move represented a change of heart by management, Infante said, "I don't think I can take any credit or blame for this decision. What happens with Mossy happened before I got here. I told Tom and the judge I could live with their decision."

Tiger-Gator battle highlights week

Associated Press

If you like spine-tingling games that aren't decided until the last minute — former New York Mets manager Wes Westrum called them "cliff-dwellers" — this may not be your week.

You have to go all the way down to ninth-ranked Auburn to find a Top Twenty team that is favored by less than two touchdowns. Clemson and South Carolina are the only other teams in the Associated Press rankings that are single-digit favorites.

The main reason, of course, is that there isn't a single game between Top 20 teams this weekend. But watch out for those Halloween hobgoblins. They may sneak up on someone.

Like seventh-ranked West Virginia, for example. The Mountaineers' 7-0 record is their best since 1955. Since then, they are 1-30-1 against Penn State and 8-44-2 in the series, including 13 shutouts.

West Virginia's last five victories in the series were by a total of 24 points, including a 21-7 "romp" in 1955.

The Mountaineers are coming off a 59-19 blitz of Boston College. Penn State has dropped two in a row, scoring only one touchdown while losing to Syracuse 24-10 and Alabama 8-3.

18-0 — .526; for the year, 127-132-1 — .490.

Washington State at No. 1 UCLA (favored by 21): UCLA 49-21.

No. 2 Notre Dame (by 34) at Navy: Notre Dame 49-7.

No. 3 Southern California (by 16) at Oregon State: Southern Cal 35-21.

No. 4 Miami, Fla. (by 31) at East Carolina: Miami 56-14.

Missouri at No. 5 Nebraska (by 37): Nebraska 42-14.

Kansas at No. 8 Oklahoma (by 50): Oklahoma 45-7.

No. 9 Auburn (by 7) at Florida: Auburn 17-7.

No. 10 Wyoming (by 17) at Colorado State: Wyoming 31-21.

Despite its lack of success in the series, West Virginia is a 13-point favorite. Halloween Upset Special . . . Penn State 24-21.

Last week's prediction record was 28-21-1 — .598, dropping the season's score to 280-112-4 — .714. Against the point spread, last week's mark was 20-

Rice at No. 11 Arkansas (by 22): Arkansas 38-10.

No. 12 Oklahoma State (by 38) at Kansas State: Oklahoma State 45-14.

Mississippi at No. 13 LSU (by 11): LSU 34-17.

No. 14 Michigan (by 29) at Northwestern: Michigan 49-6.

No. 15 Clemson (by 8) at Wake Forest: Clemson 24-14.

No. 17 South Carolina (by 3) at North Carolina State: South Carolina 24-17.

William & Mary at No. 18 Georgia (no line): Georgia 52-0.

No. 19 Alabama (by 12) at Mississippi State: Second Upset Special . . . Mississippi State 17-14.

Arizona State at No. 20 Oregon (by 12): Oregon 31-17.

Louisville (by 10½) at Cincinnati: Third Upset Special . . . Cincinnati 28-27.

Army runs wishbone to pass-less winning

Associated Press

"Thou shall not pass" could be Army's motto this season.

Since Coach Jim Young installed the wishbone offense in 1984, the Cadets are 22-0 when they throw six passes or less, 31-4 when they throw nine times or less. When they put the ball in the air more than nine times, their record is a sorry 3-14-1.

To paraphrase an old gag, Army is first in war, first in peace and last among the nation's 104 Division I-A teams in passing offense.

In seven games, of which they have won six, the Cadets have thrown just 39 passes and completed 16 for an average of 56 yards a game. But they are third in rushing with a 377-yard average.

Rutgers, which beat Michigan State and Penn State, was Army's latest victim, falling 34-24 last Saturday. With Air Force, Vanderbilt, Boston College and Navy left, a 10-1 season is certainly possible.

"Army has a certain element of discipline simply by the nature of their institution," Rutgers coach Dick Anderson said.

"The wishbone, I think, is tailored to their temper, tailored to their institution, because it involves an extreme amount of discipline. I think they play it exceptionally well.

"They're not very big up front offensively or defensively, and yet they come after you very tough, very tough."

St. John's extra points get more interesting

Associated Press

Coach Bob Ricca of St. John's (N.Y.) University has seen both sides of the NCAA's new conversion rule which allows the defensive team to score two points.

Earlier in the season, with the score tied 24-24, the Redmen blocked an extra-point attempt by Iona and ran it all the way for two points and a 26-24 victory.

Last Saturday, C.W. Post scored a touchdown to pull within 21-20 and lined up for an extra point that could have tied the game.

St. John's blocked it, but this time the ball bounced right back to holder Tim McIntee.

McIntee alertly passed the ball to tight end Todd Hokunson in the end zone.

Instead of a 21-21 tie, Post led 22-21 and went on to win 29-21.

"Although we do not have a designed play for a blocked extra point, we do have a play called 'Red-Red' for botched field goals where the ball recoverer throws to the tight end," Coach Tom Marshall said.

"I give Tim a lot of credit," Marshall said. "He had the wherewithal to regroup and make a great play."

McIntee is better known as a three-time All-America lacrosse player and is playing collegiate football for the first time.

In addition, he is a defensive back who ranked among the Division III leaders with seven interceptions in five games.

A hip injury prevented him from playing defense on Saturday, but because he became statistically involved in the game, his per-game interception mark dropped even though he didn't play a down on defense.

Ricca said, "The extra point is no longer a boring play."
