Investigation probes charges of illegal voting

McALLEN (AP) — The Justice Department will investigate allegations that hundreds of aliens are registered illegally to vote in South Texas, a federal prosecutor said Wednesday.

"I don't think these aliens vote, but I think votes are cast for them," said Jack Wolfe, an assistant U.S. attorney based in McAllen, adding he has begun to coordinate the investigation with the FBI.

Republicans in Hidalgo County approached the U.S. Attorney's office in McAllen after telephone-campaign volunteers who used the voter-registration list inadvertently found hundreds of non-citizens, Tom Wingate, county GOP chairman, said.

"We started getting people saying, 'There must be some mistake; we can't vote; we're not citizens,'" Wingate said.

Radio advertisements produced by local Republicans warned that non-citizens can be prosecuted for voting.

The ads prompted claims by Democrats that the GOP was trying to intimidate Hispanics.

The dispute resulted in the Justice Department sending 32 observers to oversee Tuesday's election in Hidalgo County, the state's only county to receive such federal scrutiny.

Federal observers in the county Tuesday reported no violations of the Voting Rights Act, which prohibits discrimination in the electoral process.

Wingate accused the Democrats of not caring about illegally registered voters, because the non-citizens would be more likely to vote for Democrats.

"There doesn't seem to be any desire on the part of the Democrats to protect the integrity of the voting process," Wingate said Wednesday.

County Democratic Chairman Richard Alamia responded, "That's a damn lie. The Democrats do care about abiding by the law."

He accused the local GOP of trying to gain politically by raising the allegations shortly before the election.

Federal prosecutor Wolfe said the U.S. Attorney's office waited until the election was over to start looking into the vote fraud allegations because they didn't want to be accused, one way or the other, of being involved in partisan politics and trying to influence the outcome of an election.

He said he asked the Republicans not to show him their evidence until after election day.

Wolfe said investigators may not find any evidence of large numbers of illegally registered voters, but said "ghosts on the voting rolls" have turned up before.

"In the past, we've had indications of the same type of activity going on," Wolfe said. "And we have arrested illegal aliens . . . who had voter registration cards on them, and obviously they have those cards to prove citizenship."

The courts, which use voter registration lists to obtain jurors, also have encountered non-citizens who were not aware they were registered to vote, Wolfe said.

"What you can do, is you can now vote for them," Wolfe said. "You can request absentee ballots in their name. You can even appear at their polling place" with false identification.

Convicted man to face new trial

AUSTIN (AP) — The man who pleaded guilty in the "Little Boy Blue" abandoned-body case in Nebraska is back in Texas for trial on a murder charge in the shooting of a former roommate.

Eli Stutzman, 38, has been serving a prison term in Nebraska after pleading guilty to abandoning the body of his son, Danny, in a ditch in Nebraska after the child died during a cross-country trip.

Stutzman told authorities his son died in 1985 after developing a respiratory problem that worsened on a trip to Ohio from Wyoming. He left the body in a ditch near Chester, Neb., and a motorist found the body on Dec. 24, 1985.

Stutzman was indicted July 18 on a Texas murder charge in the 1985 shooting of Glenn Pritchett, 24.

Detective Gary Cutler and Rick Whitehead of the Travis County Sheriff's Department flew Stutzman from Lincoln Correctional Center in Lincoln, Neb., to Austin on Tuesday.

The body of Pritchett, who shared a house with Stutzman and his son, was found May 12, 1985, in rural Travis County. He had been shot once in the head.

Stutzman pleaded guilty in January in Thayer County, Neb., district court to misdemeanor charges of abandoning a human body and concealing a death. He was sentenced to one year in prison on the abandoning charge and to six months on the concealing a death charge.

Nebraska authorities were never able to determine the cause of the boy's death.
